Six Persons Held In Ohio Mine Strike Riot

TAXI DRIVER'S JAW FRACTURED IN ATTACK IN RIVER COUNYY

Five Affidavits Are Filed Against Sheriff.

PROBER ON JOB

About 300 Assail Man Who Aided Non-Union Workers.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 13.—With four men and two women said to be union sympathizers, under arrest, and charged with inciting a riot and assault with intent to kill, five affidavits on file charging Sheriff Hardesty with intoxication while on duty, and one man suffering a fractured jaw, affairs at the Provident mine, Belmont county, took a serious aspect today, according to Col. L. E. Conelly, Ohio National Guard officer, investigating the mine situation here for Governor Donahey and Adjutant General Frank Henderson.

Men and Women Arrested.

The men and women were charged with inciting a riot and assault to kill as the result of an alleged attack late Friday upon C. V. Nichols, Wheeling, W. Va., taxi driver who is said to have been driving non-union workers to the Provident mine.

About 300 men and women were in the attacking crowd, it was reported, "including a black whiskered man who led the crowd." This man is said to be still at large.

Those arrested were Mike Primolozich, president of the Provident mine local; Steve Silich and Santa Santuno, secretary and treasurer of the mine local; John Karopsic and Mrs. Mary Popick and a Mrs. Frenchia.

Those arrested are being held at the

In Vienna the Socialist municipal government has erected, in a working class district, at a cost of one million dollars, the finest bath house in the world. There are "Roman-Irish" baths (whatever they may be) underground, sun and air baths on the roof, with flowers growing there, and mud baths among the flowers; also electric, salt and violet ray baths.

That isn't the American humorist's idea of a Socialist enterprise.

VASSAR knows that babies are important, no matter what her daughters may thing, and establishes a Summer school to train mothers and fathers also in bringing up children.

A new building will house this new branch of learning, and husbands will be allowed to attend the Summer lectures. Living quarters will be provided for them at Vassar. All of which is common sense.

German and British Ocean Flyers Delay Start for America

Atlantic Storms Force Postponement of Hop Off from Southampton, England, and Dessau, Germany.

AIRMEN MAY JUMP WITHIN 48 HOURS

Fresh Controversy Between Levine and French Pilot Makes "Columbia's" Take-off Uncertain.

BERLIN, Aug. 13. — Baron Koennecke and his observer, Count Solms, hopped off from here for Cologne tonight on the first leg of their proposed flight from Berlin to New York.

At Cologne the flyers will complete their preparations and await favorable atmospheric conditions before starting the trans-Atlantic flight.

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 13.—Owing to reports of storms over the Atlantic, the hop-off of the Junkers planes, Europa and Bremen, for New York was postponed today. The airplanes were to have started on the trans-ocean flight between 6 and 7 o'clock this evening. The pilots hope they can get away tomorrow, but it is uncertain, owing to the vagaries of the weather.

The postponement of the takeoff caused great disappointment to the airmen, officials of the Junkers company and the big army of journalists and photographers, as well as to the big crowd of visitors from all parts of Germany. For 48 hours aviation enthusiasts have been gathering here overcrowding all the hotels and boarding houses.

Courtney To Make Two Stops.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 13.—Stormy weather over the Atlantic is still delaying Captain Frank T. Courtney, British air ace, who will attempt to fly from the British Isles to North America.

Courtney hopes to get away within 48 hours.

ARMY BALLOON IS RACE ENTRANT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Entry of an army team in the Gordon-Bennett International balloon races, which will start from the Ford airport, Detroit, Michigan, on September 10, was authorized today by the war department.

The team will consist of Captain William E. Kepner, pilot, and Lieutenant William O. Eareckson, aide. These men, both stationed at Scott field, Belleville, Illinois, won third place in national elimination races from Akron, Ohio, last May. In that race they covered 595 miles.

The first Gordon-Bennett International race held in 1906 in Paris, was won by Lieutenant Frank P. Lahm, now brigadier general and assistant to the chief of the air corps.

Arthur V. Rodgers Briton, Killed in Crash.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Calif. Aug. 13.—Despite the tragic deaths of three aviators entered in the $35,000 Dole prize air race to Honolulu, preparations for the start of the marathon at noon Tuesday, were going forward at feverish pace today.

Arthur V. Rodgers, former British army flyer, is the latest entrant to be "scratched" by the Grim Reaper. When his tandem-motored monoplane crashed at Los Angeles yesterday during a trial flight, he became the third victim in as many days. Three planes have been smashed during the trials.

Lieutenants George D. Covell and R. S. Waggener were killed at Point Loma while on their way here to enter the flight and James L. Giffin and his navigator, Ten Lundgren, narrowly escaped death Thursday when their plane fell into San Francisco bay.

Additional precautions were being taken here today against injury to the great crowd expected when the fliers takeoff for the islands. Lines were set back further from the runway and policemen will be stationed about every twenty feet on the spectators side of the field.

Four Pilots Qualified.

Although certificates of qualification will not be placed in the hands of the aviators until just before noon Tuesday, Lieut. B. H. Wyatt, representing the United States department of commerce, department of aeronautics, has assured four pilots that they have convinced the government they Boy Hurt in Fall.

Earl Fuller, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fuller, 1807 Harvey avenue, sustained a lacerated lip when he fell from a porch striking his face upon a tub, at 9:30 o'clock this morning. He was taken to the City hospital where the injury was dressed.

BOSTON FRIENDS OF RADICALS PLAN APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

Miss Margaret Wilson May Aid Condemned Prisoners.

LAWYERS ACTIVE

Prepare for Arguments Before Supreme Court.

Police today were advised that Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers in the East Liverpool district had made arrangements for [illegible] Sunday in Pritchard's Grove, in California Hollow, when protest will be made against the death sentence pronounced upon the alleged slayers in the South Braintree, Mass., case. Handbills advertising the meeting were printed in English and Italian.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—Developments in the world-famous Sacco-Vanzetti case came thick and fast today.

Members of the Provincetown art colony—made up of some of the best known writers, poets, painters, players, play rights and critics in the country—opened headquarters of a new defense committee in an exclusive Beacon Hill hotel for the purpose of launching a nation-wide drive to have President Coolidge intervene by opening the department of justice records, to show, it was said, that Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti suffered at their murder trial because of their radical beliefs.

Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the late President Wilson, who led the movement which resulted in her father's intervention in the celebrated Mooney case, was said to be a member of the new Sacco-Vanzetti committee, organized by Walter L. Igett, art colony member.

Undisturbed by the fact that the Boston police broke up their meeting last Sunday, arresting four men as the sepakers attempted to assail Governor Alvin T. Fuller and Trial Judge Webster Thayer, the original Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee announced a "final protest meeting" for tomorrow afternoon. Efforts by this committee to obtain a public hall failed. Outdoor plans were balked too, when Mayor Malcolm Nichols suspended a Boston common permit.

Funeral Services in Home Monday Afternoon.

Robert L. Springer, 93, a grandson of Dr. Joseph Springer, who settled in Center township in 1807, died in his home on North Market street, Lisbon, at 5:30 o'clock last night, folowing a five days' illness.

Mr. Springer was born in Lisbon. He was a tailor by trade, and during his early life took an active part in civic affairs. He was also interested in historical work.

We was married on November 8, 1860. His wife, Nancy Ellen Springer, died March 18, 1923. He was a member of the Baptist church.

Of eight children who were born, seven survive. They are: Mrs. Mary Wilcoxen, Canton; Mrs. Alice Worman, of the Salem-Lisbon road; Mrs. Maud Davidson, Wellsville; Mrs. Bertha Noble, Lisbon; Mrs. Nettie Crawford, Harry and Clifford Springer, at home.

Funeral services will be conducted probably Monday afternoon, in charge of Rev. P. W. Macauley, of the Miles Park Presbyterian church, Cleveland, formerly of Lisbon. Burial will be made in the Lisbon cemetery.

SACRIFICES PULPIT FOR CHURCH

Because the congregation of the Merton Avenue Christian church, Memphis, Tenn., shown above, was staggering under a heavy [illegible] $50,000 due on the building, the Rev. John S. Zeran, inset, has resigned as pastor and has advised the congregation to apply all church [illegible] toward freeing the place of worship from debt. When the Rev. Zeran took the pastorate the congregation was worshipping in a basement meeting house.

Nip Gunmen's Plot to Kill Jail Guards

Fate of Cosgrove Gov-at Murder Plan and Tell of Proposed Escape at Doylestown, Pa.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Aug. 13.—Details of a plot by two notorious gunmen to escape from the Bucks county jail here were revealed today with the arrival of Massachusetts officials for one of the gunmen. Revolting at the plan for slaying two of the prison guards, other prisoners told the warden and the jail break was frustrated.

Stephen Lorochelle, 27, alias Sylvester Lyons, of New Bedford, Mass., leader of the contemplated jailbreak, will be taken back to Massachusetts today by Captain Raymond Chase and Sergeant John Davies of the New Bedford police. Lorochelle is wanted for escaping from the Rutland state prison while serving a term for robbery, police said.

He is a member of a gang of gunmen operating in a number of eastern states and is known as one of the most notorious gunmen in the east, Captain Chase told local officials.

TRUCK PLUNGES OVER DECLIVITY

A Ford truck belonging to the Nightengale dry cleaning establishment, in the Ceramic Cafeteria building, plunged over a 30-foot enbankment near the Second Baptist church, Pennsylvania avenue, late yesterday afternoon, but no one was injured. The machine started while the driver was making a call. McElravy's wrecker pulled the car to the road.

SEEKS $15,000 FOR AUTO CRASH

Roy Welsh, 1308 St. Clair avenue, was today named defendant in a suit for $15,000 damages filed in the common pleas court at Lisbon by Alice G. Russell as an aftermath of an automobile collision near the corner of Pennsylvania and Virginia avenues on Sunday, May 1. The plaintiff is represented by Attorney Charles Boyd.

Welsh is declared to have been driving at a speed rate of between 30 and 40 miles whe nhis car collided with the plaintiff's machine. Mrs. Russell claims to have been badly injured in the crash.

MISS AVA MYLER DYING OF BURNS

Miss Ava Myler, secretary of the Spring Grove cemetery association, was believed to be dying at her home on Woodlawn avenue today from the effects of burns sustained April 4, when her clothing ignited from an open gas fire.

Miss Myler has been unconscious since Thursday.

LESTER HIGLEY, WHO DUG WAY OUT OFF CELL, HELD IN WEST

Fugitive Is Under Arrest in Springfield, Ill.

AUTO THEFT COUNT

Accused Will Be Returned Here for Hearing.

Lester Higley, 32, machinist, who escaped from the East Liverpool jail a week ago yesterday, where he was being held on a charge of automobile stealing, has been recaptured at Freeport, Ill., Sheriff George Wright was advised today.

May Demand Extradition Papers.

Suspecting that Higley would go to his former home in Illinois, Wright telegraphed Freeport authorities last Saturday, asking that they be on the lookout for the fugitive. John G. Hayes, sheriff at Freeport, notified the sheriff's office that Higley was in jail and would be held pending the arrival of the sheriff or a deputy.

Sheriff Wright, who is visiting in the east is not expected to return to Lisbon until Sunday. He probably will start for Freeport early next week. Should Higley refuse to return to Lisbon, it will be necessary for the sheriff to apply for extradition papers. This will cause another delay of a week or more.

Higley is charged with having taken an automobile belonging to the Trotter-Chevrolet company last April, and moving it into Illinois where he dealt it in on another car. He was arrested about three weeks ago but refused to return to Ohio to answer to the charge. Extradition papers were obtained by Sheriff Wright who brought him back to Lisbon.

Dug Hole in Wall.

The prisoner was brought from Lisbon to East Liverpool and turned over to police, who did not lock him in a cell but allowed him the freedom of the corridors. When Judge Hanley called for the arraignment of the suspect two days later he could not be found. In the south wall of the city jail police found a 9 by 12-inch hole through which Higley was thought to have made his getaway early Friday morning.

Fellow prisoners told Howard Scott, janitor at the city hall, that Higley had walked out of the door of the jail and through the garage at the rear of the building while other prisoners were being arraigned before Judge Hanley on Friday morning. This theory is not supported by Desk Sergeant Henry Aufderheide who was on duty at the police quarters on Saturday morning.

FORMER SOLON J. B. ROWE DIES

Furniture Dealer Succumbs in His Home Here.

John Brady Rowe, 71, furniture dealer and former councilman, died today in his home, 304 Washington street, after 18 months' illness.

Mr. Rowe, who was a lifelong resident of East Liverpool, had been engaged in the furniture business for many years. He represented the third ward in council for one term. He was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

He leaves his widow, two sons and one daughter: Harry P. Rowe, Steubenville; Joseph Rowe, and Mrs. O. C. Tallman, Holliday's Cove; three brothers, William, Basil and George Rowe, East Liverpool, and five sisters, Mrs. Elmer Eagon, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. B. A. Rigby, Mrs. Frank Rigby, Mrs. Harry Welch, and Mrs. Frank E. Oyster, all of East Liverpool. Eight grandchildren also survive.

$45,000 ADDITION TO POTTERS' BUILDING WILL BE READY SEPT. 1

Subordinate Unions Will Occupy Second Floor Of Headquarters on West Sixth Street.

New addition to the headquarters building of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, West Sixth street, will be completed on or about September 1, it was announced today by officers of the organization.

Interior decorators are now at work in the building and this part of the work will in all probability be completed within two weeks. Decorating of the headquarters office has been finished.

Subordinate unions will occupy four spacious rooms on the second floor of the building.

The new building is two stories high with a basement. An assembly hall suitable for dances or social gatherings has been provided on the main floor, back of the office quarters. Banquet room and kitchen facilities are in the basement at the rear of the Potters' Herald printing plant.

The addition represents an expenditure of approximately $45,000. D. F. Nellis & Sons were the contractors.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS - CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS' OUTING ON WEDNESDAY

Tri-State Lodge Men and Women Will Feature Novel Program at Rock Springs Park Picnic.

Tri-state outing of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Daughters of America will be held at Rock Springs park next Wednesday.

A program of outdoor sports will be featured. Boys will be pitted against the girls in peanut race and egg races. Baby contest will be held in the dance pavilion, Virginia Gardens, at 3 p. m. Babies between the ages of six months and one year will compose one class, while another class will include children between one and two years of age.

Other events slated are baseball throwing and nail driving contests for women. There will be tugs of war between members of the various councils and courts. A prize will be given for the largest family attending the outing. Families must register at the park office in order to compete for this award.

A mardi gras and serpentine dance will be held at Virginia Gardens in the evening.

He was arrested about three weeks ago but refused to return to Ohio to answer to the charge. Extradition papers were obtained by Sheriff Wright who brought him back to Lisbon.

Dug Hole in Wall.

The prisoner was brought from Lisbon to East Liverpool and turned over to police, who did not lock him in a cell but allowed him the freedom of the corridors. When Judge Hanley called for the arraignment of the suspect two days later he could not be found. In the south wall of the city jail police found a 9 by 12-inch hole through which Higley was thought to have made his getaway early Friday morning.

Fellow prisoners told Howard Scott, janitor at the city hall, that Higley had walked out of the door of the jail and through the garage at the rear of the building while other prisoners were being arraigned before Judge Hanley on Friday morning. This theory is not supported by Desk Sergeant Henry Aufderheide who was on duty at the police quarters on Saturday morning.

FORMER SOLON J. B. ROWE DIES

Furniture Dealer Succumbs in His Home Here.

John Brady Rowe, 71, furniture dealer and former councilman, died today in his home, 304 Washington street, after 18 months' illness.

Mr. Rowe, who was a lifelong resident of East Liverpool, had been engaged in the furniture business for many years. He represented the third ward in council for one term. He was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

He leaves his widow, two sons and one daughter: Harry P. Rowe, Steubenville; Joseph Rowe, and Mrs. O. C. Tallman, Holliday's Cove; three brothers, William, Basil and George Rowe, East Liverpool, and five sisters, Mrs. Elmer Eagon, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. B. A. Rigby, Mrs. Frank Rigby, Mrs. Harry Welch, and Mrs. Frank E. Oyster, all of East Liverpool. Eight grandchildren also survive.

$45,000 ADDITION TO POTTERS' BUILDING WILL BE READY SEPT. 1

Subordinate Unions Will Occupy Second Floor Of Headquarters on West Sixth Street.

New addition to the headquarters building of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, West Sixth street, will be completed on or about September 1, it was announced today by officers of the organization

Interior decorators are now at work in the building and this part of the work will in all probability be completed within two weeks. Decorating of the headquarters office has been finished.

Subordinate unions will occupy four spacious rooms on the second floor of the building.

The new building is two stories high with a basement. An assembly hall suitable for dances or social gatherings has been provided on the main floor, back of the office quarters. Banquet room and kitchen facilities are in the basement at the rear of the Potters' Herald printing plant.

The addition represents an expenditure of approximately $45,000. D. F. Nellis & Sons were the contractors.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS - CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS' OUTING ON WEDNESDAY

Tri-State Lodge Men and Women Will Feature Novel Program at Rock Springs Park Picnic.

Tri-state outing of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Daughters of America will be held at Rock Springs park next Wednesday.

A program of outdoor sports will be featured. Boys will be pitted against the girls in peanut race and egg races. Baby contest will be held in the dance pavilion, Virginia Gardens, at 3 p. m. Babies between the ages of six months and one year will compose one class, while another class will include children between one and two years of age.

Other events slated are baseball throwing and nail driving contests for women. There will be tugs of war between members of the various councils and courts. A prize will be given for the largest family attending the outing. Families must register at the park office in order to compete for this award.

A mardi gras and serpentine dance will be held at Virginia Gardens in the evening.

Pittenger School Reunion.

Annual reunion and basket picnic of the Allison school will be held at the school house on Saturday, August 20.

'ROOKIES' HIT AT AMERICAN

Riotous Comedy Feature Opens Three-Day Run On Monday.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer seems to have depleted the government army and navy branches as backgrounds for film stories. Ramon Novarro used Annapolis as a background for "The Midshipman" and John Gilbert had the cooperation of the army in the making of "The Big Parade." "Tell it to the Marines," which had the entire U. S. Marine Corps back of it. At the American theatre "Rookies" will open a three-day run on Monday. It, too, was made with the cooperation of the government and is laid against a background of life at a citizens' military training camp, such as is held annually in most of the states.

The picture gives a real lesson in training camp life and depicts the work of the recruits there. It is a riotous comedy featuring a new screen team, Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, with Marceline Day. Louise Lorraine has a prominent role, as have Tom O'Brien and Frank Currier. The picture was directed by Sam Wood, responsible, directorially, for many of Wallace Reid's old thrillers.

ALLISON FAMILY REUNION LISTED

EAST END

GASOLINE TAX MONEY RETURNED

For the six months ending June 30, $1,525,424,13 gasoline tax money collected by the state will be returned to the counties in which it was collected. Of this amount Beaver county will receive $23,748.74. Altogether during the six months, from January 1 to June 30, $94,994.98 gasoline tax was collected in Beaver county. This means that tax was paid on approximately 4,749,749 gallons of gasoline sold at retail in Beaver county.

The sum of $23,748.74 will be returned to the county as its share of the tax for road work. Under the law a half cent of the tax collected on each gallon is returned to the county in which it was collected.

MIDLAND HOLDS COUNTY RECORD

Midland and Woodlawn boroughs have the heaviest Republican registration in Beaver county, according to figures computed in the office of the county commissioners. Midland has only four registered Democrats as against 1,863 Republicans, while Woodlawn has 8,562 Republicans and only 201 Democrats.

Total registration of Beaver county shows 49,258 Republicans as against 6,616 Democrats. These figures will be boosted by additional registration for the primaries to be held September 20.

Lodgemen to Meet.

Members of Tri-State encampment No. 354, I. O. O. F. will meet Monday night in the Hill building Mulberry street. Routine business will be transacted.

Hold Outing at Creek.

PROGRESS MADE ON NEW PLANT

Contractors are making rapid progress on the construction of the tow tunnel kiln plant of the Homer Laughlin China company. Work of laying concrete has practically been completed. It is believed that the clay shop will begin operations about the middle of October.

WEIRTON BRIDGE PLAN APPROVED

The U. S. War Department has announced final record of their approval of the application of the Weirton-Steubenville Bridge company, which was given some months ago.

The work on the new bridge pier by the Dravo Construction company is proceeding steadily and rapidly. The company has 65 men at work. They have a mixer boat, two derrick boats, and two land whirlers on the job. The piers will not be ready for structural work until spring 1928. It was announced today.

One caisson was placed last week and another this week and they were concreted to hold them. More concrete is being poured and extension coffers are being built to be placed on top of the caissons.

The piers are to rest on the rock under the river. Rock was found 32 to 35 feet beneath the level of a post stage of water.

Workmen are getting ready for the Ohio pier and anchorage, which reaches Stanton boulevard from which roadway the approach to the bridge will be from the north and south both. On the West Virginia shore they are sinking the anchorage pier.

Services Here Tomorrow.

Services will be held tomorrow at the usual hours in the various churches of the city. Pulpit of the Christian church will be occupied by Rev. C. Melvin McKay.

Laughlin Meets. Motors.

Homer Laughlin China and Turk-Nash teams are booked to meet in an Industrial league game this afternoon at Patterson field. This will be the seventh meeting of the year of the clubs with the locals having six wins to their credit over Fowler's squad.

JOHN BARRYMORE'S EARLY CAREER

Drawings by JOHN BARRYMORE

SYNOPSIS.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mix-up in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's and all go to the ranch, where John meets Manuel Lopez, Roderiguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle. He learns that Morton's business with these men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO.

"Watch!" though John Moore in the shadows. "Why, he did not lend me any watch. What the devil! That is an excuse to get into my room. He's walking down there now."

He heard Clench rap on the door This, John remembered, stood open, right by the bed.

Clench's voice again. "That's all right, Mr. Moore. I just came for my watch—Thanks. I can find it easy enough on the bureau—"

"By Jove!" puzzled John. "He sounds as if he were talking to me and I were answering him. He's in my room. No, he's out again."

Clench was saying. "Goodnight, sir."

John heard him walk down the long porch and halt midway for an instant to call, "I got it all right. Buenas noches."

"Well, I'll be damned," exclaimed John Moore. He stood straining his ears to hear more.

But there was no more to hear. The silence of the night closed over the words Clench had spoken as the waters of a pool close over the stone thrown into them. The silence deepened and spread; sinking from terrace to terrace, circling out beneath the shadows of the trees.

The wail of the dove in the pepper tree throbbed through the silence. "Who's that? Who's that? Who's that?"

John Moore shook himself a little. "It is just as well you spoke up, you calamity wailer, you," he told the bird under his breath. "I was forgetting to breath? I haven't learned to be nonchalant in melodrama yet. Give me time. Let me figure this thing out."

"Clench went to my room to get his watch. He told Roderiguez so. He told me so when he reached my door. And as far as I could judge from down here in the garden I told him to go ahead and get his blamed watch off the bureau. He went into the room, found the watch all right, came out and thanked me for letting him get it. That I was not there was a detail which did not bother him at all. Naturally, he thought it would not bother a man who could find that watch on that bureau. And he did find it. He told Roderiguez so. Wait a minute, now!

"Clench told Roderiguez to begin with that he was going to my room for his watch. As his watch was not in my room he did not go for it. But Roderiguez must have thought he went for the watch. Now we are coming. He was fooling Roderiguez—not me. And he continued to fool Roderiguez When he discovered I was not in bed—and he could easily discover that by touching the bed from the doorway—he spoke as if I were there. Clench did not disclose my absence. Why not? Obviously he was standing with me against Roderiguez.

"Why would he do that? Why did he trouble himself to come to my room at all tonight? He could have seen me easily enough in the morning—

"What he came for couldn't wait until morning— He came to tell me something they planned down there after I left. That's it! What the devil it is, is more than I can guess. I'll try and see him later. Now I am going to see the Ambassador."

There was no sound from the hilltop house. Standing on the back of the bench he grasped the top of the wall and slowly drew himself up to where he could throw himself half across it. He twisted himself about until he lay full length along the wall and looked back into the garden.

"Who's that? Who's that? Who's that?" crooned the dove in the pepper tree.

"What's it to you?" jeered John Moore softly. "Keep out of this, will you? You are making me see things—"

There! By the pool—A figure had slipped down the moonlit steps of the porch and into the shadows by the swimming pool.

John Moore, up on the wall, strained his eyes to see through the gloom. "If that is Clench trying to find me—"

The figure appeared again for an instant in the bright moonlight on the steps to the middle terrace. John saw him distinctly. It was not Clench. It was a smaller, stouter man than Clench—It was Manuel Lopez. Having reached the level he once more slunk into the shadows. John saw him again on the steps to the first level and still again near the lower house.

There came to John's straining ears a ight faint tap on wood repeated at intervals; the sound of iron bolts slipping in their grooves; a sentence begun and abruptly stopped; then silence.

"This is getting entirely too thick to suit an amateur like myself," thought John Moore. "I don't get the combination at all. It is a pity I didn't cut out a few blue prints and take a heavy course in Harold MacGrath some place along the line. A man never knows what he needs in time. I will just have to carry on with my simple little plans."

He stood up, held taut the rope fastened in the tree above him, and walked backward down the outside of the wall. Once on the ground he looked about him. The hilltop lay in brilliant moonlight; at its foot were the cottonwoods and the huts of the Mexicans. He knew Ramon's house. He had taken the pains to walk by it in the afternoon.

"It is just as well I got out of that garden for a little. I was getting imaginative in there. It will do me good to see the Ambassador." Keeping close in by the wall he moved down the hill to the road. Along this he walked boldly. "If they do see me they will think it a Mexican," he thought.

As he stooped before Ramon's house a man who had been sitting on the doorstep arose. "Senor," greeted Ramon quietly. "Eef you weel come into my house—" he stood aside that John might precede him.

It was a small room with no windows. A fire burned on the tiny hearth. John crossed to this and waited until Ramon had bolted the door. The two men shook hands as if they were friends of long standing. "I am mighty glad to see you," said John Moore.

"Gracious, senor. De senorita tol' me you help her mucho."

"Not yet. How is the sick baby?"

Ramon stared, then shrugged. "Dat was a leetle lie, senor, I hav' to see de senorita an' tell her I come back."

"And that is the way you have to do it. By Jove, Ramon, that is a damned bad lot of men over there."

"Si, senor. I tol' you. De senorita—she not know how ver' bad dey are."

"And she is not going to if I can prevent it. Ramon, I am going to take her to Tucson tomorrow."

"Bueno, senor, I tink you do dat dis morning'."

"Well, you are some thinker! Now—if they will let her go—and lend me Roderiguez's car—"

"No, senor."

"That's what I think. Miss Henshaw told me there are no other cars?"

"No, senor."

"Then we will have to go horseback. I walked up that arroyo back of the house this afternoon. Couldn't you stake out a couple of horses in that big clump of mesquite trees up there? All saddled and ready to go—any minute? With some food and water?"

"Si, senor. In one hour I do heem."

"Fine business. Which is the shortest road to the railroad?"

"De trail in dat arroyo leads to de Magdalena road, senor. De railroad is dere. But you mus' not go to Magdalena, senor. Dose men weel tink you go to Magdalena an' even eef—somethi' get de matta wid de automobeel—I can ride faster horseback dan you wid de senorita, senor."

"Right. But still if we could get a head start—"

Ramon shook his head earnestly. "Anywhere in Mexico dey find you—dey stop you, senor. Even in Nogales. You mus' not go dat way."

"How then? By Sasabe?"

PROGRESS MADE ON NEW PLANT

Contractors are making rapid progress on the construction of the new tunnel kiln plant of the Homer Laughlin China company. Work of laying concrete has practically been completed. It is believed that the clay shop will begin operations about the middle of October.

WEIRTON BRIDGE PLAN APPROVED

The U. S. War Department has announced final record of their approval of the application of the Weirton-Steubenville Bridge company, which was given some months ago.

The work on the new bridge piers by the Dravo Construction company is proceeding steadily and rapidly. The company has 65 men at work. They have a mixer boat, two derrick boats, and two land whirlers on the job. The piers will not be ready for structural work until spring 1928. It was announced today.

One caisson was placed last week and another this week and they were concreted to hold them. More concrete is being poured and extension coffers are being built to be placed on top of the caissons.

The piers are to rest on the rock under the river. Rock was found 32 to 35 feet beneath the level of a pool stage of water.

Workmen are getting ready for the Ohio pier and anchorage, which reaches Stanton boulevard from which roadway the approach to the bridge will be from the north and south both. On the West Virginia shore they are sinking the anchorage pier.

Services will be held tomorrow at the usual hours in the various churches of the city. Pulpit of the Christian church will be occupied by Rev. C. Melvin McKay.

SYNOPSIS.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mix-up in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's and all go to the ranch, where John meets Mannuel Lopez, Roderiguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle. He learns that Morton's business with these men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO.

"Watch!" though John Moore in the shadows. "Why, he did not lend me any watch. What the devil! That is an excuse to get into my room. He's walking down there now."

He heard Clench rap on the door. This, John remembered, stood open, right by the bed.

Clench's voice again. "That's all right, Mr. Moore. I just came for my watch—Thanks. I can find it easy enough on the bureau—"

"By Jove!" puzzled John. "He sounds as if he were talking to me and I were answering him. He's in my room. No, he's out again."

Clench was saying. "Goodnight, sir."

John heard him walk down the long porch and halt midway for an instant to call, "I got it all right. Buenas noches."

"Well, I'll be damned," exclaimed John Moore. He stood straining his ears to hear more.

But there was no more to hear. The silence of the night closed over the words Clench had spoken as the waters of a pool close over the stone thrown into them. The silence deepened and spread; sinking from terrace to terrace, circling out beneath the shadows of the trees.

The wail of the dove in the pepper tree throbbed through the silence. "Who's that? Who's that? Who's that?"

John Moore shook himself a little. "It is just as well you spoke up, you calamity wailer, you," he told the bird under his breath. "I was forgetting to breath? I haven't learned to be nonchalant in melodrama yet. Give me time. Let me figure this thing out."

"Clench went to my room to get his watch. He told Roderiguez so. He told me so when he reached my door. And as far as I could judge from down here in the garden I told him to go ahead and get his blamed watch off the bureau. He went into the room, found the watch all right, came out and thanked me for letting him get it. That I was not there was a detail which did not bother him at all. Naturally, he thought it would not bother a man who could find that watch on that bureau. And he did find it. He told Roderiguez so. Wait a minute, now!

"Clench told Roderiguez to begin with that he was going to my room for his watch. As his watch was not in my room he did not go for it. But Roderiguez must have thought he went for the watch. Now we are coming. He was fooling Roderiguez—not me. And he continued to fool Roderiguez When he discovered I was not in bed—and he could easily discover that by touching the bed from the door way—he spoke as if I were there. Clench did not disclose my absence. Why not? Obviously he was standing with me against Roderiguez.

"Why would he do that? Why did he trouble himself to come to my room at all tonight? He could have seen me easily enough in the morning—

War Against Intoxicated Drivers

As a result of enactment of the Creighton law, which became effective in Ohio on August 2, thus providing more stringent punishment for recklessness on the highways, Cleveland today launched a campaign against the menace of the intoxicated automobile driver.

Recognizing the fact that a jail term is more effective than a nominal fine for the motorist who mixes alcohol with gasoline, but at the same time desirous of keeping cash penalities in the city coffers, the Cleveland Automobile club has drafted for presentation to council an ordinance to conform with the state enactment.

The new state law provides that any person driving while under the influence of intoxicants shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $500, or shall be imprisoned for not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or both, and that the offender's right to operate a car shall be suspended for not less than six months nor more than one year. For a second offense a motorist shall be deprived of the right to drive for not less than one year nor more than five.

East Liverpool's ordinance for the punishment of intoxicated drivers is much less stringent.

As the Cleveland Automobile club points out, the state law can, of course, be invoked in any city, but to do so would divert fines thus assessed from the municipal treasury into the coffers of the state. For this reason uniformity of state and city enactments would give the fines of offenders to the community which suffers from their recklessness.

East Liverpool solons would make no mistake in emulating the example of the Forest City, while the enactment would provide the means of coping with the motor maniac who endangers sober and careful drivers as well as himself.

The Unfamiliar Bible

The other day, as everybody knows, the Prince of Wales made a speech at the dedication of the new international bridge across the Niagara river. The press report of his speech quoted him as saying that "to seek peace and insure it is the first and highest duty" of this and future generations.

The reporter misquoted the Prince. His Royal Highness was quoting the Bible. The reporter obviously was not on quoting terms with that book and consequently failed to understand the Prince's words.

Edward of England, as a man who both heard the speech and knows his Bible points out, was alluding to verse II from Chapter III of the second epistle of Peter, in which the words are "seek peace, and ensue it."

Says the same keen listener, speaking of the reporter and of Americans in general who didn't recognize the allusion:

"The young man of today knows less about the Bible than the young man of any generation for 300 years.

"And he is missing a lot by this ignorance. I speak now from the standpoint of literary knowledge, rather than religious knowledge. Literature is packed with Scriptural words, allusions and unmarked quotations; and the reader who does not recognize them is losing the flavor of the writing."

Not too many persons in this day even know that literature has a "flavor" which it is delightful to recognize and enjoy. Present generations haven't time for such tastes.

Gentlemen's Preference

Ever since Anita Loos pointed out so effectively that "gentlemen prefer blondes" the old war of rivalry between blondes and brunettes has been waged with renewed vigor. Friends of each type are forever coming forward with new claims for their own favorite. The blondes rather lose the argument in two recent instances.

The first case, described at length on the front page of a metropolitan daily newspaper is based, on an ad in the "Help Wanted" columns of the New York World. An advertising agency, wanting a stenographer of real worth, specified "brunette" in its published ad. The reporter who went to ask "Why?" learned much from the vice president of the concern.

"Past experience with blonde or red-haired employes," said that individual, "shows they possess the following negative qualities." He then enumerates. They are temperamental, too independent, irregular, tactless, bluffers, and inefficient.

That's terrible. Now listen to the testimony of a Liberty, Mo., parson who has married 4,500 couples.

"The red-haired girl always seems to have the attitude of 'here's my man, tie him to me'; the brunette is serious and seems to take the ceremony in earnest, but the dumbest bride, who often seems to wonder what it's all about, is the blonde."

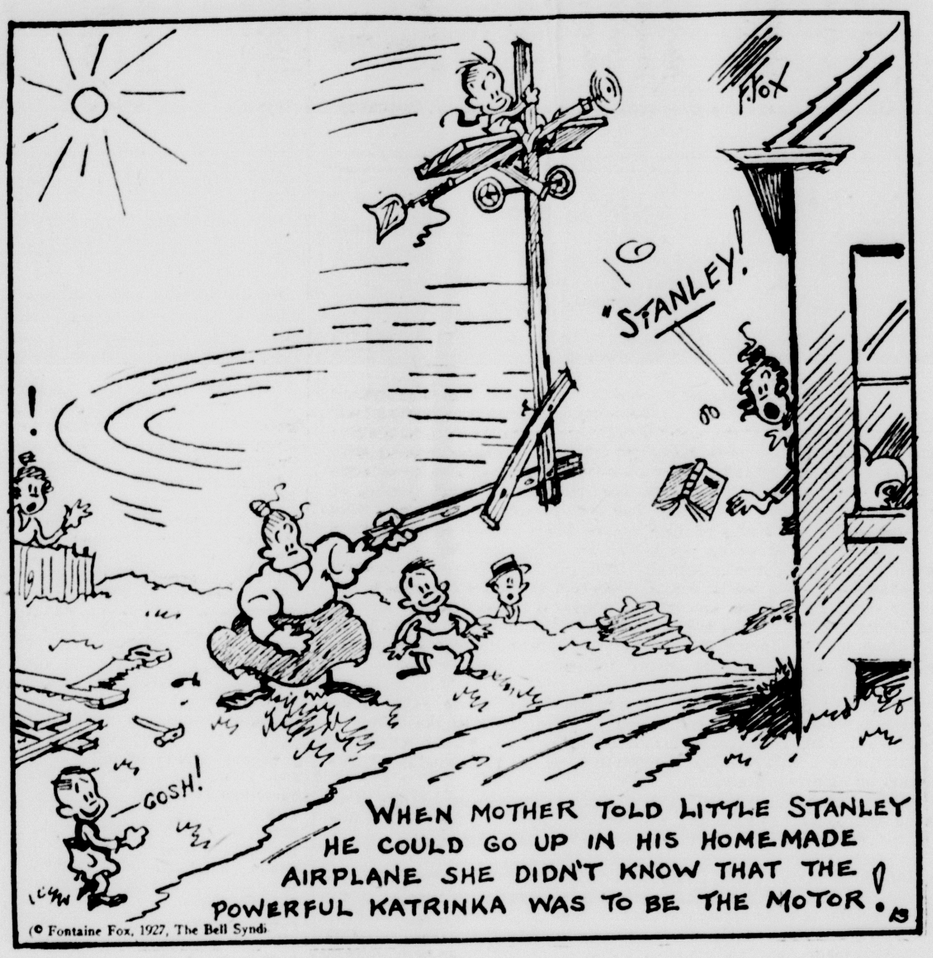
All of which may be true. We don't know. But granting all the faults of blondes, as set forth by the advertising agency and the parson, the main fact at issue—the social preferences of gentlemen—seems to remain unsettled and even undiscussed.

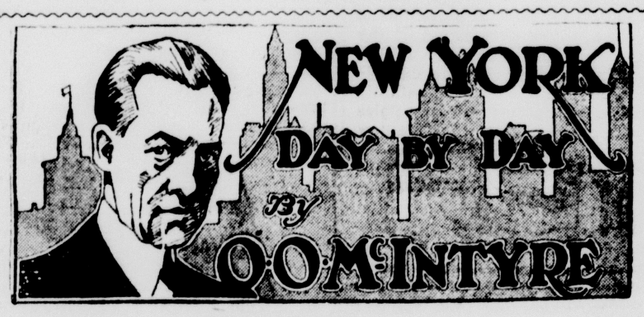
When Premier Baldwin and Vice President Dawes met the other day, they neglected a great opportunity to compare pipes.

When the internal revenue bureau rules that authors' royalties are "unearned income," a host of authors rise up and inform the I. R. B. that it doesn't know what it's talking about.

Sacco and Vanzetti may be executed for murder, but the same old debate as to whether they're guilty will go right on.

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang—— By Fontaine Fox





NEW YORK, Aug 13,—Manhattan's superiority in handling big crowds in emergency is one of the most striking things about the metropolis. No celebration has proved too big and there have been some whoppers in the last few years.

There are no hard riding Russian methods. The police have a coaxing manner that never seems to fail. I have often noted a flying wedge cutting a path through a jam. It suggests a keen blade going through a cake.

"Give way a little, please, ladies and gentlemen" a polite captain will suggest and the crowds respond to the polite gesture almost invariably. About the only time the crowds got out of bounds in recent years was at the Valentino bier and even then it resulted only in a few smashed windows.

All this, despite the fact it is the largest city and nowhere is curiosity so pronounced. The departure of a movie star on the first lap of the journey to Hollywood will often pack one of the large railroad terminals.

The police have been trained to know that the spirit of a crowd, touched by fear, is destructive. It is a spark that may incite a holocaust. So their attitude becomes jovial and coaxing. If someone becomes obstreperous he is shamed out of it. It is the sort of horse sense often called psychology.

It has been possible to fool a crowd by spiriting the celebrity through some secret passage. This is rarely done for a crowd thus fooled often becomes dangerous. It was tried once many years ago with a puglist champion and many were trampled.

A martial triangle of Greenwich Village has spawned a literary triangle. A novelist left his wife for one he considered a fairer charmer and then wrote a book about it. His deserted wife encompassed her reactions in a volume. And now the woman who caused it all has given her novelized version.

George Ade, Nellie Revell and Jay House have recently put my first name in quotes—thus "Odd." A silly name, but my own and I prefer it unquoted.

Two comedians in a musical show have a hilarious face smacking scene which starts off with gentle pats and grows into thunderous broadsides. A remarkable thing is that there has not yet appeared a press agent fable that they have quit speaking off stage.

Many believe the temporary breach that sprang up between Lew Fields and Joe Weber resulted from years of Fields choking and eye-gouging Weber, although it was attributed to other things. And that Buster Keaton had any affection at all for his father after being slammed around as he was most of his life is a big boost for filial devotion.

An uncle once gave me a swift, well placed and deserved kick. Ever after in passing him I would give a quick involuntary bend as though expecting another.

The stranger who leaves Manhattan's roar for Brooklyn is invariably impressed with the peaceful charm across the bridge. It might be a city hundreds of miles away. There are yards where children play and keeping is not entrusted so much to servants. There is a large section of Brooklyn clinging to the old-fashioned Monday washday and servants remain "hired girls" with Thursday afternoon off. Home life has not become mechanically standardized and one has a feeling that most husbands are at home at night. That is often a phenomenon in Manhattan.

HASKINS' LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Safeguarding Your Purse—II.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—Better Business bureaus have found that almost every merchant at times has inaccuracies or misleading statements in his advertisements. Hence they advise the public that mercantile advertising is neither wholly honest nor dishonest. But in financial advertising, they say, a man is either honest or he is a crook.

Time was, and not so many years ago, when much of the mercantile advertising in this country was replete with untruthfulness. Advertising was regarded then not so much a sales medium as a means of getting the customer into the store where the real selling would be done. There was little talk or thought about ethics in advertising. Merchants justified themselves in their misleading advertising by saying that the public understood that advertising was very much like the ballyhoo at a circus or street fair. Furthermore, they contended, the customer did not have to buy until he had satisfied himself that he was getting full value or more for his money.

Time came, however, when the public understood only too well what advertising was and when the customer who had been "stung" once too often began to let out a roar that was anything but good-natured or frolicsome. Then advertising lost much of its drawing power, with the result that advertisers became dissatisfied and advertising agents and agencies decided that something had to be done about it.

Out of this situation grew the movement that is crystalized now in the Better Business bureaus, local and national, and that has vastly improved conditions for everybody concerned. Its avowed purpose is to build public confidence in business by fostering truth and accuracy in advertising. Much of what has been accomplished is attributed to the cooperation of newspapers and other publications, and much to the inculcating in the minds of advertisers the truth of the maxim laid down several centuries ago by Cervantes—"Honesty is the best policy."

How the Bureaus Work.

When a case of inaccurate or misleading or untruthful mercantile advertising is brought to the attention of a bureau, the first step taken is to appeal to the advertiser to conform to established ethical standards. Very often this is all that is necessary, for frequently the merchant himself is not aware of the questionable nature of his advertising or has unwittingly made mistakes. Even in cases in which advertisers have deliberately edged over to the shady side of advertising, a warning from the Better Business bureau usually suffices to bring about a change of policy.

When an advertiser persists in questionable practices the next step is to appeal to the newspapers, or other mediums used by the advertiser, to refuse to accept the questionable advertisements.

In 99 cases out of 100 this brings about the desireed result, it is said, but when appeals to the advertiser and the newspaper fail then recourse is had to the law where there are laws against false advertising, and most states have them. The Better Business bureau goes to the district or prosecuting attorney and swears out a warrant for the arrest of the recalcitrant advertiser and the case is aired in court in due course of events, usually with confusion and disaster to the advertiser, for a bureau will not proceed to extreme measures unless it is certain of the justice of its action.

Illustration of what a local may do in dealing with mercantile advertising is found in the work of the Washington Better Business bureau which during the last fiscal year handled 3438 cases, of which 1629 were shopping reports and 627 were consumer complaints.

Much of the most effective work of the locals is done through conferences with advertisers. Groups within specific trades are brought together for round table discussions of problems and evils in their own particular advertising. Numerous trade terms and practices that have been misunderstood by the public are eliminated through agreements reached at these conferences, which invariably are characterized by frankness and apparent sincerity that are reflected in more ethical advertising. New standards are compiled for the guidance of advertisers who desire to demonstrate good faith to the public through their advertising.

Comparative Prices a Problem.

In practically all trade groups it is found that comparative price advertising is a serious problem. This is the advertising in which merchandise is offered at prices materially below stated original prices. It is not in itself an evil, but the Better Business Bureau contend that the exaggeration and lack of foundation for many advertised values constantly jeopardize that most valuable of assets—public confidence. Advertising of values three and four times the sale price may be entirely truthful, the bureaus state, and yet such advertisements are destructive because they do not inspire public confidence.

Spectacular sales constitute a very real evil that the bureaus are combating vigilantly and effectively. In many communities the establishment that was constantly advertising a "fire" sale is now a thing of the past. Similarly, "going out-of-business," "bankruptcy," and "auction" sales are less common than they once were. Sometimes these sales are bona fide, but where a Better Business bureau functions they must be or they will not be tolerated.

In its cooperation with advertisers the Washington local has issued a set of "Standards for Accurate Advertising." It includes a statement of just what may be done legitimately in the way of comparative price advertising and definitions of trade terms and names of materials that may be used. For example, "Fashioned or full fashioned applies only to hosiery knitted flat and thereafter seamed down the back, having stitches dropped at the course beginning where the contour of the leg narrows," and "Merchandise advertised as wool or linen shall mean all wool or all linen."

By way of general standards it sets forth that superlative and extravagant statements should not be used. Such phrases as "greatest values in the city" or "biggest purchase ever made" can not be proved and are misleading. The word "free" should be used in advertising with great caution, it is stated. The true meaning is "without obligation" and the customer should not be obliged to make a purchase or perform a service to obtain the "free" article. Illustrations should accurately portray the merchandise on sale. Store signs should be governed by the same standards as other advertisements. "Seconds," "irregular," or "imperfect" are the approved terms for advertising merchandise which is not perfect; "run of the mill," "sub-standard," and sillar terms should not be used.

That an advertisement should be believable as well as truthful is the thing of primary importance, it is stated, for public belief and reader confidence are one and the same.

"It is good business to 'lean over backward' to show the public that advertisers are endeavoring to prevent any misunderstanding."

NARROWING DOWN TO THE FACTS

There were two brothers; a truthful brother and a brother who was the most incorrigible and persistent liar in the county. As a result of the latter's chronic embellishments of facts the whole family was getting a bad reputation. The truthful brother took him in hand.

"Look here, Bill," he said, "you're disgracing the name. This thing has got to stop. The next time you start in to exaggerate just keep your eye on me. When you begin to go too far I'll give you a hard look and that'll be a signal to you to begin soft-pedaling."

The very next day the two brothers were in the company of a group of other fellow-citizens. The talk drifted to the subject of big city hotels. This was a cue for the liar.

"Speakin' of hotels," he said, "I know a hotel out in Californy that is twenty-two stories high, has a thousand rooms in it, eight dining rooms, fourteen bowling alleys, twenty-two swimming pools, thirty soda water fountains, forty-eight billiard halls and——" here he caught a hard look from the good brother——"and is three feet and a half wdie."

War Against Intoxicated Drivers

As a result of enactment of the Creighton law, which became effective in Ohio on August 2, thus providing more stringent punishment for recklessness on the highways, Cleveland today launched a campaign against the menace of the intoxicated automobile driver.

Recognizing the fact that a jail term is more effective than a nominal fine for the motorist who mixes alcohol with gasoline, but at the same time desirous of keeping cash penalities in the city coffers, the Cleveland Automobile club has drafted for presentation to council an ordinance to conform with the state enactment.

The new state law provides that any person driving while under the influence of intoxicants shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $500, or shall be imprisoned for not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or both, and that the offender's right to operate a car shall be suspended for not less than six months nor more than one year. For a second offense a motorist shall be deprived of the right to drive for not less than one year nor more than five.

East Liverpool's ordinance for the punishment of intoxicated drivers is much less stringent.

As the Cleveland Automobile club points out, the state law can, of course, be invoked in any city, but to do so would divert fines thus assessed from the municipal treasury into the coffers of the state. For this reason uniformity of state and city enactments would give the fines of offenders to the community which suffers from their recklessness.

East Liverpool solons would make no mistake in emulating the example of the Forest City, while the enactment would provide the means of coping with the motor maniac who endangers sober and careful drivers as well as himself.

The Unfamiliar Bible

The other day, as everybody knows, the Prince of Wales made a speech at the dedication of the new international bridge across the Niagara river. The press report of his speech quoted him as saying that "to seek peace and insure it is the first and highest duty" of this and future generations.

The reporter misquoted the Prince. His Royal Highness was quoting the Bible. The reporter obviously was not on quoting terms with that book and consequently failed to understand the Prince's words.

Edward of England, as a man who both heard the speech and knows his Bible points out, was alluding to verse II from Chapter III of the second epistle of Peter, in which the words are "seek peace, and ensue it."

Says the same keen listener, speaking of the reporter and of Americans in general who didn't recognize the allusion:

"The young man of today knows less about the Bible than the young man of any generation for 300 years.

"And he is missing a lot by this ignorance. I speak now from the standpoint of literary knowledge, rather than religious knowledge. Literature is packed with Scriptural words, allusions and unmarked quotations; and the reader who does not recognize them is losing the flavor of the writing."

Not too many persons in this day even know that literature has a "flavor" which it is delightful to recognize and enjoy. Present generations haven't time for such tastes.

Gentlemen's Preference

Ever since Anita Loos pointed out so effectively that "gentlemen prefer blondes" the old war of rivalry between blondes and brunettes has been waged with renewed vigor. Friends of each type are forever coming forward with new claims for their own favorite. The blondes rather lose the argument in two recent instances.

The first case, described at length on the front page of a metropolitan daily newspaper is based, on an ad in the "Help Wanted" columns of the New York World. An advertising agency, wanting a stenographer of real worth, specified "brunette" in its published ad. The reporter who went to ask "Why?" learned much from the vice president of the concern.

"Past experience with blonde or red-haired employes," said that individual, "shows they possess the following negative qualities." He then enumerates. They are temperamental, too independent, irregular, tactless, bluffers, and inefficient.

That's terrible. Now listen to the testimony of a Liberty, Mo., parson who has married 4,500 couples.

"The red-haired girl always seems to have the attitude of 'here's my man, tie him to me'; the brunette is serious and seems to take the ceremony in earnest, but the dumbest bride, who often seems to wonder what it's all about, is the blonde."

All of which may be true. We don't know. But granting all the faults of blondes, as set forth by the advertising agency and the parson, the main fact at issue—the social preferences of gentlemen—seems to remain unsettled and even undiscussed.

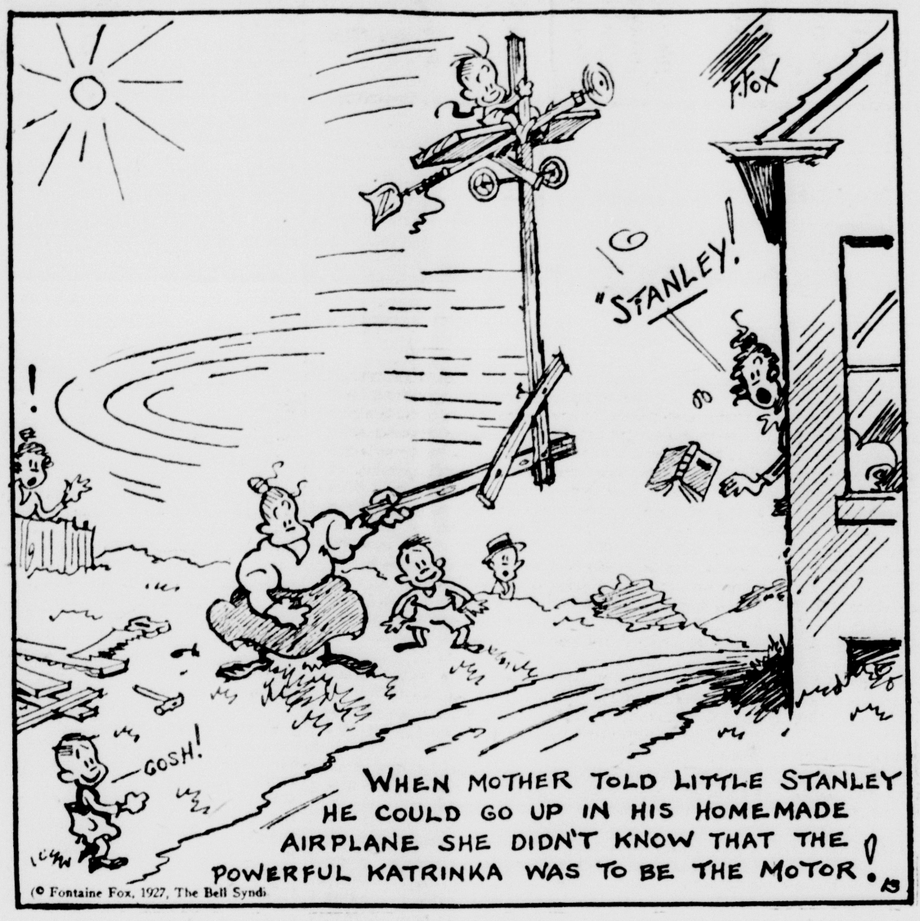
The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang—— By Fontaine Fox



NEW YORK, Aug 13,—Manhattan's superiority in handling big crowds in emergency is one of the most striking things about the metropolis. No celebration has proved too big and there have been some whoppers in the last few years.

There are no hard riding Russian methods. The police have a cagey manner that never seems to fail. I have often noted a flying wedge cutting a path through a jam. It suggests a keen blade going through a cake.

"Give way a little, please, ladies and gentlemen" a polite captain will suggest and the crowds respond to the polite gesture almost invariably. About the only time the crowds got out of bounds in recent years was at the Valentino bier and even then it resulted only in a few smashed windows.

All this, despite the fact it is the largest city and nowhere is curiosity so pronounced. The departure of a movie star on the first lap of the journey to Hollywood will often pack one of the large railroad terminals.

The police have been trained to know that the spirit of a crowd, touched by fear, is destructive. It is a spark that may incite a holocaust. So their attitude becomes jovial and coaxing. If someone becomes obstreperous he is shamed out of it. It is the sort of horse sense often called psychology.

It has been possible to fool a crowd by spiriting the celebrity through some secret passage. This is rarely done for a crowd thus fooled often becomes dangerous. It was tried once many years ago with a puglist champion and many were trampled.

A martial triangle of Greenwich Village has spawned a literary triangle. A novelist left his wife for one he considered a fairer charmer and then wrote a book about it. His deserted wife encompassed her reactions in a volume. And now the woman who caused it all has given her novelized version.

George Ade, Nellie Revell and Jay House have recently put my first name in quotes—thus "Odd." A silly name, but my own and I prefer it unquoted.

Two comedians in a musical show have a hilarious face smacking scene which starts off with gentle pats and grows into thunderous broadsides. A remarkable thing is that there has not yet appeared a press agent fable that they have quit speaking off stage.

Many believe the temporary breach that sprang up between Lew Fields and Joe Weber resulted from years of Fields choking and eye-gouging Weber, although it was attributed to other things. And that Buster Keaton had any affection at all for his father after being slammed around as he was most of his life is a big boost for filial devotion.

An uncle once gave me a swift, well placed and deserved kick. Ever after in passing him I would give a quick involuntary bend as though expecting another.

The stranger who leaves Manhattan's roar for Brooklyn is invariably impressed with the peaceful charm across the bridge. It might be a city hundreds of miles away. There are yards where children play and keeping is not entrusted so much to servants. There is a large section of Brooklyn clinging to the old-fashioned Monday washday and servants remain hired girls" with Thursday afternoon off. Home life has not become mechanically standardized and one has a feeling that most husbands are at home at night. That is often a phenomenon in Manhattan.

HASKINS' LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Safeguarding Your Purse—II.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—Better Business bureaus have found that almost every merchant at times has inaccuracies or misleading statements in his advertisements. Hence they advise the public that mercantile advertising is neither wholly honest nor dishonest. But in financial advertising, they say, a man is either honest or he is a crook.

Time was, and not so many years ago, when much of the mercantile advertising in this country was replete with untruthfulness. Advertising was regarded then not so much a sales medium as a means of getting the customer into the store where the real selling would be done. There was little talk or thought about ethics in advertising. Merchants justified themselves in their misleading advertising by saying that the public understood that advertising was very much like the ballyhoo at a circus or street fair. Furthermore, they contended, the customer did not have to buy until he had satisfied himself that he was getting full value or more for his money.

Time came, however, when the public understood only too well what advertising was and when the customer who had been "stung" once too often began to let out a roar that was anything but good-natured or frolicsome. Then advertising lost much of its drawing power, with the result that advertisers became dissatisfied and advertising agents and agencies decided that something had to be done about it.

Out of this situation grew the movement that is crystalized now in the Better Business bureaus, local and national, and that has vastly improved conditions for everybody concerned. Its avowed purpose is to build public confidence in business by fostering truth and accuracy in advertising. Much of what has been accomplished is attributed to the cooperation of newspapers and other publications, and much to the inculcating in the minds of advertisers the truth of the maxim laid down several centuries ago by Cervantes—"Honesty is the best policy."

How the Bureaus Work.

When a case of inaccurate or misleading or untruthful mercantile advertising is brought to the attention of a bureau, the first step taken is to appeal to the advertiser to conform to established ethical standards. Very often this is all that is necessary, for frequently the merchant himself is not aware of the questionable nature of his advertising or has unwittingly made mistakes. Even in cases in which advertisers have deliberately edged over to the shady side of advertising, a warning from the Better Business bureau usually suffices to bring about a change of policy.

When an advertiser persists in questionable practices the next step is to appeal to the newspapers, or other mediums used by the advertiser, to refuse to accept the questionable advertisements.

In 99 cases out of 100 this brings about the desireed result, it is said, but when appeals to the advertiser and the newspaper fail then recourse is had to the law where there are laws against false advertising, and most states have them. The Better Business bureau goes to the district or prosecuting attorney and swears out a warrant for the arrest of the recalcitrant advertiser and the case is aired in court in due course of events, usually with confusion and disaster to the advertiser, for a bureau will not proceed to extreme measures unless it is certain of the justice of its action.

Illustration of what a local may do in dealing with mercantile advertising is found in the work of the Washington Better Business bureau which during the last fiscal year handled 3438 cases, of which 1629 were shopping reports and 627 were consumer complaints.

Much of the most effective work of the locals is done through conferences with advertisers. Groups within specific trades are brought together for round table discussions of problems and evils in their own particular advertising. Numerous trade terms and practices that have been misunderstood by the public are eliminated through agreements reached at these conferences, which invariably are characterized by frankness and apparent sincerity that are reflected in more ethical advertising. New standards are compiled for the guidance of advertisers who desire to demonstrate good faith to the public through their advertising.

Comparative Prices a Problem.

In practically all trade groups it is found that comparative price advertising is a serious problem. This is the advertising in which merchandise is offered at prices materially below stated original prices. It is not in itself an evil, but the Better Business Bureau contend that the exaggeration and lack of foundation for many advertised values constantly jeopardize that most valuable of assets—public confidence. Advertising of values three and four times the sale price may be entirely truthful, the bureaus state, and yet such advertisements are destructive because they do not inspire public confidence.

Spectacular sales constitute a very real evil that the bureaus are combating vigilantly and effectively. In many communities the establishment that was constantly advertising a "fire" sale is now a thing of the past. Similarly, "going out-of-business," "bankruptcy," and "auction" sales are less common than they once were. Sometimes these sales are bona fide, but where a Better Business bureau functions they must be or they will not be tolerated.

In its cooperation with advertisers the Washington local has issued a set of "Standards for Accurate Advertising." It includes a statement of just what may be done legitimately in the way of comparative price advertising and definitions of trade terms and names of materials that may be used. For example, "Fashioned or full fashioned applies only to hosiery knitted flat and thereafter seamed down the back, having stitches dropped at the course beginning where the contour of the leg narrows," and "Merchandise advertised as wool or linen shall mean all wool or all linen."

By way of general standards it sets forth that superlative and extravagant statements should not be used. Such phrases as "greatest values in the city" or "biggest purchase ever made" can not be proved and are misleading. The word "free" should be used in advertising with great caution, it is stated. The true meaning is "without obligation" and the customer should not be obliged to make a purchase or perform a service to obtain the "free" article. Illustrations should accurately portray the merchandise on sale. Store signs should be governed by the same standards as other advertisements. "Seconds," "irregular," or "imperfect" are the approved terms for advertising merchandise which is not perfect; "run of the mill," "sub-standard," and sillar terms should not be used.

That an advertisement should be believable as well as truthful is the thing of primary importance, it is stated, for public belief and reader confidence are one and the same.

"It is good business to 'lean over backward' to show the public that advertisers are endeavoring to prevent any misunderstanding."

THE FALL OF MAN

A SERMONETTE.

By REV. FREDERIC A. DEAN
Pastor of Second Presbyterian Church.

So God created man in His own image, in the image of God, created He him; male and female created he them. Gen. 1:27.

I.

Being made in the image of God, means first of all that man was created with a mind, reason or intelligence; created an intelligent, free, spiritual and immortal being. Perfectly conformed to the Divine image, constituted his glorious excellences, only these were finite and not infinite. Being created with rational powers his understanding was wonderfully enriched with knowledge which was neither acquired by study, nor limited to a small portion of things; but his knowledge embraced the whole creation of God. Man was created with the faculty of speech, the direct gift of rational utterance, the capacity of attaching words to ideas. The portrait of the first man given in Genesis is totally different from the man pictured by modern scientific theories of his bestial origin. He had an insight into the newly created universe, the wisdom and infinite goodness of the Creator, no man has had since the fall. He had a resplendent knowledge of the Deity such as none has had since, for he was an immediate partaker of the Divine nature, a partaker of the Divine holiness.

II.

In the second place, the image of God, consisted in the happy state of man, which was the fruit of His holiness. He resembled the infinitely blessed Creator, being as yet innocent of those evils, which would destroy that felicity; enjoying those pleasures which were worthy of His pure nature and glorious state.

His body, formed immediately of God, had an exquisite perfection, in all its organs and parts, beautiful in form, without defect or blemish, or disease, or the weakening results of generations of sins and misuse.

III.

In the third place, God's image was resplendent in man's dominion and power over the new creation. It was a solemn investiture of glory when God summoned the creatures before him to receive their names; "and whatsoever Adam called every living creation, that was the name thereof." God made Adam the greatest zoologist the world has ever known.

IV.

In the fourth class, man of all creatures was created a moral being and subject to law and capable of law. Law is the declaration of the Creator's will, requiring obedience, and threatening penalty on the failure thereof. Reason and free will must be the quality of the nature capable of law. The very idea of God, of a Supreme Being, excludes all possibility of obligation to any other but Him. The law contains the principles of good and evil, pointing out man's duty to God, to himself, to his fellow creatures. Human reason attests the law as holy, just and good, and the obligation to it is eternal, being the unchangeable will of God; grounded on the natural and immutable relations between God and man, and between man and the creatures.

Accordingly, exercising His sovereign power in all things; and to make a test of man's obedience, God entered into a covenant with man; He forbids him to eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, "for in the day thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die." This absolutely compelled man to choose between duty and happiness, disobedience and misery; death upon disobedience, promise of life upon obedience. Man was created in a perfectly holy, happy state, and whether he retained or lost it depended wholly upon his free choice. He was invested with perfect grace, yet susceptible to sinful impressions. He was set upon by a most subtle and wicked spirit, was tempted and fell from his pure and holy estate; lost the Divine image out of his nature, both for himself and his posterity. The grand mission of the Second Adam to humanity is to persuade men "to put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness;" "the new man which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him."

LESSON

Golden Text—We shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, Thy holy temple.—Psa. 65. 4c.

2 Sam. 2, 3, 4.

3 And his men that were with him did David bring up, every man with his household: and they dwelt in the cities of Hebron.

4 And the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah.

And they told David, saying, That men of Jabesh-gilead were they had buried Saul.

2 Sam. 5. 1-3.

1 Then came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and spake, saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh.

2 In times past, when Saul was king over us, it was thou that leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and Jehovah said to thee, Thou shalt be shepherd of my people Israel, and thou shalt be prince over Israel.

3 So all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron; and king David made a covenant with them in Hebron before Jehovah: and they anointed David king over Israel.

2 Sam. 6. 12-15.

12 And it was told king David, saying, Jehovah hath blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that pertaineth unto him, because of the ark of God. And David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with joy.

13 And it was so, that, when they that bare the ark of Jehovah had gone six paces, he sacrificed an ox and a fatling.

14 And David danced before Jehovah with all his might; and David was girded with a linen ephod.

15 So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of Jehovah with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.

THE SECRET OF MOST EYE TROUBLES.
We are continually warning people against the dangers of eye-strain because eyestrain is the secret of nearly all eye troubles—and eyestrain let it be explained, is not a disease to be overcome by drugs but is a mechanical defect to be corrected by glasses.
The strain on the eyes, whether you are conscious of it or not cannot be borne by the eye alone. They are too sensitive to stand it, so nature, to prevent severe optical injury, transfers the result of such strain to other organs of the body—most frequently to the nervous system.
Thus it happens that the nerves generally become deranged and cause nervousness, bad headaches, neuralgic pains and other nervous afflictions.
In many cases people who suffer eye-strain are wholly unconscious of the fact—apparently they see as well as ever, especially in the case of children.
Investigation, in thousands of cases, has fully proven that eye-strain is directly responsible for the condition of a great number of children who are unwell, nervous and backward in their studies.
However, eye-strain can be cured. The sooner it is discovered the more easily and quickly can the cure be effected—and the only way by which this can be done is by wearing glasses that will enable the eyes to perform their function properly without straining the muscles of accommodation.

THE SECRET OF MOST EYE TROUBLES.

We are continually warning people against the dangers of eyestrain because eyestrain is the secret of nearly all eye troubles—and eyestrain let it be explained, is not a disease to be overcome by drugs but is a mechanical defect to be corrected by glasses.

The strain on the eyes, whether you are conscious of it or not cannot be borne by the eye alone. They are too sensitive to stand it, so nature, to prevent severe optical injury, transfers the result of such strain to other organs of the body—most frequently to the nervous system.

Thus it happens that the nerves generally become deranged and cause nervousness, bad headaches, neuralgic pains and other nervous afflictions.

In many cases people who suffer eye-strain are wholly unconscious of the fact—apparently they see as well as ever, especially in the case of children.

Investigation, in thousands of cases, has fully proven that eye-strain is directly responsible for the condition of a great number of children who are unwell, nervous and backward in their studies.

However, eye-strain can be cured. The sooner it is discovered the more easily and quickly can the cure be effected—and the only way by which this can be done is by wearing glasses that will enable the eyes to perform their function properly without straining the muscles of accommodation.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST — Healing of the Demoniac

The people of Capernaum were astonished at the manner in which Jesus preached, for He spoke to them not as the scribes who preached the words of the ancient prophets did, but as One who had authority. When He appeared in the synagogues, therefore, large crowds came to hear Him.

During one service a man with an unclean spirit continued to interrupt Jesus as He preached. Jesus said only, "Hold thy peace and come out of him," and immediately the unclean spirit came out of the man.

This miracle did more to increase His fame, so that crowds followed Him wherever He went. But accompanied by His disciples, Jesus went to the home of Simon and Peter.

There they found the mother of Simon's wife lay ill with the fever. Jesus took her by the hand and lifted her up and immediately the fever left her and she ministered unto them.

WELLSVILLE POLICE SEIZE STILL AND THREE CARS

NAB FOUR MEN IN HUGE RUM HAUL ON FARM

Chief Fultz's Squad Confiscates Equipment Worth $3,000.

TO FACE FOGO

Raiders Visit Hays Place Six Miles South of Lisbon.

Arresting Frank Fusci and Patsy Cervella, of Wellsville and Peter Stell, said to be from East Liverpool, and confiscating a 200-gallon still and other equipment estimated by police to be worth more than $3,000, exclusive of two automobiles belonging to the men, Wellsville authorities last night made their biggest liquor haul since the Volstead law became effective when they raided a house on the Hays farm six miles south of Lisbon.

The raid was conducted by Chief of Police John Fultz and Officers Pugh, Cole, White, Hickman, Hanlon and Duncan. Fusci, Cervella and Stell will be given a hearing this afternoon before Mayor W. L. Fogo, probably on charges of possession and manufacturing, Chief Fultz said today, while a fourth man, know as Patsy Romano, and said to be a native of California, who was arrested as he delivered a load of gasoline to the house, will be questioned.

Fusci, Cervella and Stell, according to Chief Fultz, were arrested last night at 6:30 o'clock, police said, making their raid while the still was in operation. They were taken back to Wellsville and locked up, Chief Fultz delegating Officers Pugh, White and Hickman to conceal themselves a short distance from the house to await developments. Two hours later Romano, it is said, drove up to the house in a truck with four drums of gasoline. Romano was arrested and also taken to the city hall.

The first three taken in the raid, according to Fultz, have been under surveillance for some time.

Their rural still equipment, police say, combined to make one of the most complete distilling assemblies ever confiscated here.

Three pumps were included in the machinery used, one for pumping water from a spring below the house to a 12-foot square storage tank, an automatic pump to send water to the "still room," and a third, a hand pump, in the latter quarters for other uses.

Among the confiscated equipment and supplies were the following articles:

Forty-five 10-gallon kegs; crate of one gallon jugs (about 200); crate of empty quart bottles; funnels and testers; quantity of two-inch pipe; two-inch hose; three-quarters inch hose; yeast; 56 barrels of mash (about 2,800 gallons); 1,000 pounds of sugar; 64 five-gallon empty cans; 10 gallons of liquid said to be whisky; the still itself, gasoline burners and other accessory equipment; the truck used by Romano; Fusci's Flint touring car, and Stell's Dodge sedan.

List Ohio Cities as Possible Sites for 1927.

With 864 airports and intermediate landing fields already established in the United States, the assistant secretary of aeronautics, William P. McCracken, Jr., in a statement just issued, predicts that there will be 1,000 before the end of 1927, with the possible chance of including Wellsville and the other following Ohio cities: Colton, Alliance, Dayton, East Liverpool, Elyria, Hamilton, Hudson, Newark, Shelby and Toledo.

The department of commerce has just completed a survey of airway facilities.

"During the year," McCracken said, "more than 50 new airports have been established and twice that number of cities have set aside funds or have begun plans for modern airports. Chambers of commerce, business clubs and other civic organizations are co-operating in the effort to build up a complete airway and airport system. By the end of 1927, about 1,000 airports and intermediate fields will dot the United States from coast to coast and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico.

LAUNCH DIOCESE RETREAT MONDAY

to New York in a new "express ferry," built for him in Germany. Seventy-five feet long, this fast yacht will have three Zeppelin motors, each of 420-horsepower, turning 1,400 revolutions in a minute. That's new and exciting now. It will seem old-fashioned to Colonel Roger's daughter, who will fly from New York to Paris to take the cure on the Rue de la Paix almost as rapidly as her father will now travel from Long Island to New York.

CANADA has a "great influx of tourists and increase in business prosperity." This is expected to continue and develop with each year. Canada has given up prohibition as unsuccessful and undesirable, and the new motto is:

"See America Thirst on its Way to Canada."

THE Allies, milking all they can out of German industry, worry about "secret building of a great German army." That German cow must not grow a pair of sharp horns.

But if Russia, constantly growing stronger, with a powerful government, filled with hatred of "capitalistic Western Europe," should suddenly break loose, Western Europe would be very glad to use Germany as a bulwark and a buffer.

British clergymen say what they please about religion and startle our orthodox country. Dean Inge says Saint Paul's supposed inspiration was realy epilepsy, and he remains dean of Saint Paul's.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Gore, formerly Bishop of Oxford, says Adam and Eve are not historic, but simply represent "every man." He does not believe that Christ ever "descended into hell," but does believe in the ascension,

Many witnessed the ascension, there were no witnesses to the descent—so says the Bishop. He believes in miracles, because without such belief Christianity "would not hold its ground." He accepts evolution, and says it in no way contradicts Bible teachings.

FOR centuries men quarreled about the nature of the soul. Was it composed of solid matter or was it purely spiritual? Now science shows that there is no such thing as solid matter, every atom being only an aggregation of electrons and nuclei, tiny positive and negative charges of electricity. And we don't know what electricity IS.

PARCHMENT manuscripts, written with Latin characters in ancient Armaic, spoken by Jews in the time of Christ, found in Pompeii, have been translated. They contain slighting references to early Christians. It is hard for prosperous Christians of 1927 to realize that ancient prosperity looked upon early Christians as we look upon the Russian Bolsheviki.

THE early Christians also talked of dividing property and giving to the poor. But, as with modern Christians, it was largely words without deeds.

BOYS' TOURNEY AT Y. M. C. A.

Another tournament for members of the boys' division of the Y. M. C. A. will be started Tuesday morning. The youngsters will be divided into teams who will compete with each other in baseball. A Bible class for each team will precede the games. Members fo the winning team will be awarded prizes at the conclusion of the tournament.

SEMIAPALTINSK, Siberia, Aug 13—General Ivan Annenkov, once known as "the avenger of the Romanofs," has been captured and sentenced to death, it was announced today.

Annenkov, who was credited with ordering the slaughtering of more than 2,000 Communists and their sympathizers in Siberia, following the execution of Czar Nicholas and his family, fled to China in 1920. He and his chief of staff, Denizov, were captured a few months ago when they crossed the border into Sibera. Both were tried by a special military tribunal, and sentenced to death.

THREE-YEAR ROAD BUILDING PROGRAM IS RUSHED

COUNTY BREAKS RECORD, SAYS SURVEYOR KIRK

Every Sub-division Will Be Connected in 1928.

SPEEDS ALL JOBS

Five Steam Shovels on Youngstown - East Liverpool Link.

A road construction program the equal of which has never before been attempted in eastern Ohio is now under way in Columbiana county. At the end of the road building season next fall more improved highways will have been completed than in any other year in the history of the county.

This is the claim of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk and the board of county commissioners. The three-year program for which a bond issue of $950,000 was voted in November, 1925, will be completed in 1928, when every city, town, village and hamlet will be connected with a network of improved highways.

Lewis & Copeland, Lima, are speeding up the pouring of concrete on the road from Apple's Corners to the Youngstown and Ohio River Railroad sub-station. The concrete mixer is now near the old Smith homestead and will reach Cannons Mills within the next two weeks.

Five steam shovels are now at work on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road. Williamson, Howard & Smith, Youngstown have completed the rough grading between Williamsport and Rogers. One steam shovel has been started at Rogers and another at Williamsport. These two shovels will meet at the Elkton-Clarkson road when the grading of that thoroughfare will be started. This company also holds the contract for the grading of this road from Elkton to Clarkson.

The Mellert-Weidener Construction company of Lima has finished the pouring of concrete on the last section of the Hanover-Salem road in Butler township. This link from Hanover to the Salem-Winona highway will be opened about September 1. The southern section in Hanover township is now open to travel.

The Holmes Construction company, Wooster is now constructing the berms on the Salineville-Summitville road, which was opened to traffic a few weeks ago. This job will be completed within the next week or ten days.

Berm work on the Columbiana-New Waterford road will be completed by Lewis & Copeland, Lima, within a few days. This firm will then move their equipment to New Waterford where they have been given two street contracts which are a part of the improved road into East Palestine. This company expects to complete the rough grading of that section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road in Fairfield township within a week. Contracts for the surfacing will be awarded by the state highway department at Columbus early in the fall.

John Hill, Ada, has completed the pouring of the concrete arch ribs on the new span over the west ford of Beaver creek near Williamsport and the floor construction will be started next week. Hill is also at work on the cantilever bridge over the middle fork of Beaver creek which is a part of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

Many of the concrete culverts and drainage structures on the Salineville-Lisbon road have been completed by J. C. McCann, Columbus. One steam shovel is on this job, and day and night forces are at work. This road will tap the Wellsville-Salineville road, a short distance east of Salineville.

The state highway department will open bids for the improvement of the Rogers-Negley road on September 9.

Bids for the three new bridges, one to replace the present iron span over Beaver creek, south of Lisbon on the Lincoln highway, another in Salineville on the East Liverpool-New Philadelphia road and the other spanning Yellow Creek in Wellsville, will probably be received at the same time. Bids for the surfacing of about a mile of the Lincoln highway west of Kensington will be opened by the state highway department at Columbus next Friday. Estimated cost of this work with paving block is $44,344.64; with concrete, $32,177.98.

The Review-Tribune Offers to its Readers Booklet on Zion Park

The wildest spot in America, discovered centuries ago by Coronado, visited by a few lost Mormon pioneers, but otherwise shunned and feared, the canyon land of southwest Utah, has been reached by road and rail and made a National Park.

A fine booklet of this newest wonderland has been prepared for our Washington Information Bureau.

It is worth while, whether you ever go to Zion National park or not.

AUTO "FISHED" OUT OF RIVER

A Ford touring car, belonging to Chester Trost, of Champaign, Ill. plunged into about 18 feet of water and buried itself in the mud under the wharf boat at the foot of Broadway at 5:30 o'clock last evening.

Trost, who is visiting relatives here, was washing his car along the river bank when the brakes were released and the automobile went into the water. An employee at Dam No. 8 donned a diver's uniform and went to the bottom of the river where he attached a hook to the front axel of the car. It was ravy wrecker.

Aside from a broken top and a thorough ducking the car was not damaged.

HAIL STORM HITS TOBACCO CROP

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 13.—Sweeping up the Connecticut river valley in the heart of the tobacco belt, a terrific hail and wind storm today did damage estimated at $100,000 to the tobacco crop.

The damages was suffered chiefly in Thompsonville, Ellington, Hazardville, Windsor Locks and Warehouse Point, all Connecticut towns just across the state line from here.

The strong wind and heavy fall of hail flattened the tobacco plants over an area of fully 1200 acres. The tobacco was about ready for harvest.

BLACKMORE BOY DIES IN CHESTER

James Robert Blackmore, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blackmore, died last night in the home, Indiana avenue, Chester.

He is survived by his parents, one brother and four sisters: Thomas, Alda, Fay, Joan and Betty.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon, in charge of Rev. Paul Hazlett, pastor of the Hookstown Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery.

MAN DECAPITATED BY STREET CAR

HAMILTON, O., Aug. 13.—Efforts were being made here today to establish identity of a white man, about 65 years old, whose decapitated body was found on a traction line right of way near here. The man evidently had gone to sleep on the tracks, after making a bed of grass and a car had passed over his body. A gold watch was the only article found in his clothing.

TORNADO SWEEPS KANSAS TOWN

GREAT BEND, Kansas, Aug. 13.—Several persons are reported missing and a number injured at Hoisington, near here, in a tornado which swept that city today, according to reports here in railroad circles. Wire communication is impaired.

JUNK DEALER'S TOE IS SMASHED

Paul Berman, 25, West Ninth street junk dealer, suffered a smashed toe this morning when a piece of metal fell upon it. He was taken to the City hospital where the injury was dressed by Dr. R. J. Marshall.

Sacco-Vanzetti Meet.

cola. Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti today expressed grave concern over the physical condition of the former and the mental condition of the latter.

Sacco waved away breakfast as he began the twenty-eighth day of his hunger strike at state's prison. Instruments for forcible feeding by the nasal method were ready and will be used when the prisoner's strength completely fails. Sacco, however, has promised his wife, who has begged him to eat, that he will do so if forcible feeding is started.

Sacco went 31 days without food during a former hunger strike. He was examined by alienists and sent to the state insane hospital at Bridgewater, being released from that institution some weeks later as cured.

Vanzetti Eats "Hot Dog."

Vanzetti began to take solid food terday. After drinking a cup of beef tea, a cup of coffee and a glass of milk, he ate with relish a slice of bread and a "hot dog." Prison officials denied emphatically that Vanzetti was "going mad," as reported by his friends. These friends declared that Vanzetti has been showing hallucinations at times, on one occasion shouting that he was ready to "lead the march to eternity" and that on the night of the scheduled electrocution he tore some of the clothes from his body. Some of his friends were talking of asking for an examination by alienists.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Although the pricking of the speculative bubble this week was due largely to technical stock market conditions rather than industrial and business development, the financial district displayed considerable uneasiness as the market opened today, and the movement of prices was somewhat confused.

The professionals were reported active buyers of the better grade of industrial shares on short covering, General Motors being picked up in volume at 220 against Friday's close at 218-¾, and United States steel up a point in the first period. But the so-called pool specialties were not so sure of their ground and there stocks declined two or three points in moderate trading, there was very little "distress selling" of impaired marginal accounts, and thus the market had a breathing spell while the bullish forces surveyed the situation.

The week-end business and industrial reports were promising if not indicative of actual improvement in important lines. Demand for steel products has shown a moderate increase, while the automobile sales have increased. Cotton broke nearly two dollars a bale in the early trading, due to southern and hedge selling precipitated by the weakness of the Liverpool market and improved weather conditions in the cotton belt.

Lieut. Bennett H. Griffin of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, and Major Livingston Irving of Berkeley were "okayed" yesterday. The same assurance had been given Jack Frost, pilot of the San Francisco Examiner's plane, "The Golden Eagle," and Lieut. Norman Goddard of the San Diego naval air station Thursday. Others will attempt to qualify today.

Weather conditions for the flight will not be as good Tuesday as they would have been yesterday, according to the government weather bureau. While the aviators would have enjoyed a full moon had the start been made as scheduled, they will have but a half moon to guide them Tuesday.

Non-Union Men Imported.

According to Col. Conelly, about 25 non-union workers were sent to each of three mines near here, the Webb and the Florences mines, and the Provident mine. There was no disturbance at either of the other two mines, according to the national guard officer who reported that the operators sent out their non-union workers without notifying the sheriff so that proper protection could be given them.

Of the five affidavits charging that Sheriff Hardesty was incapable of performing his duty because of intoxication, one was signed by Prosecuting Attorney Paul V. Waddell, and another by Assistant Prosecutor A. Edmund Iddings.

Following the alleged attack on Nichols, the taxi driver, at the Provident mine, Col. Conelly arranged to visit the mine with Waddell and Iddings. According to reports they were to leave about three hours after the reported attack, when Sheriff Hardesty arrived at the county seat, and threatened to "lock Iddings in the county jail if he attempted to accompany Col. Conelly and Prosecutor Waddell.

Attack at Provident Mine.

Before the alleged attack at the Provident mine, it is said, Hardesty had placed under arrest a mine guard, George Shrader, Pittsburgh, charging he was a paid agitator. Shrader was soon released, and not locked in the county jail, it is said.

Waddell, early today, said he would report Sheriff Hardesty's alleged intoxication to Gov. Donahey with the intent to begin proceedings to have him removed from office, although Col. Conelly in his report made no reference to the alleged intoxication of the sheriff.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 13.—Col. L. S. Conelly, today made the following report of the Belmont county disturbance to the office of Gov. Donahey.

"An auto load of non-union miners sent to each three mines in Belmont county Friday afternoon at Webb and Florence mines, cars were sent back without violence. At the Provident mine, the driver in returning from the mines was struck on the left cheek with a rock and himself and car badly egged. The sheriff had not been notified of the operators' intent to bring men to their mines, therefore sufficient protection was not available. Six arrests were made at the Provident mine, including the president and secretary and treasurer of the local union, and two women. More arrests are to follow."

DUBLIN CHIEF FACES BITTER FIGHT IN DAIL

Fate of Cosgaive's Government Hangs in Balance.

DE VALERA MOVE

Lack of Confidence Vote To Be Moved Tuesday.

DUBLIN, Aug. 13.—While the fate of President William T. Cosgrave's Irish Free state government hangs in the balance, there was intense political activity behind the scenes today.

The latest move in the kaleidoscopic Irish political situation was the notice given by Thomas Johnson, leader of the Irish labor party that on Tuesday he will move a vote of lack of confidence in the present Free state administration, which has been in power since December, 1922.

A coalition has been formed in Dail Eireann (the Irish parliament) by the 43 Fianna Fail (Republican) deputies headed by Eamonn De Valera, and the Laborites.

It is felt in some quarters that President Cosgrave may yet be saved, all depending upon whether the opposition coalition can hold together until Tuesday.

Reports of a split in the opposition ranks were denied by John Redmond, though it is pointed out that, if the Redmondites abstain from voting President Cosgrave has a chance to get between 67 and 70 votes against 65 and 68 of those proposing a lack of confidence in the present government.

It is suggested in some quarters that, even should President Cosgrave and his colleagues survive the fight against them in the dail on Tuesday, the cabinet may decide to resign, leaving the way open for the formation of a labor government.

WARREN-SALEM BUS LINE HIT

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—The public utilities commission today revoked the certificate of the Warren-Salem Coach Lines company, operating between these cities, and an extension between Deerfield and Alliance. The revocation was made upon the protest of the Youngstown Suburban Transit company which charged the Warren-Salem company was not a corporation as represented when it filed its petition for its certificate.

Jest Over Levine's Delay.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—A fresh controversy between Charles A. Levine, American trans-Atlantic flyer, and his French pilot, Maurice Drouhin, made it uncertain today when the monoplane "Columbia" would hop at Le Bourget for the United States.

Some of the French newspapers have begun to make jests over the continued delays of Levine's plane due to disputes with Drouhin.

Many French airmen believe that Dieudonna Coste, the French army flyer, stands the best chance of making the first non-stop flight from France to New York. His plane is undergoing final overhauling at Villacoublay and will be ready to start in a day or two, weather permitting. It is not certain whether Coste will hop off from Villacoublay or Le Bourget.

Leon Givon, who wanted to start for New York yesterday in his Farman "Blue Bird," found a leak in his gasoline tank and had to put off the flight until repairs can be made. If fair weather prevails off the coast and over the Atlantic Givon may get away tomorrow.

RUFUS CLINE CASE DISMISSED

Rufus Cline, Mulberry street potter, charged with assault in connection with an attack alleged to have been made upon Elsie Southall, 14, a neighbor, was dismissed by Judge Hanley today.

Cline was given a hearing two weeks ago but Judge Hanley reserved his decision in the case until today. Attorney S. W. Crawford, who represented the defendant, declared Cline to have been the victim of a "vicious frame-up."

Everett Bailey, Second street potter, arrested upon a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated, upon information filed by William Kane, Mulberry street pool room operator, following an automobile wreck on Pennsylvania avenue about three week ago, was fined $50 and costs today. Kane had previously been fined upon a charge of reckless driving.

VETS PICNIC HOSTS SUNDAY

Public Invited to Attend Outing at Health Farm.

The Columbiana county health farm, three miles west of Lisbon on the Lincoln highway, was in readiness today for the northeastern Ohio Veterans of Foreign Wars' picnic, which will be held tomorrow. Delegations from Canton, Akron, Youngstown, Warren, New Philadelphia, East Liverpool, Salem and other places will attend the affair.

A program of races, baseball and dancing will be featured. Ice cream, lemonade and coffee will be distributed free at noon and in the evening. A number of state officers from Ohio and Pennsylvania will be special guests.

The general committee in charge of the picnic today extended an invitation to the public to attend.

EIGHT BOYS PASS SWIMMING TEST

Eight boys passed the Red Cross swimming test conducted in the Y. M. C. A. pool Friday. They were: Damon Pierson, James Richardson, Robert Farrall, Robert Queen, William Fletcher, Willis Cunning, Robert Owen and Donald Hall.

To pass the test the lads were required to swim 100 yards on their chest, 50 feet on their back without use of arms, recovering objects in six feet of water, make a front dive neatly and to witness a demonstration in artificial resuscitation.

The tests were given by Richard Larkins, Red Cross examiner, and T. F. Scheffer, Y. M. C. A. examiner.

DR. F. G. FOWLER RETURNS HOME

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Following a violent battle in which the Nationalists (Cantonese) suffered 30,000 casualties and the Northerners 6,000 casualties, the former were driven from Kuchen-Suyi, according to a Japanese news agency dispatch from Nanking today.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Driving southward along the border of Kiangsu and Anhwei provinces in a new offensive, northern troops under Gen. Sun Chuan Fang have captured Pukon and Yangchow, said a Central News dispatch from Shanghai today. The dispatch added that an attack against Nanking seems imminent.

A Nanking message reports heavy troops concentrations around that city and along the northern battle front. Gen. Chen Tiaowan is reported to have gone over to the Northern army under Gen. Sun Chuan Fang.

Another telegram from Shanghai said that the northerners were reported to have taken Chinkiang. It stated that dissatisfaction is apparent among the Kwangsi and Chekiang followers of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek.

THREE-YEAR ROAD BUILDING PROGRAM IS RUSHED

COUNTY BREAKS RECORD, SAYS SURVEYOR KIRK

Every Sub-division Will Be Connected in 1928.

SPEEDS ALL JOBS

Five Steam Shovels on Youngstown - East Liverpool Link.

A road construction program the equal of which has never before been attempted in eastern Ohio is now under way in Columbiana county. At the end of the road building season next fall more improved highways will have been completed than in any other year in the history of the county.

This is the claim of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk and the board of county commissioners. The three-year program for which a bond issue of $950,000 was voted in November, 1925, will be completed in 1928, when every city, town, village and hamlet will be connected with a network of improved highways.

Lewis & Copeland, Lima, are speeding up the pouring of concrete on the road from Apple's Corners to the Youngstown and Ohio River Railroad sub-station. The concrete mixer is now near the old Smith homestead and will reach Cannons Mills within the next two weeks.

Five steam shovels are now at work on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road. Williamson, Howard & Smith, Youngstown have completed the rough grading between Williamsport and Rogers. One steam shovel has been started at Rogers and another at Williamsport. These two shovels will meet at the Elkton-Clarkson road when the grading of that thoroughfare will be started. This company also holds the contract for the grading of this road from Elkton to Clarkson.

The Mellert-Weidener Construction company of Lima has finished the pouring of concrete on the last section of the Hanover-Salem road in Butler township. This link from Hanover to the Salem-Winona highway will be opened about September 1. The southern section in Hanover township is now open to travel.

The Holmes Construction company, Wooster is now constructing the berms on the Sallneville-Summitville road, which was opened to traffic a few weeks ago. This job will be completed within the next week or ten days.

Berm work on the Columbiana-New Waterford road will be completed by Lewis & Copeland, Lima, within a few days. This firm will then move their equipment to New Waterford where they have been given two street contracts which are a part of the improved road into East Palestine. This company expects to complete the rough grading of that section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road in Fairfield township within a week. Contracts for the surfacing will be awarded by the state highway department at Columbus early in the fall.

John Hill, Ada, has completed the pouring of the concrete arch ribs on the new span over the west ford of Beaver creek near Williamsport and the floor construction will be started next week. Hill is also at work on the cantilever bridge over the middle fork of Beaver creek which is a part of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

Many of the concrete culverts and drainage structures on the Salineville-Lisbon road have been completed by J. C. McCann, Columbus. One steam shovel is on this job, and day and night forces are at work. This road will tap the Wellsville-Salineville road, a short distance east of Salineville.

The state highway department will open bids for the improvement of the Rogers-Negley road on September 9.

The Review-Tribune Offers to its Readers Booklet on Zion Park

The wildest spot in America, discovered centuries ago by Coronado, visited by a few lost Mormon pioneers, but otherwise shunned and feared, the canyon land of southwest Utah, has been reached by road and rail and made a National Park.

A fine booklet of this newest wonderland has been prepared for our Washington Information Bureau.

It is worth while, whether you ever go to Zion National park or not.

AUTO "FISHED" OUT OF RIVER

A Ford touring car, belonging to Chester Trost, of Champaign, Ill. plunged into about 18 feet of water and buried itself in the mud under the wharf boat at the foot of Broadway at 5:30 o'clock last evening.

Trost, who is visiting relatives here, was washing his car along the river bank when the brakes were released and the automobile went into the water. An employee at Dam No. 8 donned a diver's uniform and went to the bottom of the river where he attached a hook to the front axel of the car. It was ravy wrecker.

pulled to the shore by the McEl-

Aside from a broken top and a thorough ducking the car was not damaged.

HAIL STORM HITS TOBACCO CROP

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 13.—Sweeping up the Connecticut river valley in the heart of the tobacco belt, a terrific hail and wind storm today did damage estimated at $100,000 to the tobacco crop.

The damages was suffered chiefly in Thompsonville, Ellington, Hazardville, Windsor Locks and Warehouse Point, all Connecticut towns just across the state line from here.

The strong wind and heavy fall of hail flattened the tobacco plants over an area of fully 1200 acres. The tobacco was about ready for harvest.

BLACKMORE BOY DIES IN CHESTER

James Robert Blackmore, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blackmore, died last night in the home, Indiana avenue, Chester.

He is survived by his parents, one brother and four sisters: Thomas, Aida, Fay, Joan and Betty.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon, in charge of Rev. Paul Hazlett, pastor of the Hookstown Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery.

MAN DECAPITATED BY STREET CAR

HAMILTON, O., Aug. 13.—Efforts were being made here today to establish identity of a white man, about 65 years old, whose decapitated body was found on a traction line right of way near here. The man evidently had gone to sleep on the tracks, after making a bed of grass and a car had passed over his body. A gold watch was the only article found in his clothing.

TORNADO SWEEPS KANSAS TOWN

GREAT BEND, Kansas, Aug. 13.—Several persons are reported missing and a number injured at Hoisington, near here, in a tornado which swept that city today, according to reports here in railroad circles. Wire communication is impaired.

JUNK DEALER'S TOE IS SMASHED

Paul Berman, 25, West Ninth street junk dealer, suffered a smashed toe this morning when a piece of metal fell upon it. He was taken to the City hospital where the injury was dressed by Dr. R. J. Marshall.

Sacco-Vanzetti Meet.

cola. Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti today expressed grave concern over the physical condition of the former and the mental condition of the latter.

Sacco waved away breakfast as he began the twenty-eighth day of his hunger strike at state's prison. Instruments for forcible feeding by the nasal method were ready and will be used when the prisoner's strength completely fails. Sacco, however, has promised his wife, who has begged him to eat, that he will do so if forcible feeding is started.

Sacco went 31 days without food during a former hunger strike. He was examined by alienists and sent to the state insane hospital at Bridgewater, being released from that institution some weeks later as cured.

Vanzetti Eats "Hot Dog."

Vanzetti began to take solid food terday. After drinking a cup of beef tea, a cup of coffee and a glass of milk, he ate with relish a slice of bread and a "hot dog." Prison officials denied emphatically that Vanzetti was "going mad," as reported by his friends. These friends declared that Vanzetti has been showing hallucinations at times, on one occasion shouting that he was ready to "lead the march to eternity" and that on the night of the scheduled electrocution he tore some of the clothes from his body. Some of his friends were talking of asking for an examination by alienists.

Bids for the three new bridges, one to replace the present iron span over Beaver creek, south of Lisbon on the Lincoln highway, another in Salineville on the East Liverpool-New Philadelphia road and the other spanning Yellow Creek in Wellsville, will probably be received at the same time. Bids for the surfacing of about a Kensington will be opened by the state mile of the Lincoln highway west of highway department at Columbus next Friday. Estimated cost of this work with paving block is $44,344.64; with concrete, $32,177.98.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Although the pricking of the speculative bubble this week was due largely to technical stock market conditions rather than industrial and business development, the financial district displayed considerable uneasiness as the market opened today, and the movement of prices was somewhat confused.

The professionals were reported active buyers of the better grade of industrial shares on short covering, General Motors being picked up in volume at 220 against Friday's close at 218-¾, and United States steel up a point in the first period. But the so-called pool specialties were not so sure of their ground and there stocks declined two or three points in moderate trading, there was very little "distress selling" of impaired marginal accounts, and thus the market had a breathing spell while the bullish forces surveyed the situation.

The week-end business and industrial reports were promising if not indicative of actual improvement in important lines. Demand for steel products has shown a moderate increase, while the automobile sales have increased. Cotton broke nearly two dollars a bale in the early trading, due to southern and hedge selling precipitated by the weakness of the Liverpool market and improved weather conditions in the cotton belt.

are competent to undertake the air voyage.

Lieut. Bennett H. Griffin of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, and Major Livingston Irving of Berkeley were "okayed" yesterday. The same assurance had been given Jack Frost, pilot of the San Francisco Examiner's plane, "The Golden Eagle," and Lieut. Norman Goddard of the San Diego naval air station Thursday. Others will attempt to qualify today.

Weather conditions for the flight will not be as good Tuesday as they would have been yesterday, according to the government weather bureau. While the aviators would have enjoyed a full moon had the start been made as scheduled, they will have but a half moon to guide them Tuesday.

county jail pending a preliminary hearing, when bond will be fixed.

Non-Union Men Imported.

According to Col. Conelly, about 25 non-union workers were sent to each of three mines near here, the Webb and the Florences mines, and the Provident mine. There was no disturbance at either of the other two mines, according to the national guard officer who reported that the operators sent out their non-union workers without notifying the sheriff so that proper protection could be given them.

Of the five affidavits charging that Sheriff Hardesty was incapable of performing his duty because of intoxication, one was signed by Prosecuting Attorney Paul V. Waddell, and another by Assistant Prosecutor A. Edmund Iddings.

Following the alleged attack on Nichols, the taxi driver, at the Provident mine, Col. Conelly arranged to visit the mine with Waddell and Iddings. According to reports they were to leave about three hours after the reported attack, when Sheriff Hardesty arrived at the county seat, and threatened to "lock Iddings in the county jail if he attempted to accompany Col. Conelly and Prosecutor Waddell.

Attack at Provident Mine.

Before the alleged attack at the Provident mine, it is said, Hardesty had placed under arrest a mine guard, George Shrader, Pittsburgh, charging he was a paid agitator. Shrader was soon released, and not locked in the county jail, it is said.

Waddell, early today, said he would report Sheriff Hardesty's alleged intoxication to Gov. Donahey with the intent to begin proceedings to have him removed from office, although Col. Conelly in his report made no reference to the alleged intoxication of the sheriff.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 13.—Col. L. S. Conelly, today made the following report of the Belmont county disturbance to the office of Gov. Donahey.

"An auto load of non-union miners sent to each three mines in Belmont county Friday afternoon at Webb and Florence mines, cars were sent back without violence. At the Provident mine, the driver in returning from the mines was struck on the left cheek with a rock and himself and car badly egged. The sheriff had not been notified of the operators' intent to bring men to their mines, therefore sufficient protection was not available. Six arrests were made at the Provident mine, including the president and secretary and treasurer of the local union, and two women. More arrests are to follow."

DUBLIN CHIEF FACES BITTER FIGHT IN DAIL

Fate of Cosgaive's Government Hangs in Balance.

DE VALERA MOVE

Lack of Confidence Vote To Be Moved Tuesday.

DUBLIN, Aug. 13.—While the fate of President William T. Cosgrave's Irish Free state government hangs in the balance, there was intense political activity behind the scenes today.

The latest move in the kaleidoscopic Irish political situation was the notice given by Thomas Johnson, leader of the Irish labor party that on Tuesday he will move a vote of lack of confidence in the present Free state administration, which has been in power since December, 1922.

A coalition has been formed in Dail Eireann (the Irish parliament) by the 43 Fianna Fail (Republican) deputies headed by Eamonn De Valera, and the Laborites.

It is felt in some quarters that President Cosgrave may yet be saved, all depending upon whether the opposition coalition can hold together until Tuesday.

Reports of a split in the opposition ranks were denied by John Redmond, though it is pointed out that, if the Redmondites abstain from voting President Cosgrave has a chance to get between 67 and 70 votes against 65 and 68 of those proposing a lack of confidence in the present government.

It is suggested in some quarters that, even should President Cosgrave and his colleagues survive the fight against them in the dail on Tuesday, the cabinet may decide to resign, leaving the way open for the formation of a labor government.

WARREN-SALEM BUS LINE HIT

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—The public utilities commission today revoked the certificate of the Warren-Salem Coach Lines company, operating between these cities, and an extension between Deerfield and Alliance. The revocation was made upon the protest of the Youngstown Suburban Transit company which charged the Warren-Salem company was not a corporation as represented when it filed its petition for its certificate.

Jest Over Levine's Delay.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—A fresh controversy between Charles A. Levine, American trans-Atlantic flyer, and his French pilot, Maurice Drouhin, made it uncertain today when the monoplane "Columbia" would hop at Le Bourget for the United States.

Some of the French newspapers have begun to make jests over the continued delays of Levine's plane due to disputes with Drouhin.

Many French airmen believe that Dieudonna Coste, the French army flyer, stands the best chance of making the first non-stop flight from France to New York. His plane is undergoing final overhauling at Villacoublay and will be ready to start in a day or two, weather permitting. It is not certain whether Coste will hop off from Villacoublay or Le Bourget.

Leon Givon, who wanted to start for New York yesterday in his Farman "Blue Bird," found a leak in his gasoline tank and had to put off the flight until repairs can be made. If fair weather prevails off the coast and over the Atlantic Givon may get away tomorrow.

RUFUS CLINE CASE DISMISSED

Rufus Cline, Mulberry street potter, charged with assault in connection with an attack alleged to have been made upon Elsie Southall, 14, a neighbor, was dismissed by Judge Hanley today.

Cline was given a hearing two weeks ago but Judge Hanley reserved his decision in the case until today. Attorney S. W. Crawford, who represented the defendant, declared Cline to have been the victim of a "vicious frame-up."

Everett Bailey, Second street potter, arrested upon a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated, upon information filed by William Kane, Mulberry street pool room operator, following an automobile wreck on Pennsylvania avenue about three week ago, was fined $50 and costs today. Kane had previously been fined upon a charge of reckless driving.

VETS PICNIC HOSTS SUNDAY

Public Invited to Attend Outing at Health Farm.

The Columbiana county health farm, three miles west of Lisbon on the Lincoln highway, was in readiness today for the northeastern Ohio Veterans of Foreign Wars' picnic, which will be held tomorrow. Delegations from Canton, Akron, Youngstown, Warren, New Philadelphia, East Liverpool, Salem and other places will attend the affair.

A program of races, baseball and dancing will be featured. Ice cream, lemonade and coffee will be distributed free at noon and in the evening. A number of state officers from Ohio and Pennsylvania will be special guests.

The general committee in charge of the picnic today extended an invitation to the public to attend.

EIGHT BOYS PASS SWIMMING TEST

Eight boys passed the Red Cross swimming test conducted in the Y. M. C. A. pool Friday. They were: Damon Pierson, James Richardson, Robert Farrall, Robert Queen, William Fletcher, Willis Cunning, Robert Owen and Donald Hall.

To pass the test the lads were required to swim 100 yards on their chest, 50 feet on their back without use of arms, recovering objects in six feet of water, make a front dive neatly and to witness a demonstration in artificial resuscitation.

The tests were given by Richard Larkins, Red Cross examiner, and T. F. Scheffer, Y. M. C. A. examiner.

DR. F. G. FOWLER RETURNS HOME

Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, who with Mrs. Fowler returned Thursday evening from a two weeks' stay at Lakeside, will occupy the pulpit of his church at 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

Dr. H. S. Powell, district superintendent, Steubenville, will have charge of the morning services.

During their vacation, Dr. and Mrs. Fowler motored through Pennsylvania and New York, visited in Cleveland and also with their son, Floyd Fowler, and wife at Columbus.

NANKING ALARMED

Chinkiang Reported to Have Fallen, Says Message.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Following a violent battle in which the Nationalists (Cantonese) suffered 30,000 casualties and the Northerners 6,000 casualties, the former were driven from Kuchen-Suyi, according to a Japanese news agency dispatch from Nanking today.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Driving southward along the border of Kiangsu and Anhwei provinces in a new offensive, northern troops under Gen. Sun Chuan Fang have captured Pukon and Yangchow, said a Central News dispatch from Shanghai today. The dispatch added that an attack against Nanking seems imminent.

A Nanking message reports heavy troops concentrations around that city and along the northern battle front. Gen. Chen Tiaowan is reported to have gone over to the Northern army under Gen. Sun Chuan Fang.

Another telegram from Shanghai said that the northerners were reported to have taken Chinkiang. It stated that dissatisfaction is apparent among the Kwangsi and Chekiang followers of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek.

46 Labor Leaders Executed.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Execution of 46 Chinese labor leaders affiliated with the Communist faction of the Kuomingtang (Cantonese party) at Kiukiang and the suppression of labor unions at that place on the charge they were Red organizations, was reported in Chinese messages from Kiukiang today.

CAMERON NOW CITY CHEMIST

A. B. Cameron, Bucyrus, recently named superintendent of filtration and city chemist, today had assumed his duties here. He suceeds D. H. Rupp, who recently accepted a position at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Before leaving Bucyrus, Cameron was tendered a farewell party by a group of city officials. He was presented with a traveling bag. Mayor Schuler making the presentation speech.

Mrs. Cameron and their child will arrive here within the next few weeks.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

LEARNING.

Travelers from far countries tell us the women of Tibet boss their husbands. It is apparent that civilization is penetrating into the far corners of the earth.

THE STRUGGLE.

People who call themselves Christians, but who are animated by unchristian motives, do as much harm in China as honest missionaries do good. It's a race to keep even.

ON A BIG SCALE.

Brooklyn plans an airport that will cost $18,000,000, and that will be the largest in the world. Not many cities can make such magnificent gestures. But it's inspiring to see American cities do things in a big way. No progressive city, thinking about an airport and the inevitable development of commercial aviation, must think in small figures.

It takes vision to look into the skies and see the wonders that are to come.

TOO SOFT.

A "gyro ship stabilizer," made for a millionaire's yacht, will carry the ship smoothly through a gale. That's nothing to be glad about. Some of the devices of extreme civilization are making us softer and softer. What we most need is more men and women who can stand hardship, rather than more mechanical devices to abolish hardship.

REALLY SEEING.

A Cleveland teacher who is blind returned the other day from a year's tour of Europe. Landing in New York she said: "Not seeing with your eyes is not a tragedy because, after all, you really see only what you comprehend—you see only with your mind."

While she was away this woman—Miss Almeda Adams—traveled from Paris to London by airplane. She climbed the second highest mountain in Switzerland. She "saw" Raphael's great painting of the Madonna.

"I felt it," she said. "It created an atmosphere. It was very vivid to me."

Here is the most glorious of all mixtures — the mixture of courage with intelligence. And Miss Adams is right. We see only what we understand.

There are so many of us who, having eyes, see not.

Failure of the electric lights compelled Rev. Morgan Williams to preach his sermon at the Cathdral church, Bury St. Edmunds, England, in darkness recently.

London tobacco lealers have just taken up the custom of giving matches with each purchase.

Christmas crackers manufacturers have started to make crackers for the next Christmas rush, nearly twelve-month production being sold in a few days just before the holidays.

LABOR REGRETS COOLIDGE MOVE

Secretary Davis Surveys Effect of "Do Not Choose to Run."

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 13.—Following President Coolidge's unexpected announcement that he did not choose to run for reelection, the department of labor made an extensive survey to determine the effect it had among labor leaders throughout the country, Secretary of Labor Davis revealed here yesterday. for a visit with the executive.

The consensus of opinion showed a general regret that Mr. Coolidge was determined to retire after March 4, 1929, Davis declared.

"The leaders of organized labor," he said, "reported that, while they had received no favors from the president, they had always gotten a square deal from him. Most of them were sorry that he had decided not to run again."

STEWART SAYS:

"War" Beteween Standard Oil Companies Looked Upon in Capital as not A Deadly One.

By Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON, Aug 13—Is Standard Oil at war within itself?

When the government broke up the big parent company, did it manage to do it so effectually that the offspring actually have fallen to fighting one another?

Has the Standard of New York really "put one over" on the Standard of New Jersey?—in connection with that Russion oil dicker we hear so much about. And is the Standard of New Jersey genuinely as mad at the Standard of New York as it appears to be?

The various Standard Oil companies do unquestionably have their separate interests and affiliations.

It happens that the Standard of New Jersey is hooked up with the Royal Dutch Shell group, a concern partly British in its makeup, and partly Dutch, as its name implies.

What the Royal Dutch Shell gets out of its alliance with the Standard of New Jersey its its own affair, but what the Standard of New Jersey hopes to get out of its relationship with the Royal Dutch Shell isn't hard to guess. The Standard wants certain important oil concessions in the Dutch East Indies, where the Royal Dutch Shell is mighty influential.

Nationalized Deposits

Now in Russia there are immensely valuable oil deposits, formerly privately owned but nationalized, expropriated, confiscated or stolen—choose your own term—by the Soviet government, when the latter came into power.

The Soviet folk had the oil but lacked machinery to market it advantageously.

"How about a bargain with us?" suggested the Standard of New Jersey and the Royal Dutch Shell, which were well provided in this respect. The Soviet Naphtha Trust, very anxious for money, was agreeable and negotiations began.

They had not progressed far before it became evident that the Soviet government's and the Royal Dutch Shell's ideas of a satisfactory arrangement differed widely.

The Soviet was willing to furnish the oil on favorable terms, to be sold, but that was all. Sir Henri Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch Shell, insisted on a concession— a vested right in the deposits—in fact a monopoly.

The upshot was a speedy termination of the discussion—with considerable heat on the part of Sir Henri, who said he wouldn't have anything to do with a government which didn't recognize private property and had grabbed that oil besides.

The Standard of New Jersey seemingly wasn't as unyielding as Sir Henri, since it continued chatting with the Soviet Naptha Trust for some time after he had stopped, still trying to come to terms.

However, it was clear enough that the New Jersey company couldn't finally offer any more favorable conditions to the Soviet than Sir Henri had offered without offending its own ally, the Royal Dutch Shell. Sir Henri's scheme, according to the Russians, was to "put the screws" on them—to prevent them from disposing of their oil at all except as he dictated.

For the Standard of New Jersey to have cut the ground from under the Royal Dutch Shell's feet would have been a most unfriendly act—and the New Jersey company had the Dutch East Indies to think of.

What's Heard in Washington

It can't be proved, of course, but is it conceivable—it certainly is conceivable to some eminent oil authorities here—that the Standard of New Jersey, in this situation, said very, very confidentially to the Standard of New York?—

"You can see how we're tied up on this Russian oil situation. We're all Standard Oil companies together. Why don't you see what YOU can do?"

At all events, the next thing we know about it, the Standard Oil of New York and its affiliated Vacuum Oil Company have framed up just such a deal with the Soviet Naphtha Trust as Sir Henri Deterding had refused to have anything to do with Sir Henri's boycott—if there was one had exploded.

The Standard of New Jersey has made a decent show of indignation over the Standard of New York's "underhand" conduct.

That's the utmost it can do.

No protest to the state department, no governmental action of any kind can possibly be availing.

An American concern is at perfect liberty to enter into whatever trade relations it likes in Russia. If it gets into trouble there, it can't look to the Washington administration for help or support but its commercial ventures in Russia are none of this government's business.

The Standard of New York probably isn't afraid of anything of the sort. The Soviet government has been far from respectful of old leftover czarist bargains, but it has an enviable reputation for keeping its own to the letter.

A mysterious disease is threatening to destrop all the beautiful oaks planted in England in the seventeenth century.

The Way of the World

LEARNING.

Travelers from far countries tell us the women of Tibet boss their husbands. It is apparent that civilization is penetrating into the far corners of the earth.

THE STRUGGLE.

People who call themselves Christians, but who are animated by unchristian motives, do as much harm in China as honest missionaries do good. It's a race to keep even.

ON A BIG SCALE.

Brooklyn plans an airport that will cost $18,000,000, and that will be the largest in the world. Not many cities can make such magnificent gestures. But it's inspiring to see American cities do things in a big way. No progressive city, thinking about an airport and the inevitable development of commercial aviation, must think in small figures.

It takes vision to look into the skies and see the wonders that are to come.

TOO SOFT.

A "gyro ship stabilizer," made for a millionaire's yacht, will carry the ship smoothly through a gale. That's nothing to be glad about. Some of the devices of extreme civilization are making us softer and softer. What we most need is more men and women who can stand hardship, rather than more mechanical devices to abolish hardship.

REALLY SEEING.

A Cleveland teacher who is blind returned the other day from a year's tour of Europe. Landing in New York she said: "Not seeing with your eyes is not a tragedy because, after all, you really see only what you comprehend—you see only with your mind."

While she was away this woman—Miss Almeda Adams—traveled from Paris to London by airplane. She climbed the second highest mountain in Switzerland. She "saw" Raphael's great painting of the Madonna.

"I felt it," she said. 'It creates an atmosphere. It was very vivid to me."

Here is the most glorious of all mixtures — the mixture of courage with intelligence. And Miss Adams is right. We see only what we understand.

There are so many of us who, having eyes, see not.

Failure of the electric lights compelled Rev. Morgan Williams to preach his sermon at the Cathdral church, Bury St. Edmunds, England, in darkness recently.

London tobacco lealers have just taken up the custom of giving matches with each purchase.

Christmas crackers manufacturers have started to make crackers for the next Christmas rush, nearly twelve-month production being sold in a few days just before the holidays.

LABOR REGRETS COOLIDGE MOVE

Secretary Davis Surveys Effect of "Do Not Choose to Run."

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 13.—Following President Coolidge's unexpected announcement that he did not choose to run for reelection, the department of labor made an extensive survey to determine the effect it had among labor leaders throughout the country, Secretary of Labor Davis revealed here yesterday. for a visit with the executive.

The consensus of opinion showed a general regret that Mr. Coolidge was determined to retire after March 4, 1929, Davis declared.

"The leaders of organized labor," he said, "reported that, while they had received no favors from the president, they had always gotten a square deal from him. Most of them were sorry that he had decided not to run again."

STEWART SAYS:

"War" Beteween Standard Oil Companies Looked Upon in Capital as not A Deadly One.

By Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON, Aug 13—Is Standard Oil at war within itself?

When the government broke up the big parent company, did it manage to do it so effectually that the offspring actually have fallen to fighting one another?

Has the Standard of New York really "put one over" on the Standard of New Jersey?—in connection with that Russion oil dicker we hear so much about. And is the Standard of New Jersey genuinely as mad at the Standard of New York as it appears to be?

The various Standard Oil companies do unquestionably have their separate interests and affiliations.

It happens that the Standard of New Jersey is hooked up with the Royal Dutch Shell group, a concern partly British in its makeup, and partly Dutch, as its name implies.

What the Royal Dutch Shell gets out of its alliance with the Standard of New Jersey its its own affair, but what the Standard of New Jersey hopes to get out of its relationship with the Royal Dutch Shell isn't hard to guess. The Standard wants certain important oil concessions in the Dutch East Indies, where the Royal Dutch Shell is mighty influential.

Nationalized Deposits

Now in Russia there are immensely valuable oil deposits, formerly privately owned but nationalized, expropriated, confiscated or stolen—choose your own term—by the Soviet government, when the latter came into power.

The Soviet folk had the oil but lacked machinery to market it advantageously.

"How about a bargain with us?" suggested the Standard of New Jersey and the Royal Dutch Shell, which were well provided in this respect. The Soviet Naphtha Trust, very anxious for money, was agreeable and negotiations began.

They had not progressed far before it became evident that the Soviet government's and the Royal Dutch Shell's ideas of a satisfactory arrangement differed widely.

The Soviet was willing to furnish the oil on favorable terms, to be sold, but that was all. Sir Henri Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch Shell, insisted on a concession— a vested right in the deposits—in fact a monopoly.

The upshot was a speedy termination of the discussion—with considerable heat on the part of Sir Henri, who said he wouldn't have anything to do with a government which didn't recognize private property and had grabbed that oil besides.

The Standard of New Jersey seemingly wasn't as unyielding as Sir Henri, since it continued chatting with the Soviet Naptha Trust for some time after he had stopped, still trying to come to terms.

However, it was clear enough that the New Jersey company couldn't finally offer any more favorable conditions to the Soviet than Sir Henri had offered without offending its own ally, the Royal Dutch Shell. Sir Henri's scheme, according to the Russians, was to "put the screws" on them—to prevent them from disposing of their oil at all except as he dictated.

For the Standard of New Jersey to have cut the ground from under the Royal Dutch Shell's feet would have been a most unfriendly act—and the New Jersey company had the Dutch East Indies to think of.

What's Heard in Washington

It can't be proved, of course, but is it conceivable—it certainly is conceivable to some eminent oil authorities here—that the Standard of New Jersey, in this situation, said very, very confidentially to the Standard of New York?—

"You can see how we're tied up on this Russian oil situation. We're all Standard Oil companies together. Why don't you see what YOU can do?"

At all events, the next thing we know about it, the Standard Oil of New York and its affiliated Vacuum Oil Company have framed up just such a deal with the Soviet Naphtha Trust as Sir Henri Deterding had refused to have anything to do with Sir Henri's boycott—if there was one had exploded.

The Standard of New Jersey has made a decent show of indignation over the Standard of New York's "underhand" conduct.

That's the utmost it can do.

No protest to the state department, no governmental action of any kind can possibly be availing.

An American concern is at perfect liberty to enter into whatever trade relations it likes in Russia. If it gets into trouble there, it can't look to the Washington administration for help or support but its commercial ventures in Russia are none of this government's business.

The Standard of New York probably isn't afraid of anything of the sort. The Soviet government has been far from respectful of old leftover czarist bargains, but it has an enviable reputation for keeping its own to the letter.

A mysterious disease is threatening to destrop all the beautiful oaks planted in England in the seventeenth century.

MAY DECLARE MAN LEGALLY DEAD

Unless Archie Haught presents himself in probate court at 10 o'clock Sept. 6 he will be declared legally dead, and an administrator will then be appointed for the estate. This has been determined by a petition filed with the court by Attorney Frank H. Hoover of East Liverpool.

The petition has been filed at the instance of Gertrude Justice who asks that an administrator be appointed for the estate of Haught.

Haught, the petition relates, has been absent from his last known place of residence for seven years, and that no will or testament has been found.

$10,000 DAMAGE ACTION FILED

An action seeking $10,000 damages has been filed in court by Galen Groves, aged 17, through his father, E. E. Groves, Salem, against Mrs. Zora Trotter, 118 High street, Salem.

The petition alleges that the plaintiff was riding a bicycle along Main street on June 27 last when the defendant alighting from an automobile, then parked against the curb, opened a door, struck the plaintiff as he was riding past and threw him in front of a machine passing in the opposite direction. The petition of the plaintiff charges negligence on the part of the defendant.

Partition Action Filed.

Irene S. Gorby seeks the partition of a farm of 80 acres in section 26 in Middleton township in a petition filed in common pleas court by her counsel, W. H. Spence, against Howard Huston and Martha V. Grippe of New Mine, Pa., Ina Huston and Frank Huston of Beaver Falls, Pa. Because the defendants are non-residents of the state, an affidavit for constructive service has been filed with the petition.

Property Transfers.

Real estate transfers have been recorded as follows:

William Wilson to Richard C. Wilson, lot 13 in Nicholson's addition, Wellsville, $1.

H. M. Oliver to Ralph Egerman and others, lots 3, 4 and 5 in George Well's first addition, Wellsville, $50.

David F. Gregory and wife to Perpetual Building & Loan company, lot 80 in Henry Aten Jr.'s addition, Wellsville, $1.

John R. Tipton and wife to Minnie M. Russell, lot 7 and part of lot 8 in Forbes addition, Wellsville, $7,000.

Earl E. Bower to Effie M. Bower, 80 acres in section 33, Unity township, $3,000.

John J. Lamp and wife to George W. Runyon, 1 acre in second 35, Liverpool township.

William Fultz and others to same, lot in 18th street, Wellsville.

Lucinda A. Gardner and others to state of Ohio for state park purposes, 23.72 acres in section 2, Hanover township, $1,542.45.

John Lee and wife to Jessie Y. Humphrey, 77 acres in St. Clair township, $5.

William H. Stewart and others to Viola M. Stewart, lots 68 and 69 in the village of Homeworth, $1.

Lottie M. Hoover and others to George Buzzard, 2 acres in section 4, Fairfield township, $2,000.

James Seibert and others to Windland Bros. Lumber company, lot 1375 in Gibb's addition, East Liverpool, $1.

LITCO GASOLINE

ABSOLUTELY!

No Ill Effects On The Motor Or Its Parts

When you fill your gas tank with LITO GASOLINE there is no need for worry because Lito Gas is pure gas and contains nothing that will harm your motor or its parts. Fill your gas tank with this clean firing gasoline today. You'll notice a big difference in your motor's performance—you'll feel the engine runnin gmore smoothly, and you'll get greater response than ever before when you step on the gas.

MOTORISTS NOW ENJOY THE BENEFITS OF HIGH COMPRESSION THROUGH LITCO-ETHYL IN TWO WAYS.

1 Through high compression automobiles. The advent of Litco Ethyl Gasoline has at last given car manufacturers the opportunity mechanically to raise the compression of their engines. For cars now in use they can offer special high compression cylinder heads which greatly increase performance.

2 Through carbon formation. By letting carbon form in the cylinders of a car of ordinary compression, you automatically increase compression. Since Litco Ethyl Gasoline is a high compression fuel, those deposits which heretofore have decreased power become a source of extra power.

LISBON

M. K. Zimerman, West Park Ave. Phone 319-R. Lisbon, Ohio.

MAY DECLARE MAN LEGALLY DEAD

Unless Archie Haught presents himself in probate court at 10 o'clock Sept. 6 he will be declared legally dead, and an administrator will then be appointed for the estate. This has been determined by a petition filed with the court by Attorney Frank H. Hoover of East Liverpool.

The petition has been filed at the instance of Gertrude Justice who asks that an administrator be appointed for the estate of Haught.

Haught, the petition relates, has been absent from his last known place of residence for seven years, and that no will or testament has been found.

$10,000 DAMAGE ACTION FILED

An action seeking $10,000 damages has been filed in court by Galen Groves, aged 17, through his father, E. E. Groves, Salem, against Mrs. Zora Trotter, 118 High street, Salem.

The petition alleges that the plaintiff was riding a bicycle along Main street on June 27 last when the defendant alighting from an automobile, then parked against the curb, opened a door, struck the plaintiff as he was riding past and threw him in front of a machine passing in the opposite direction. The petition of the plaintiff charges negligence on the part of the defendant.

Partition Action Filed.

Irene S. Gorby seeks the partition of a farm of 80 acres in section 26 in Middleton township in a petition filed in common pleas court by her counsel, W. H. Spence, against Howard Huston and Martha V. Grippe of New Mine, Pa., Ina Huston and Frank Huston of Beaver Falls, Pa. Because the defendants are non-residents of the state, an affidavit for constructive service has been filed with the petition.

Wolf, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. W. F. Hawkins of East Rochester and Miss Etta Wolf of Salem; her husband and two children, Mrs. C. A. Briggs, Salem, and Orin Bower. Funeral services were held Wednesday. Burial in Grand View cemetery, Salem.

Billie Davis of Akron is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. William Monington.

Rev. J. T. Gardner attended a Sunday school picnic at New Franklin Saturday.

Bayard Wickersham and daughter, of Beatrice, Nebraska, are visiting Mrs. Swearington and Mr. and Mrs. Alban Taylor and family in the Taylor home.

Columbiana

At the close of the Sunday morning worship in the Columbiana Lutheran church occurred the marriage of Walter T. Krumm and Miss Alice M. Gaines, the latter of Cleveland. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Rev. C. E. Krumm, in the presence of the assembled congregation, Miss Ethel Lennig presiding at the organ. The attendants were Paul C. Krumm, brother of the groom, and Mrs. Lois Yeager, sister of the bride. Mr. Krumm is in the employ of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Plantations company, operating in Liberia, West Africa. He is at present on furlough and will return to Cape Palmas in the early fall, accompanied by his bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snauffer, Mr. and Mrs. William Snauffer and family and Mr. and Mrs. William Rondebush were at Minerva Monday attending the double funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Snauffer, the victims of an auto accident at Bayard.

Mrs. Jacob Renkenberger and daughters were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Norris and family at Youngstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Erle Zimmerman and son, Bobby, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Manna and daughter, Alice, of Akron, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Lower, North Elm street.

Rev. J. C. Strobel will preach next Sunday morning in his former charge, the Lisbon Presbyterian church. There will be no preaching in the local church.

Led Protestors

Miss Aurora d'Angelo, 18, high school student, is shown meditating in a cell, following her leadership of a Chicago protest parade. She incited hundreds to follow her as she marched through the streets with the rallying cry: "Sacco and Vanzetti must not die!"

Sebring

Mrs. Elizabeth Jellison, West Vermont avenue, died at her home Saturday evening, following an illness since April. Mrs. Jellison was the widow of Wesley Jellison. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Pearl Johnson of White Cottage, O., and Miss Evelyn Jellison of Sebring. The body was taker to White Cottage for burial. Rev. L. E. Carr had charge of a brief service in Sebring.

The Sebring playgrounds will close Friday after having been in operation for 10 weeks. The closing event will be a festival at the McKinley lot.

Mrs. Henrietta Carnes, 72, of Canton, mother of Mrs. J. B. Klingensmith of Sebring, died recently in the home of her son, J. R. Carnes, 1813 9th street, Canton. She is survived by five daughter and two sons.

Miss Lenora Sutherin, employed at the Pennsylvania railroad office, and Mrs. June Waisner, manager of the Vogue shop, have returned from a trip to New York city, Atlantic City, N. J., and other points in the east.

Henry Ostermeier, student of the Pittsburgh Theological seminary, had charge of the services at the United Presbyterian church Sunday morning, taking the place of Rev. J. H. Miller, who is taking a vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lewis and family of Bloomfield, Ill., former residents of Sebring, have arrived in the city for a visit with friends.

Jack Lindsey of Sebring, Fla., is visiting friends here.

ABSOLUTELY!

No Ill Effects On The Motor Or Its Parts

When you fill your gas tank with LITO GASOLINE there is no need for worry because Lito Gas is pure gas and contains nothing that will harm your motor or its parts. Fill your gas tank with this clean firing gasoline today. You'll notice a big difference in your motor's performance—you'll feel the engine runnin gmore smoothly, and you'll get greater response than ever before when you step on the gas.

MOTORISTS NOW ENJOY THE BENEFITS OF HIGH COMPRESSION THROUGH LITCO-ETHYL IN TWO WAYS.

1 Through high compression automobiles. The advent of Litco Ethyl Gasoline has at last given car manufacturers the opportunity mechanically to raise the compression of their engines. For cars now in use they can offer special high compression cylinder heads which greatly increase performance.

2 Through carbon formation. By letting carbon form in the cylinders of a car of ordinary compression, you automatically increase compression. Since Litco Ethyl Gasoline is a high compression fuel, those deposits which heretofore havo decreased power become a source of extra power.

EASTON IS VICTOR IN 3-1 CLASH

Southpaws Wellsville to Victory Over K. T. K.

WELLSVILLE Nash Motors defeated the K. T. K. team in a well played City Industrial league contest on Nicholson field last evening, 3 to 1.

Easton southpawed for the victors and W. O'Brosky served right handed shoots for the losers. Both allowed eight hits, the former permitting six singles and two doubles and the latter five one-baggers, two two-base drives and one tripie. Both also fanned seven each and each gave but one pass.

Wellsville scored two runs in the last of the first inning. Simcox fumbled Adamson's drive. The latter scored on Byer's triple to deep center after Cook and G. Meyers had fanned. Kibble singled to right, scoring Byers. C. Wagner flew to Coleman

In the fifth K. T. K. sent A. O'Brosky around the paths. He singled to left and went to second on Easton's wild heave to first and counted on McShane's double, following strikeouts by Hunselman and W. O'Brosky. Then C. Coleman made the third to fan in the same inning.

The final run of the contest was made by Wellsville in the sixth. Kibble singled down the third base line and stole second and third. He scored on Litner's double over the right fielder's fence after Hancock, batting for C. Wagner, had fanned and H. Meyers had soared to Kinsey. Then Easton passed the third strike.

K. T. K. used three pinch hitters in a vain attempt to overcome the two run lead against them in the seventh. Merchant, batting for A. O'Brosky, fanned, C. Howell, swinging for Hunselman, sent a high fly to Byers, while S. Coleman, bludgeoning for W. O'Brosky, was called out on strikes.

McShane, walking once and annexing a single and a double, led all batters for the day with a perfect mark for his three batting essays.

Byers and Kibble, with two safeties each, in three chances, swatted .667 each.

So evenly matched were the contesting clubs for the occasion that each had five men left on bases during the game.

Both teams also had but one miscue each, a fumble by Simcox at third at the outset of the game which proved costly and Easton's wild heave to first on A. O'Brosky in the fifth which also contributed a run.

Twenty-three men were utilized in the game, 12 by K. T. K. and 11 by Wellsville.

FIRPO PLANNING WINTER SCRAPS

WIN WITH HOMER IN ELEVENTH

Jim Bottomley Crashes Out Hit That Stops Pirates.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Thanks to Sunny Jim Bottomley, the St. Louis Cardinals are tied with the Pirates for second place today, five games behind the league-leading Cubs. For the second time in two days, Bottomley beat the Bucs with a home run. The blow came in the eleventh and enabled Jess Haines to win 2 to to 1 duel with Carmen Hill. Haines yielded only four hits and Hill six.

While Sunny Jim was pulling a Frank Merriwell in St. Louis his old side-kick, Rogers Hornsby, was duplicating the feat in New York against the Brooklyn Robins. The Rajah's eighteenth homer of the season with the bases full, helped the Giants overcome a six run lead and he scored the winning run in the tenth.

Gink Hendrick, outfielder and first baseman, replased Partridge at second base for Brooklyn and committed a costly error. The Giants are three games behind St. Louis and Pittsburgh, but have been playing the best ball in the league.

Manager Dave Bancroft of the Braves benched himself in favor of Doc Gautreau, the champion midget of the majors, and the Doc helped himself to four hits as Boston swamped the Phillies, 12 to 6.

Ty Cobb and Zach Wheat, the fading veterans of the Athletics, could get only four hits apiece but fortunately the other Mackmen got a few bingles and the A's managed to beat the Red Sox, 7 to 1.

The Tigers made it three in a row from the Browns, scoring four runs in the eighth and winning, 7 to 3.

Babe Ruth got a homer but it was made in an exhibition game with Baltimore which the Yankees lost, 8 to 7. Babe pitched the last inning and was hammered to a fare-thee-well.

Hoover, Crawford Horseshoe Champs

Although usually confining their public operations to the court columns, East Liverpool lawyers today demand sport page space as a result of the championship horseshoe tournament staged yesterday at the Buckeye club in connection with a field meet held by the Southern Columbiana County Bar association.

City Solicitor "Skelly" Hoover and Attorney Sam Crawford today boast the championship laurels as a result of a spectacular exhibition with the lucky pieces, alleging they trimmed Municipal Judge Jess Hanley and Attorney Blaine Cochran in seven straight games.

"We're ready to defend our title at any time," declares Attorney Crawford, "against any member of the southern county association or the whole county."

M. CEBULA IS SENT TO WESTERN

Former Chester Hurler Traded to Wichita Club.

Mike Cebula, former hurler for Frank Riley's Chester Industrial league club, today is a member of the Wichita (Kansas) club of the Western league.

Manager Brown of the Highpoint club of the Piedmont league which Mike joined early in the season Wednesday completed the deal which sends Cebula to the western circuit and Class A ball. The husky right hander was ordered to report at once.

The trade was made with the understanding that if Brown permitted Cebula to join Wichita immediately and not take a player at the present time from the Kansas club, Brown would be allowed his pick in the spring.

Manager Frank Riley, pilot of the Superior Cords of the Industrial club, who presented Cebula with his first real opportunity to display his mound ability, performed with the Wichita club in 1915.

DRUGS WIN IN OPENER OF SERIES

Down Workingman's Store at West End 9 to 2.

Collecting a total of 14 safe bingles off Pitcher Devon the Bulger Drugs defeated the Workingman's store, 9 to 2, last night at Patterson Field, in the first game of a three-game series and the pill rollers feel so certain of annexing the entire series that they announced today they would accept the challenge of the National Furniture. However, Manager Grollman, of the Workies, declares his club will have something to say about that later on.

The game brought out about 300 fans. Southpaw Earl Reese, of the Drugs, allowed five safe drives. The Drugs had one big inning in the ninth when they scored five runs.

Pusey led the batters with four hits in five times up. Paul White collected a double and a single in five trials. First Baseman Harris, of the losers, registered twice in four trips to the plate.

PLAY O. & P. CLUB NEXT WEDNESDAY

Superior Cords Face Stiff Opposition in Tilt With Pennant Winners; Riley to Use New Pitcher.

Baseball fans of the East Liverpool district will have the opportunity of looking over two of the strongest professional clubs out of the big minor leagues on successive Wednesdays at Smith Field, Chester, when the Superior Cords, at present leading the City Industrial league, hook up with the Beaver Falls Elks and Cum Posey's Homestead Grays.

The Beaver Falls club, which won the first half pennant in the O. & P. circuit, is scheduled to perform at Chester on next Wednesday evening and the Grays are slated for their second appearance in the district on the following Wednesday.

Neither club demands much of an introduction to baseball followers here.

The Beaver Falls outfit boasts one of the smartest pitchers in professional ball of this particular caliber in Hilty. Whether the Cords will have a chance to see him work is questionable. Hilty has turned down a number of higher professional offers.

Sam Herman, native of Dayton, former Bethany collegian, who also had a month's workout with the Detroit Americans this spring, will be Riley's hurling choice against the Elks. Herman signed up with the Cords a week or so ago and if he comes up to expectations the chances are he will be used in Industrial League engagements later on. Herman refused a chance with the Rochester International league club and has been playing some this season in the Eastern Ohio.

He is not exactly a stranger to the Cords, having played basketball against Ray Wilde, Chester infielder.

Moscow Club Here Sunday

The East Liverpool Cardinals will play the Moscow Cubs tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Sherwood diamond.

The Cubs are a fast organization of ball players, picked largely from New Cumberland and adjacent territory. They were here a couple of weeks ago and played one inning with the Cards when rain interrupted proceedings.

Public Acceptance Proclaims It:

Greatest All-Time ESSEX Achievement

Greater Power and Performance—Roomier, Finer Bodies

Popular enthusiasm has risen to new heights in proclaiming the surpassing brilliancy of this Greater Essex Super-Six. Spurred by knowledge that the most eagerly demanded Essex in history was retired to make way for it, public interest has crowded show rooms, not only here but throughout the country, to inspect, ride, and place a prior order for this phenomenal car.

That interest is intensified by the conviction that the preceding Essex was the greatest car of its size ever produced.

So, expect a great car when you come to see and try the New Essex Super-Six. Expect a car measured in terms of the best you know, unqualified by size or price. Of course, you will look for speed, sparkling performance, unexcelled reliability and riding ease; for these already belong to Essex reputation. Yet, we freely say, that here, too, you must expect extra margins of ability, brilliancy and quality.

No previous car—no previous value—gives anything by which to judge it. It is the greatest achievement in Essex history. See it and ride in it with greater expectation of fine things than you ever held for any but the costliest cars. You will not be disappointed.

And, although Essex production is the largest in our history, in view of the long condition of shortage, you should place your order at once if you would insure early delivery.

INDOOR GOLF AT MADISON SQUARE

NEW YORK, Aug. 13. — Two eighteen-hole golf courses will be laid out in Madison Square Garden this winter, with putting greens, sand traps and water hazards. Indoor golf tournaments may be held.

FIRPO PLANNING WINTER SCRAPS

WIN WITH HOMER IN ELEVENTH

Jim Bottomley Crashes Out Hit That Stops Pirates.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Thanks to Sunny Jim Bottomley, the St. Louis Cardinals are tied with the Pirates for second place today five games behind the league-leading Cubs. For the second time in two days, Bottomley beat the Bucs with a home run. The blow came in the eleventh and enabled Jess Haines to win 2 to to 1 duel with Carmen Hill. Haines yielded only four hits and Hill six.

While Sunny Jim was pulling a Frank Merriwell in St. Louis his old side-kick, Rogers Hornsby, was duplicating the feat in New York against the Brooklyn Robins. The Rajah's eighteenth homer of the season with the bases full, helped the Giants overcome a six run lead and he scored the winning run in the tenth.

Gink Hendrick, outfielder and first baseman, replased Partridge at second base for Brooklyn and committed a costly error. The Giants are three games behind St. Louis and Pittsburgh, but have been playing the best ball in the league.

Manager Dave Bancroft of the Braves benched himself in favor of Doc Cauireau, the champion midget of the majors, and the Doc helped himself to four hits as Boston swamped the Phillies, 12 to 6.

Ty Cobb and Zach Wheat, the fading veterans of the Athletics, could get only four hits apiece but fortunately the other Mackmen got a few bingles and the A's managed to beat the Red Sox, 7 to 1.

The Tigers made it three in a row from the Browns, scoring four runs in the eighth and winning, 7 to 3.

Babe Ruth got a homer but it was made in an exhibition game with Baltimore which the Yankees lost, 8 to 7. Babe pitched the last inning and was hammered to a fare-thee-well.

Hoover, Crawford Horseshoe Champs

Although usually confining their public operations to the court columns, East Liverpool lawyers today demand sport page space as a result of the championship horseshoe tournament staged yesterday at the Buckeye club in connection with a field meet held by the Southern Columbiana County Bar association.

City Solicitor "Skelly" Hoover and Attorney Sam Crawford today boast the championship laurels as a result of a spectacular exhibition with the lucky pieces, alleging they trimmed Municipal Judge Jess Hanley and Attorney Blaine Cochran in seven straight games.

"We're ready to defend our title at any time," declares Attorney Crawford, "against any member of the southern county association or the whole county."

M. CEBULA IS SENT TO WESTERN

Former Chester Hurler Traded to Wichita Club.

Mike Cebula, former hurler for Frank Riley's Chester Industrial league club, today is a member of the Wichita (Kansas) club of the Western league.

Manager Brown of the Highpoint club of the Piedmont league which Mike joined early in the season Wednesday completed the deal which sends Cebula to the western circuit and Class A ball. The husky right hander was ordered to report at once.

The trade was made with the understanding that if Brown permitted Cebula to join Wichita immediately and not take a player at the present time from the Kansas club, Brown would be allowed his pick in the spring.

Manager Frank Riley, pilot of the Superior Cords of the Industrial club, who presented Cebula with his first real opportunity to display his mound ability, performed with the Wichita club in 1915.

DRUGS WIN IN OPENER OF SERIES

Down Workingman's Store at West End 9 to 2.

Collecting a total of 14 safe bingles off Pitcher Devon the Bulger Drugs defeated the Workingman's store, 9 to 2, last night at Patterson Field, in the first game of a three-game series and the pill rollers feel so certain of annexing the entire series that they announced today they would accept the challenge of the National Furnitures. However, Manager Grollman, of the Workies, declares the club will have something to say about that later on.

The game brought out about 300 fans. Southpaw Earl Reese, of the Drugs, allowed five safe drives. The Drugs had one big inning in the ninth when they scored five runs.

Pusey led the batters with four hits in five times up. Paul White collected a double and a single in five trials. First Baseman Harris, of the losers, registered twice in four trips to the plate.

PLAY O. & P. CLUB NEXT WEDNESDAY

Superior Cords Face Stiff Opposition in Tilt With Pennant Winners; Riley to Use New Pitcher.

Baseball fans of the East Liverpool district will have the opportunity of looking over two of the strongest professional clubs out of the big minor leagues on successive Wednesdays at Smith Field, Chester, when the Superior Cords, at present leading the City Industrial league, hook up with the Beaver Falls Elks and Cum Posey's Homestead Grays.

The Beaver Falls club, which won the first half pennant in the O. & P. circuit, is scheduled to perform at Chester on next Wednesday evening and the Grays are slated for their second appearance in the district on the following Wednesday.

Neither club demands much of an introduction to baseball followers here.

The Beaver Falls outfit boasts one of the smartest pitchers in professional ball of this particular caliber in Hilty. Whether the Cords will have a chance to see him work is questionable. Hilty has turned down a number of higher professional offers.

Sam Herman, native of Dayton, former Bethany collegian, who also had a month's workout with the Detroit Americans this spring, will be Riley's hurling choice against the Elks. Herman signed up with the Cords a week or so ago and if he comes up to expectations the chances are he will be used in Industrial League engagements later on. Herman refused a chance with the Rochester International league club and has been playing some this season in the Eastern Ohio.

He is not exactly a stranger to the Cords, having played basketball against Ray Wilde, Chester infielder.

Moscow Club Here Sunday

The East Liverpool Cardinals will play the Moscow Cubs tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Sherwood diamond.

The Cubs are a fast organization of ball players, picked largely from New Cumberland and adjacent territory. They were here a couple of weeks ago and played one inning with the Cards when rain interrupted proceedings.

Cleaners and Potters Tie, 4-4

Skid's Cleaners and the Potters Supply battled to a seven-inning four run tie last evening at Columbian park, the Potters getting six hits off Powell and the Cleaners five off O'Hanlon and McGeehan.

Frankie Davis, at third for the Cleaners and Leftfielder Stewart of the Potters, had two hits apiece in three times up.

Public Acceptance Proclaims It:

Greatest All-Time ESSEX Achievement

Greater Power and Performance—Roomier, Finer Bodies

Popular enthusiasm has risen to new heights in proclaiming the surpassing brilliancy of this Greater Essex Super-Six. Spurred by knowledge that the most eagerly demanded Essex in history was retired to make way for it, public interest has crowded show rooms, not only here but throughout the country, to inspect, ride, and place a prior order for this phenomenal car.

That interest is intensified by the conviction that the preceding Essex was the greatest car of its size ever produced.

So, expect a great car when you come to see and try the New Essex Super-Six. Expect a car measured in terms of the best you know, unqualified by size or price. Of course, you will look for speed, sparkling performance, unexcelled reliability and riding ease; for these already belong to Essex reputation. Yet, we freely say, that here, too, you must expect extra margins of ability, brilliancy and quality.

No previous car—no previous value—gives anything by which to judge it. It is the greatest achievement in Essex history. See it and ride in it with greater expectation of fine things than you ever held for any but the costliest cars. You will not be disappointed.

And, although Essex production is the largest in our history, in view of the long condition of shortage, you should place your order at once if you would insure early delivery.

D. C. STEPHENSON, PURPLE-ROBED DRAGON, ALTHOUGH IN PRISON, STILL LIVES IN MINDS OF AWE-INSPIRED FOLKS

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF FLYING GRAND DRAGON WHIZZING THROUGH THE SKY.

V.

(The story of Indiana's political drama now unfolding, and its chief character, D. C. Stephenson, reads like a novel. This is the fifth instalment.)

By BONITA WITT

Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

To many folk in Indiana, D. C. Stephenson, although a life prisoner convicted of murder, remains a bit supernatural. His charges against persons of high and low degree are attracting some of his old group again. He still dazzles. No wonder! He was not supernatural, but a super-dramatist of a political personality—and that personality always was himself.

MISS BONITA WITT

Numerous persons predict he'll again appear "out of the sky from nowhere" as once he did.

The Stephenson plane, according to Court Asher, his pilot, was a gaily decorated affair with a silvered forepart and three great flaming "K's" painted beneath. In this the grand dragon rode the clouds, as it were.

Thundering over a Klan assemblage, he would land, clad in flowing purple robes, a fantastic mask over his face.

Startled crowds would stare in awe. Majestically, the grand dragon would step from the plane to the salutes of lesser dignitaries and supernumeraries. Bombs would burst high in the air.

Women would faint. Men would shout themselves hoarse.

Excited Mass of People.

The assemblages were enormous.

As the grand dragon strode toward the mass of people, it is related, women tore their way to the shouded figure, kissed the purple garments, and snatched rings and jewels from their own persons and gave them to the grand dragon.

It was no wonder a man with such a following should begin to dominate politically.

Stories are told of legislators reporting at Stevenson's office before going to the assembly, to receive "do and don't" orders. They were informed which bills the "Old Man" desired passed and which he wanted killed in committee or defeated on the floor, it is said.

Tells of Seeing Politicians Come.

An Ohio man, who at one time was friendly with Stephenson, tells of visiting the latter in his Indianapolis office and seeing many men high in Indiana's political life come there to receive their "orders" from the stout little gentleman, who, while still in his early thirties, was enjoying the power of a monarch.

It wasn't exactly safe to describe "Steve" as stout in the old days when he was king, as one former Indianapolis newspaper man can testify. He and the former grand dragon exchanged several blows as the result of an article in which the writer described "Steve" as "a short stout man with rapidly thinning hair."

Perhaps the most notorious bill traced to Stephenson was one requiring the state superintendent of public instruction to prescribe a text book on nutrition for use in the public schools. On its face it appeared to be a fine bill and Stephenson's influence was not even suspected.

What Investigation Disclosed.

Shortly after the passage of the bill the "nigger in the woodpile" came to light and it was none other than D. C. Stephenson! Having taken a small course in nutrition from a New York concern it was his plan to write the book and reap thousands in royalties, from the pockets of the parents forced to buy the book.

This bill was passed just a few days before Stephenson was arrested for murder and he never realized his ambition. At the last session of the legislature, Attorney General Arthur Gilliom, recalling that the law still existed, obtained its repeal.

Admits Stepenson's Power.

Indiana politicians today, although reluctant to admit that Stephenson possessed the amount of power which he says he did, confide that he controlled not only state officials but municipal officials and postmasters as well.

Ohio also felt his enthusiasm. Thousands of dollars were spent in Ohio campaigns, but Stephenson never actually gained power there, because he could not give enough time to Ohio to insure complete domination. He had a finger, however, in a goodly number of campaigns, and Ohio was not alone in receiving his personal attention. In most of the 21 states in which he was a Klan organizer, Stephenson had a part in things political. But he was to reach his zenith in Hoosierland.

(ANOTHER INSTALMENT TO FOLLOW IN NEXT ISSUE.)

MALONEY WINS COMEBACK BOUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The status of fistiana of Jimmy Maloney, Irish heavyweight from Boston, was not improved today despite his knockout of the Jamaica Kid here last night. In the fourth round the veteran negro boxer decided he had absorbed enough punishment for one evening and took a count of ten on one knee.

Trail Italian Netters.

LEGHORN, Italy, Aug. 13.—The United States university tennis players trailed their Italian opponents by a score of two to three today as a result of the defeat of W. M. Reed of Yale and H. T. Hill of Harvard in the singles, and Charles Watson of Yale and Hill in the doubles by the Italian university champions in yesterday's matches here.

T. B. McGlinn of Yale and L. H. Gordon of Harvard won their singles matches against the Italians.

ROSS WILL TRY FOR BIG PURSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Clarence Ross, America's champion amateur long distance swimmer, has turned professional by entering the 21-mile marathon to be held at Toronto, on Aug. 31. Prizes for the event total $50,000.

Ross held the national A. A. U. long distance championship for three consecutive years. He said he contemplated retiring from the sport soon in any event, and felt that before doing so he "might as well try for the Toronto purse."

London Wants Big Fight.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Tex Rickard, America's foremost sports promoter, may stage a world's heavyweight championship prize fight in London next year, it was learned today. It is reported that an English syndicate already has made an offer to Rickard to match the winner of the Dempsey-Tunney fight against the most promising contender to the title in the English metropolis. It was suggested that the great Wembley stadium might furnish the arena for the battle.

AT LONG BRANCH, N. J. — Ray Mitchell, Philadelphia welterweight, won a newspaper decision over Jackie Ryan, of Baltimore, in 10 rounds.

AT SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Charlie Arthurs, of Newark, N. J., outpointed Young Fisher, Syracuse middleweight, in 10 rounds.

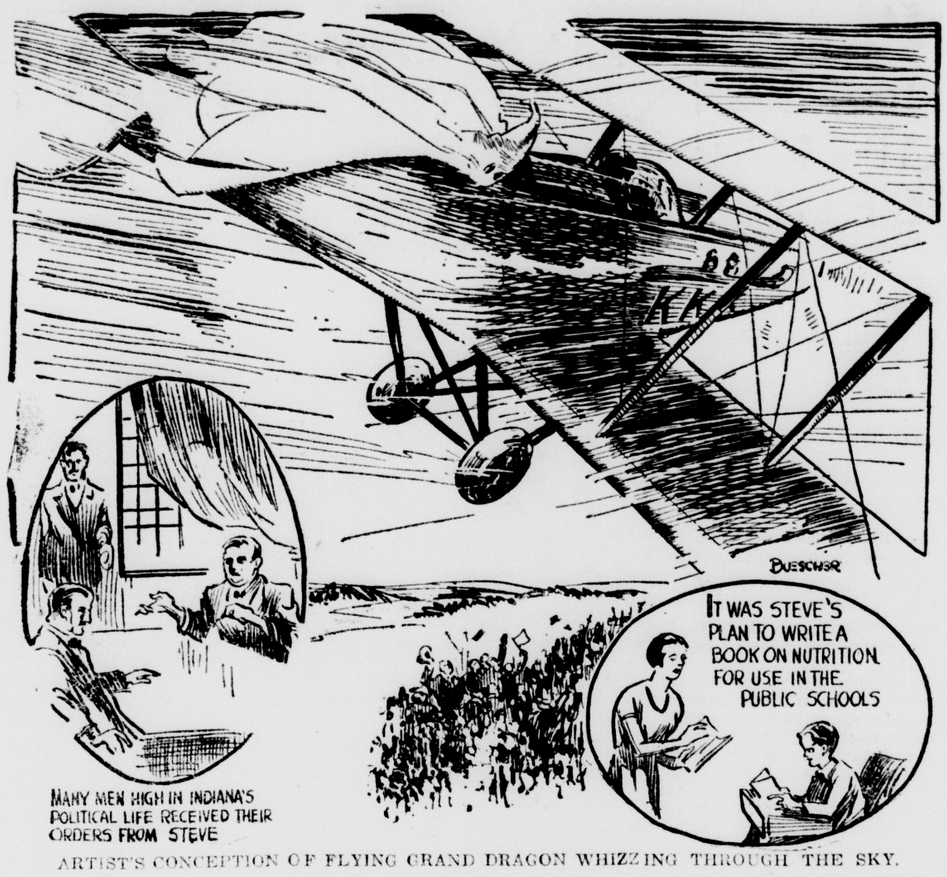
D. C. STEPHENSON, PURPLE-ROBED DRAGON, ALTHOUGH IN PRISON, STILL LIVES IN MINDS OF AWE-INSPIRED FOLKS



ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF FLYING GRAND DRAGON WHIZZING THROUGH THE SKY.

V.

(The story of Indiana's political drama, now unfolding, and its chief character, D. C. Stephenson, reads like a novel. This is the fifth instalment.)

By BONITA WITT

Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

To many folk in Indiana, D. C. Stephenson, although a life prisoner convicted of murder, remains a bit supernatural. His charges against persons of high and low degree are attracting some of his old group again. He still dazzles. No wonder! He was not supernatural, but a super-dramatist of a political personality—and that personality always was himself.

MISS BONITA WITT

Numerous persons predict he'll again appear "out of the sky from nowhere" as once he did.

The Stephenson plane, according to Court Asher, his pilot, was a gaily decorated affair with a silvered forepart and three great flaming "K's" painted beneath. In this the grand dragon rode the clouds, as it were.

Thundering over a Klan assemblage, he would land, clad in flowing purple robes, a fantastic mask over his face.

Startled crowds would stare in awe. Majestically, the grand dragon would step from the plane to the salutes of lesser dignitaries and supernumeraries. Bombs would burst high in the air.

Women would faint. Men would shout themselves hoarse.

Excited Mass of People.

The assemblages were enormous.

As the grand dragon strode toward the mass of people, it is related, women tore their way to the shrouded figure, kissed the purple garments, and snatched rings and jewels from their own persons and gave them to the grand dragon.

It was no wonder a man with such a following should begin to dominate politically.

Stories are told of legislators reporting at Stevenson's office before going to the assembly, to receive "do and don't" orders. They were informed which bills the "Old Man" desired passed and which he wanted killed in committee or defeated on the floor, it is said.

Tells of Seeing Politicians Come.

An Ohio man, who at one time was friendly with Stephenson, tells of visiting the latter in his Indianapolis office and seeing many men high in Indiana's political life come there to receive their "orders" from the stout little gentleman, who, while still in his early thirties, was enjoying the power of a monarch.

It wasn't exactly safe to describe "Steve" as stout in the old days when he was king, as one former Indianapolis newspaper man can testify. He and the former grand dragon exchanged several blows as the result of an article in which the writer described "Steve" as "a short stout man with rapidly thinning hair."

Perhaps the most notorious bill traced to Stephenson was one requiring the state superintendent of public instruction to prescribe a text book on nutrition for use in the public schools. On its face it appeared to be a fine bill and Stephenson's influence was not even suspected.

What Investigation Disclosed.

Shortly after the passage of the bill the "nigger in the woodpile" came to light and it was none other than D. C. Stephenson! Having taken a small course in nutrition from a New York concern it was his plan to write the book and reap thousands in royalties, from the pockets of the parents forced to buy the book.

This bill was passed just a few days before Stephenson was arrested for murder and he never realized his ambition. At the last session of the legislature, Attorney General Arthur Gilliom, recalling that the law still existed, obtained its repeal.

Admits Stepenson's Power.

Indiana politicians today, although reluctant to admit that Stephenson possessed the amount of power which he says he did, confide that he controlled not only state officials but municipal officials and postmasters as well.

Ohio also felt his enthusiasm. Thousands of dollars were spent in Ohio campaigns, but Stephenson never actually gained power there, because he could not give enough time to Ohio to insure complete domination. He had a finger, however, in a goodly number of campaigns, and Ohio was not alone in receiving his personal attention. In most of the 21 states in which he was a Klan organizer, Stephenson had a part in things political. But he was to reach his zenith in Hoosierland.

(ANOTHER INSTALMENT TO FOLLOW IN NEXT ISSUE.)

MALONEY WINS COMEBACK BOUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The status of fistiana of Jimmy Maloney, Irish heavyweight from Boston, was not improved today despite his knockout of the Jamaica Kid here last night. In the fourth round the veteran negro boxer decided he had absorbed enough punishment for one evening and took a count of ten on one knee.

ROSS WILL TRY FOR BIG PURSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Clarence Ross, America's champion amateur long distance swimmer, has turned professional by entering the 21-mile marathon to be held at Toronto, on Aug. 31. Prizes for the event total $50,000.

Ross held the national A. A. U. long distance championship for three consecutive years. He said he contemplated retiring from the sport soon in any event, and felt that before doing so he "might as well try for the Toronto purse."

London Wants Big Fight.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Tex Rickard, America's foremost sports promoter, may stage a world's heavyweight championship prize fight in London next year, it was learned today. It is reported that an English syndicate already has made an offer to Rickard to match the winner of the Dempsey-Tunney fight against the most promising contender to the title in the English metropolis. It was suggested that the great Wembley stadium might furnish the arena for the battle.

AT LONG BRANCH, N. J. — Ray Mitchell, Philadelphia welterweight, won a newspaper decision over Jackie Ryan, of Baltimore, in 10 rounds.

AT SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Charlie Arthurs, of Newark, N. J., outpointed Young Fisher, Syracuse middleweight, in 10 rounds.

How THE Other Half Behaves

GET MY GOAT, BUT GIVE ME DOG

CHICAGO. — Titus Haffa, a politician, appeared before Judge John Sbarbo explaining that somebody had gotten his goat.

"Your honor," said he, "I'll be dogoned if somebody didn't steal my dog," as he asked the court to issue a warrant for Sammy Rizzon, who, he claimed, had the dog.

"Your dog!" said the judge. "I thought somebody had gotten your goat."

"Yes, that's right," Haffa explained. "They got my goat when they stole my dog."

"Then you want a warrant issued for stealing a dog because somebody got you goat?" inquired the judge.

"No, no, your honor, not because he got my goat, but because he stole my dog."

"Oh!" said the judge.

DIGNIFIED DUCK COMMANDS RESPECT

BOURNE, England. — A traffic policeman on a busy main road near Bourne, didn't think anything of holding up traffic for 10 minutes to give a duck a chance to lay an egg. When he noticed a duck waddling across the road, he halted automobiles to give the bird a chance. But half way over the road she sat down. Having laid the egg, she leisurely resumed her journey. After the egg was salvaged by the policeman the halted cars were permitted to proceed.

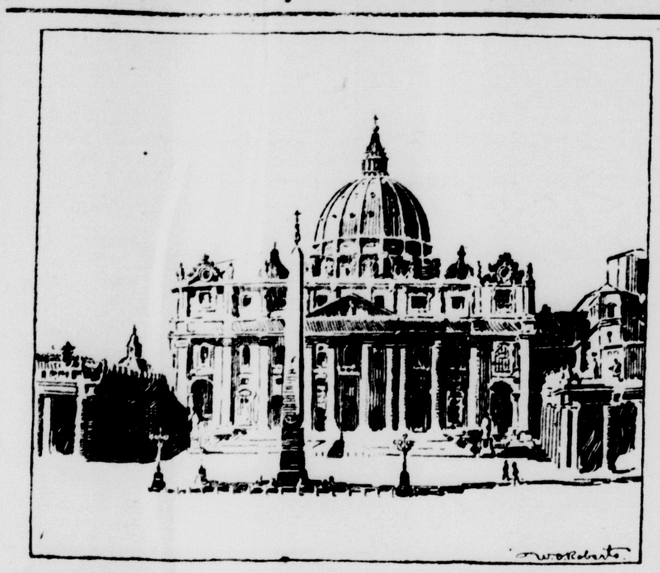
FAMOUS CHURCH OF THE WORLD

The Basilica of St. Peter of the Vatican, at Rome.



The present basilica of St. Peter, the largest church in the world, was begun under Pope Nicholas V in 1450, after a plan by Rosselini, on the site of the oratory which was constructed by Pope Anacletus and later replaced by the basilica erected in the fourth century by Constantine.

Under Julius II a new plan was submitted by Bramante, and was followed mainly in the erection of the present structure. Some of the great masters were employed in the formation and decoration of this magnificent basilica. Leo X employed Raphael, Giamberti, and Giocondo de Verona, while the great dome owes its beauty to Michael Angelo, who designed and nearly completed it. The building was consecrated by Urban VIII in 1626, and the final touches were added under Pope Pius VI in 1754.

Although this is the largest church in the world, its splendid proportions conceal its great bulk. The total cost was more than sixty millions dollars It is built entirely of travertine from Tivoli, and it is because of the sunny hue of this stone that it still looks as fresh as though it had just been completed.

The great dome surmounting it is visible for many miles around Rome.

OLDSMOBILE SIX
PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

Anti-Knock
SUPER-FLASH GASOLINE

Several years ago one or two far-sighted automobile manufacturers offered to the motoring public four-wheel brakes. There were people then who had always driven carefully—who had never had an accident, and who could see no need for four-wheel brakes. Today those same people are driving cars equipped with four - wheel brakes and they wouldn't be without them.

Likewise, the average motorist is satisfied with ordinary gasoline until he first uses a motor fuel refined so pure as to eliminate the objectionable and destructive "knock" without the addition of "dope" or dye. He immediately discovers that he is getting more power and more mileage and that he has found "the last word in motor fuels."

We enjoy the distinction of being the first in this community to supply such a gasoline at the same price as ordinary gasoline.

A trial will convince you that this gasoline has opened a new era in automobile performance.

How THE Other Half Behaves

GET MY GOAT, BUT GIVE ME DOG

CHICAGO. — Titus Haffa, a politician, appeared before Judge John Sharbo explaining that somebody had gotten his goat.

"Your honor," said he, "I'll be doggoned if somebody didn't steal my dog," as he asked the court to issue a warrant for Sammy Rizzon, who, he claimed, had the dog.

"Your dog!" said the judge. "I thought somebody had gotten your goat."

"Yes, that's right," Haffa explained. "They got my goat when they stole my dog."

"Then you want a warrant issued for stealing a dog because somebody got you goat?" inquired the judge.

"No, no, your honor, not because he got my goat, but because he stole my dog."

"Oh!" said the judge.

DIGNIFIED DUCK COMMANDS RESPECT

BOURNE, England. — A traffic policeman on a busy main road near Bourne, didn't think anything of holding up traffic for 10 minutes to give a duck a chance to lay an egg. When he noticed a duck waddling across the road, he halted automobiles to give the bird a chance. But half way over the road she sat down. Having laid the egg, she leisurely resumed her journey. After the egg was salvaged by the policeman the halted cars were permitted to proceed.

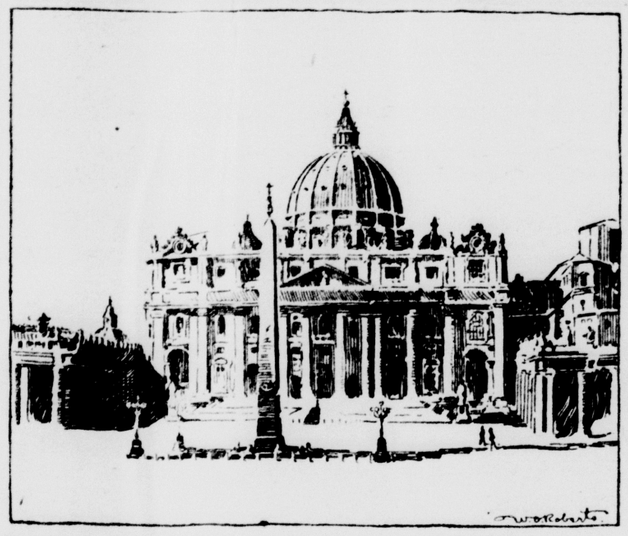
FAMOUS CHURCH OF THE WORLD

The Basilica of St. Peter of the Vatican, at Rome.



The present basilica of St. Peter, the largest church in the world, was begun under Pope Nicholas V in 1450, after a plan by Rosselini, on the site of the oratory which was constructed by Pope Anacletus and later replaced by the basilica erected in the fourth century by Constantine.

Under Julius II a new plan was submitted by Bramante, and was followed mainly in the erection of the present structure. Some of the great masters were employed in the formation and decoration of this magnificent basilica. Leo X employed Raphael, Giamberti, and Giocondo de Verona, while the great dome owes its beauty to Michael Angelo, who designed and nearly completed it. The building was consecrated by Urban VIII in 1626, and the final touches were added under Pope Pius VI in 1754.

Although this is the largest church in the world, its splendid proportions conceal its great bulk. The total cost was more than sixty millions dollars It is built entirely of travertine from Tivoli, and it is because of the sunny hue of this stone that it still looks as fresh as though it had just been completed.

The great dome surmounting it is visible for many miles around Rome.

TAXI DRIVER'S JAW FRACTURED IN ATTACK IN RIVER COUNYY

About 300 Assail Man Who Aided Non-Union Workers.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 13.—With four men and two women said to be union sympathizers, under arrest, and charged with inciting a riot and assault with intent to kill, five affidavits on file charging Sheriff Hardesty with intoxication while on duty, and one man suffering a fractured jaw, affairs at the Provident mine, Belmont county, took a serious aspect today, according to Col. L. E. Conelly, Ohio National Guard officer, investigating the mine situation here for Governor Donahey and Adjutant General Frank Henderson.

Men and Women Arrested.

The men and women were charged with inciting a riot and assault to kill as the result of an alleged attack late Friday upon C. V. Nichols, Wheeling, W. Va., taxi driver who is said to have been driving non-union workers to the Provident mine.

About 300 men and women were in the attacking crowd, it was reported, "including a black whiskered man who led the crowd." This man is said to be still at large.

Those arrested were Mike Primolozich, president of the Provident mine local; Steve Silich and Santa Santuno, secretary and treasurer of the mine local; John Karopsic and Mrs. Mary Popick and a Mrs. Frenchia.

Those arrested are being held at the

COMIC artists will find little inspiration in this news item:

In Vienna the Socialist municipal government has erected, in a working class district, at a cost of one million dollars, the finest bath house in the world. There are "Roman-Irish" baths (whatever they may be) underground, sun and air baths on the roof, with flowers growing there, and mud baths among the flowers; also electric, salt and violet ray baths.

That isn't the American humorist's idea of a Socialist enterprise.

FEMALE college graduates are inclined not to marry, which is bad for the country and the young women. Why develop your brain if you don't PERPETUATE the improvement in good sons and daughters?

VASSAR knows that babies are important, no matter what her daughters may thing, and establishes a Summer school to train mothers and fathers also in bringing up children.

A new building will house this new branch of learning, and husbands will be allowed to attend the Summer lectures. Living quarters will be provided for them at Vassar. All of which is common sense.

German and British Ocean Flyers Delay Start for America

ARMY BALLOON IS RACE ENTRANT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Entry of an army team in the Gordon-Bennett International balloon races, which will start from the Ford airport, Detroit, Michigan, on September 10, was authorized today by the war department.

The team will consist of Captain William E. Kepner, pilot, and Lieutenant William O. Eareckson, aide. These men, both stationed at Scott field, Belleville, Illinois, won third place in national elimination races from Akron, Ohio, last May. In that race they covered 595 miles.

The first Gordon-Bennett International race held in 1906 in Paris, was won by Lieutenant Frank P. Lahm, now brigadier general and assistant to the chief of the air corps.

Atlantic Storms Force Postponement of Hop Off from Southampton, England, and Dessau, Germany.

AIRMEN MAY JUMP WITHIN 48 HOURS

Fresh Controversy Between Levine and French Pilot Makes "Columbia's" Take-off Uncertain.

BERLIN, Aug. 13. — Baron Koennecke and his observer, Count Solms, hopped off from here for Cologne tonight on the first leg of their proposed flight from Berlin to New York.

At Cologne the flyers will complete their preparations and await favorable atmospheric conditions before starting the trans-Atlantic flight.

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 13.—Owing to reports of storms over the Atlantic, the hop-off of the Junkers planes, Europa and Bremen, for New York was postponed today. The airplanes were to have started on the trans-ocean flight between 6 and 7 o'clock this evening. The pilots hope they can get away tomorrow, but it is uncertain, owing to the vagaries of the weather.

The postponement of the takeoff caused great disappointment to the airmen, officials of the Junkers company and the big army of journalists and photographers, as well as to the big crowd of visitors from all parts of Germany. For 48 hours aviation enthusiasts have been gathering here overcrowding all the hotels and boarding houses.

Courtney To Make Two Stops.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 13.—Stormy weather over the Atlantic is still delaying Captain Frank T. Courtney, British air ace, who will attempt to fly from the British Isles to North America.

Courtney hopes to get away within 48 hours.

THREE DEATHS FAIL TO UPSET DOLE RACE PLAN

Arthur V. Rodgers Briton, Killed in Crash.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Calif. Aug. 13.—Despite the tragic deaths of three aviators entered in the $35,000 Dole prize air race to Honolulu, preparations for the start of the marathon at noon Tuesday, were going forward at feverish pace today.

Arthur V. Rodgers, former British army flyer, is the latest entrant to be "scratched" by the Grim Reaper. When his tandem-motored monoplane crashed at Los Angeles yesterday during a trial flight, he became the third victim in as many days. Three planes have been smashed during the trials.

Lieutenants George D. Covell and R. S. Waggener were killed at Point Loma while on their way here to enter the flight and James L. Giffin and his navigator, Ten Lundgren, narrowly escaped death Thursday when their plane fell into San Francisco bay.

Additional precautions were being taken here today against injury to the great crowd expected when the fliers takeoff for the islands. Lines were set back further from the runway and policemen will be stationed about every twenty feet on the spectators side of the field.

Four Pilots Qualified.

Although certificates of qualification will not be placed in the hands of the aviators until just before noon Tuesday, Lieut. B. H. Wyatt, representing the United States department of commerce, department of aeronautics, has assured four pilots that they have convinced the government they

Police today were advised that Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers in the East Liverpool district had made arrangements for a [illegible] Grove, in California Hollow, when protest will be made against the death sentence pronounced upon the alleged slayers in the South Braintree, Mass., case. Handbills advertising the meeting were printed in English and Italian.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—Developments in the world-famous Sacco-Vanzetti case came thick and fast today.

Members of the Provincetown art colony—made up of some of the best known writers, poets, painters, players, play rights and critics in the country—opened headquarters of a new defense committee in an exclusive Beacon Hill hotel for the purpose of launching a nation-wide drive to have President Coolidge intervene by opening the department of justice records, to show, it was said, that Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti suffered at their murder trial because of their radical beliefs.

Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the late President Wilson, who led the movement which resulted in her father's intervention in the celebrated Mooney case, was said to be a member of the new Sacco-Vanzetti committee, organized by Walter L. Igett, art colony member.

Undisturbed by the fact that the Boston police broke up their meeting last Sunday, arresting four men as the sepakers attempted to assail Governor Alvin T. Fuller and Trial Judge Webster Thayer, the original Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee announced a "final protest meeting" for tomorrow afternoon. Efforts by this committee to obtain a public hall failed. Outdoor plans were balked too, when Mayor Malcolm Nichols suspended a Boston common permit.

Nip Gunmen's Plot to Kill Jail Guards

Fate of Cosgrove Gov-at Murder Plan and Tell of Proposed Escape at Doylestown, Pa.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Aug. 13.—Details of a plot by two notorious gunmen to escape from the Bucks county jail here were revealed today with the arrival of Massachusetts officials for one of the gunmen. Revolting at the plan for slaying two of the prison guards, other prisoners told the warden and the jail break was frustrated.

Stephen Lorochelle, 27, alias Sylvester Lyons, of New Bedford, Mass., leader of the contemplated jailbreak, will be taken back to Massachusetts today by Captain Raymond Chase and Sergeant John Davies of the New Bedford police. Lorochelle is wanted for escaping from the Rutland state prison while serving a term for robbery, police said.

He is a member of a gang of gunmen operating in a number of eastern states and is known as one of the most notorious gunmen in the east, Captain Chase told local officials.

TRUCK PLUNGES OVER DECLIVITY

A Ford truck belonging to the Nightengale dry cleaning establishment, in the Ceramic Cafeteria building, plunged over a 30-foot enbankment near the Second Baptist church, Pennsylvania avenue, late yesterday afternoon, but no one was injured. SEEKS $15,000 FOR AUTO CRASH

Roy Welsh, 1308 St. Clair avenue, was today named defendant in a suit for $15,000 damages filed in the common pleas court at Lisbon by Alice G. Russell as an aftermath of an automobile collision near the corner of Pennsylvania and Virginia avenues on Sunday, May 1. The plaintiff is represented by Attorney Charles Boyd.

Welsh is declared to have been driving at a speed rate of between 30 and 40 miles whe nhis car collided with the plaintiff's machine. Mrs. Russell claims to have been badly injured in the crash.

MISS AVA MYLER DYING OF BURNS

Miss Ava Myler, secretary of the Spring Grove cemetery association, was believed to be dying at her home on Woodlawn avenue today from the effects of burns sustained April 4, when her clothing ignited from an open gas fire.

Miss Myler has been unconscious since Thursday.

LESTER HIGLEY, WHO DUG WAY OUT OFF CELL, HELD IN WEST

AUTO THEFT COUNT

Accused Will Be Returned Here for Hearing.

Lester Higley, 32, machinist, who escaped from the East Liverpool jail a week ago yesterday, where he was being held on a charge of automobile stealing, has been recaptured at Freeport, Ill., Sheriff George Wright was advised today.

May Demand Extradition Papers.

Suspecting that Higley would go to his former home in Illinois, Wright telegraphed report authorities last Saturday, asking that they be on the lookous for the fugitive. John G. Hayes, sheriff at Freeport, notified the sheriff's office that Higley was in jail and would be held pending the arrival of the sheriff or a deputy.

Sheriff Wright, who is visiting in the east is not expected to return to Lisbon until Sunday. He probably will start for Freeport early next week. Should Higley refuse to return to Lisbon, it will be necessary for the sheriff to apply for extradition papers. This will cause another delay of a week or more.

Higley is charged with having taken an automobile belonging to the Trotter-Chevrolet company last April, and moving it into Illinois where he dealt it in on another car. He was arrested about three weeks ago but refused to return to Ohio to answer to the charge. Extradition papers were obtained by Sheriff Wright who brought him back to Lisbon.

Dug Hole in Wall.

The prisoner was brought from Lisbon to East Liverpool and turned over to police, who did not lock him in a cell but allowed him the freedom of the corridors. When Judge Hanley called for the arraignment of the suspect two days later he could not be found. In the south wall of the city jail police found a 9 by 12-inch hole through which Higley was thought to have made his getaway early Friday morning.

Fellow prisoners told Howard Scott, janitor at the city hall, that Higley had walked out of the door of the jail and through the garage at the rear of the building while other prisoners were being arraigned before Judge Hanley on Friday morning. This theory is not supported by Desk Sergeant Henry Aufderheide who was on duty at the police quarters on Saturday morning.

FORMER SOLON J. B. ROWE DIES

Furniture Dealer Succumbs in His Home Here.

John Brady Rowe, 71, furniture dealer and former councilman, died today in his home, 304 Washington street, after 18 months' illness.

Mr. Rowe, who was a lifelong resident of East Liverpool, had been engaged in the furniture business for many years. He represented the third ward in council for one term. He was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

He leaves his widow, two sons and one daughter: Harry P. Rowe, Steubenville; Joseph Rowe, and Mrs. O. C. Tallman, Holliday's Cove; three brothers, William, Basil and George Rowe, East Liverpool, and five sisters, Mrs. Elmer Eagon, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. B. A. Rigby, Mrs. Frank Rigby, Mrs. Harry Welch, and Mrs. Frank E. Oyster, all of East Liverpool. Eight grandchildren also survive.

$45,000 ADDITION TO POTTERS' BUILDING WILL BE READY SEPT. 1

Subordinate Unions Will Occupy Second Floor Of Headquarters on West Sixth Street.

New addition to the headquarters building of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, West Sixth street, will be completed on or about September 1, it was announced today by officers of the organization.

Interior decorators are now at work in the building and this part of the work will in all probability be completed within two weeks. Decorating of the headquarters office has been finished.

Subordinate unions will occupy four spacious rooms on the second floor of the building.

The new building is two stories high with a basement. An assembly hall suitable for dances or social gatherings has been provided on the main floor, back of the office quarters. Banquet room and kitchen facilities are in the basement at the rear of the Potters' Herald printing plant.

The addition represents an expenditure of approximately $45,000. D. F. Nellis & Sons were the contractors.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS - CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS' OUTING ON WEDNESDAY

Tri-State Lodge Men and Women Will Feature Novel Program at Rock Springs Park Picnic.

Tri-state outing of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Daughters of America will be held at Rock Springs park next Wednesday.

A program of outdoor sports will be featured. Boys will be pitted against the girls in peanut race and egg races. Baby contest will be held in the dance pavilion, Virginia Gardens, at 3 p. m. Babies between the ages of six months and one year will compose one class, while another class will include children between one and two years of age.

Other events slated are baseball throwing and nail driving contests for women. There will be tugs of war between members of the various councils and courts. A prize will be given for the largest family attending the outing. Families must register at the park office in order to compete for this award.

A mardi gras and serpentine dance will be held at Virginia Gardens in the evening.

TEACHERS' MEET IS SCHEDULED

Annual Institute Will Open Wednesday at County Seat.

Hancock county teachers' institute will open on Wednesday, August 17, at the court house in New Cumberland and will be in session for the two days following.

P. E. King, principal of Triadelphia high school, and W. E. Stoddard, principal of Charleston (W. Va.) high school, will be among the chief speakers at the institute, it was announced today.

Superintendent H. O. Miller of the Hancock county school is now completing arrangements for the institute. The affair this year will be held but three days instead of the customary five-day period, and in order to complete a full program in the three days the programs will be lengthy for each day.

The music for the three-day institute will be in charge of the state department who will also send additional speakers for the institute from the state school department at Charleston. All teachers of Hancock county will attend the institute.

Chance To Register.

Voters of Greene township who are not registered can do so by applying in person at the Beaver county court house not later than September 10. The primaries will be held on Tuesday, September 20.

Hoffman, of Rainelle, second vice president; Miss Margaret Muldrew of Clator, Wheeling, third vice president; M. F. Collins, of Morgantown, fourth vice president; Miss Nevah Westfall, of Charleston, secretary; E. V. Smith, of Clarksburg, treasurer; Mrs. A. H. Rapking, of Buckhannon, junior league superintendent, and Mrs. Virginia Lewis, of Moundsville, intermediate superintendent.

WEIRTON TO HAVE AVIATION FIELD

Weirton is to have a standard commercial airport in the very near future, it was made known by a group of Weirton business men. Three sites are under consideration.

It is the plan of the sponsors to provide the field with shops and hangars and comply with all government specifications, placing the field in the first class rating.

It was also announced that a plane bearing the name of Weirton has been ordered from the Waco company and will be entered in the New York-Spokane $50,000 prize flight. A. L. Smith of Bridgeville, Pa., will pilot the ship.

VISITING PASTORS TO FILL PULPITS

Rev. Alexander Steele, pastor of the Brookline Methodist Episcopal church, Pittsburgh, will preach tomorrow night at the services in the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Rev. Cameron B. Reed, of St. Louis, Mo., will preach at the morning services in the First United Presbyterian church. Pulpit of the First Presbyterian church will be occupied in the morning by Rev. W. R. Craig, D. D., of Latrobe, Pa.

Annual reunion and basket picnic of the Allison school will be held at the school house on Saturday, August 20.

'ROOKIES' HIT AT AMERICAN

Riotous Comedy Feature Opens Three-Day Run On Monday.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer seems to have depleted the government army and navy branches as backgrounds for film stories. Ramon Novarro used Annapolis as a background for "The Midshipman" and John Gilbert had the cooperation of the army in the making of "The Big Parade." "Tell It to the Marines," which had the entire U. S. Marine Corps back of it. At the American theatre "Rookies" will open a three-day run on Monday. It, too, was made with the cooperation of the government and is laid against a background of life at a citizens' military training camp, such as is held annually in most of the states.

The picture gives a real lesson in training camp life and depicts the work of the recruits there. It is a riotous comedy featuring a new screen team, Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, with Marceline Day. Louise Lorraine has a prominent role, as have Tom O'Brien and Frank Currier. The picture was directed by Sam Wood, responsible, directorially, for many of Wallace Reid's old thrillers.

ALLISON FAMILY REUNION LISTED

Annual reunion of the Allison family will be held next Thursday at Rock Springs park. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock. Friends are invited.

Roy Hunter is president of the association, while Harry Allison is secretary.

Lawn Fete Arranged.

Members of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Methodist Episcopal church have arranged a lawn fete to be held next Thursday night at the church.

To Inspect Roads.

State and divisional engineers are expected to visit Hancock county next week on a road inspection tour which includes northern panhandle counties. Several highways are listed for improvement before the close of the year.

GASOLINE TAX MONEY RETURNED

For the six months ending June 30, $1,525,424.13 gasoline tax money collected by the state will be returned to the counties in which it was collected. Of this amount Beaver county will receive $23,748.74. Altogether during the six months, from January 1 to June 30, $94,994.98 gasoline tax was collected in Beaver county. This means that tax was paid on approximately 4,749,749 gallons of gasoline sold at retail in Beaver county.

The sum of $23,748.74 will be returned to the county as its share of the tax for road work. Under the law a half cent of the tax collected on each gallon is returned to the county in which it was collected.

MIDLAND HOLDS COUNTY RECORD

Midland and Woodlawn boroughs have the heaviest Republican registration in Beaver county, according to figures computed in the office of the county commissioners. Midland has only four registered Democrats as against 1,863 Republicans, while Woodlawn has 8,562 Republicans and only 201 Democrats.

Total registration of Beaver county shows 49,258 Republicans as against 6,616 Democrats. These figures will be boosted by additional registration for the primaries to be held September 20.

Lodgemen to Meet.

Members of Tri-State encampment No. 354, I. O. O. F. will meet Monday night in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Routine business will be transacted.

Hold Outing at Creek.

Group of local young people enjoyed an outing last night at Beaver creek. Program of athletic events was followed by a picnic supper.

Pastors to Preach.

Pastors will be in charge of services tomorrow at the usual hours in the churches of this section of the city.

PROGRESS MADE ON NEW PLANT

Contractors are making rapid progress on the construction of the new tunnel kiln plant of the Homer Laughlin China company. Work of laying concrete has practically been completed. It is believed that the clay shop will begin operations about the middle of October.

WEIRTON BRIDGE PLAN APPROVED

The U. S. War Department has announced final record of their approval of the application of the Weirton-Steubenville Bridge company, which was given some months ago.

The work on the new bridge pier by the Dravo Construction company is proceeding steadily and rapidly. The company has 65 men at work. They have a mixer boat, two derrick boats, and two land whirlers on the job. The piers will not be ready for structural work until spring 1928. It was announced today.

One caisson was placed last week and another this week and they were concreted to hold them. More concrete is being poured and extension coffers are being built to be placed on top of the caissons.

The piers are to rest on the rock under the river. Rock was found 32 to 35 feet beneath the level of a post stage of water.

Workmen are getting ready for the Ohio pier and anchorage, which reaches Stanton boulevard from which roadway the approach to the bridge will be from the north and south both. On the West Virginia shore they are sinking the anchorage pier.

Services Here Tomorrow.

Services will be held tomorrow at the usual hours in the various churches of the city. Pulpit of the Christian church will be occupied by Rev. C. Melvin McKay.

SYNOPSIS.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mix-up in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's and all go to the ranch, where John meets Mannuel Lopez, Roderiguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle. He learns that Morton's business with these men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO.

"Watch!" though John Moore in the shadows. "Why, he did not lend me any watch. What the devil! That is an excuse to get into my room. He's walking down there now."

He heard Clench rap on the door This, John remembered, stood open, right by the bed.

Clench's voice again. "That's all right, Mr. Moore. I just came for my watch—Thanks. I can find it easy enough on the bureau—"

"By Jove!" puzzled John. "He sounds as if he were talking to me and I were answering him. He's in my room. No. he's out again."

Clench was saying. "Goodnight, sir."

John heard him walk down the long porch and halt midway for an instant to call, "I got it all right. Buenas noches."

"Well, I'll be damned," exclaimed John Moore. He stood straining his ears to hear more.

But there was no more to hear. The silence of the night closed over the words Clench had spoken as the waters of a pool close over the stone thrown into them. The silence deepened and spread; sinking from terrace to terrace, circling out beneath the shadows of the trees.

The wail of the dove in the pepper tree throbbed through the silence. "Who's that? Who's that? Who's that?"

John Moore shook himself a little. "It is just as well you spoke up, you calamity wailer, you," he told the bird under his breath. "I was forgetting to breath? I haven't learned to be nonchalant in melodrama yet. Give me time. Let me figure this thing out."

"Clench went to my room to get his watch. He told Roderiguez so. He told me so when he reached my door. And as far as I could judge from down here in the garden I told him to go ahead and get his blamed watch off the bureau. He went into the room, found the watch all right, came out and thanked me for letting him get it. That I was not there was a detail which did not bother him at all. Naturally, he thought it would not bother a man who could find that watch on that bureau. And he did find it. He told Roderiguez so. Wait a minute, now!

"Clench told Roderiguez to begin with that he was going to my room for his watch. As his watch was not in my room he did not go for it. But Roderiguez must have thought he went for the watch. Now we are coming. He was fooling Roderiguez—not me. And he continued to fool Roderiguez. When he discovered I was not in bed—and he could easily discover that by touching the bed from the doorway—he spoke as if I were there. Clench did not disclose my absence. Why not? Obviously he was standing with me against Roderiguez.

"Why would he do that? Why did he trouble himself to come to my room at all tonight? He could have seen me easily enough in the morning—

"What he came for couldn't wait until morning— He came to tell me something they planned down there after I left. That's it! What the devil it is, is more than I can guess. I'll try and see him later. Now I am going to see the Ambassador."

There was no sound from the hilltop house. Standing on the back of the bench he grasped the top of the wall and slowly drew himself up to where he could throw himself half across it. He twisted himself about until he lay full length along the wall and looked back into the garden.

"Who's that? Who's that? Who's that?" crooned the dove in the pepper tree.

"What's it to you?" jeered John Moore softly. "Keep out of this, will you? You are making me see things—"

There! By the pool—A figure had slipped down the moonlit steps of the porch and into the shadows by the swimming pool.

John Moore, up on the wall, strained his eyes to see through the gloom. "If that is Clench trying to find me—"

The figure appeared again for an instant in the bright moonlight on the steps to the middle terrace. John saw him distinctly. It was not Clench. It was a smaller, stouter man than Clench—It was Manuel Lopez. Having reached the level he once more slunk into the shadows. John saw him again on the steps to the first level and still again near the lower house.

There came to John's straining ears a ight faint tap on wood repeated at intervals; the sound of iron bolts slipping in their grooves; a sentence begun and abruptly stopped; then silence.

"This is getting entirely too thick to suit an amateur like myself," thought John Moore. "I don't get the combination at all. It is a pity I didn't cut out a few blue prints and take a heavy course in Harold MacGrath some place along the line. A man never knows what he needs in time. I will just have to carry on with my simple little plans."

He stood up, held taut the rope fastened in the tree above him, and walked backward down the outside of the wall. Once on the ground he looked about him. The hilltop lay in brilliant moonlight; at its foot were the cottonwoods and the huts of the Mexicans. He knew Ramon's house. He had taken the pains to walk by it in the afternoon.

"It is just as well I got out of that garden for a little. I was getting imaginative in there. It will do me good to see the Ambassador." Keeping close in by the wall he moved down the hill to the road. Along this he walked boldly. "If they do see me they will think it a Mexican," he thought.

As he stooped before Ramon's house a man who had been sitting on the doorstep arose. "Senor," greeted Ramon quietly. "Eef you weel come into my house—" he stood aside that John might precede him.

It was a small room with no windows. A fire burned on the tiny hearth. John crossed to this and waited until Ramon had bolted the door. The two men shook hands as if they were friends of long standing. "I am mighty glad to see you," said John Moore.

"Gracious senor, De senorita tol' me you help her mucho."

"Not yet. How is the sick baby?"

Ramon stared, then shrugged. "Dat was a leetle lie, senor, I hav' to see de senorita an' tell her I come back."

"And that is the way you have to do it. By Jove, Ramon, that 's a damned bad lot of men over there."

"Si, senor. I tol' you. De senorita—she not know how ver' bad dey are."

"And she is not going to if I can prevent it. Ramon, I am going to take her to Tucson tomorrow."

"Bueno, senor, I tink you do dat dis morning'."

"Well, you are some thinker! Now—if they will let her go—and lend me Roderiguez's car—"

"No, senor."

"That's what I think. Miss Henshaw told me there are no other cars?"

"No, senor."

"Then we will have to go horseback. I walked up that arroyo back of the house this afternoon. Couldn't you stake out a couple of horses in that big clump of mesquite trees up there? All saddled and ready to go—any minute? With some food and water?"

"Si, senor. In one hour I do heem."

"Fine business. Which is the shortest road to the railroad?"

"De trail in dat arroyo leads to de Magdalena road, senor. De railroad is dere. But you mus' not go to Magdalena, senor. Dose men weel tink you go to Magdalena an' even eef—somethi'g get de matta wid de automobeel— he can ride faster horseback dan you wid de senorita, senor."

"Right. But still if we could get a head start—"

Ramon shook his head earnestly. "Anywhere in Mexico dey find you—dey stop you, senor. Even in Nogales. You mus' not go dat way."

"How then? By Sasabe?"

War Against Intoxicated Drivers

As a result of enactment of the Creighton law, which became effective in Ohio on August 2, thus providing more stringent punishment for recklessness on the highways, Cleveland today launched a campaign against the menace of the intoxicated automobile driver.

Recognizing the fact that a jail term is more effective than a nominal fine for the motorist who mixes alcohol with gasoline, but at the same time desirous of keeping cash penalities in the city coffers, the Cleveland Automobile club has drafted for presentation to council an ordinance to conform with the state enactment.

The new state law provides that any person driving while under the influence of intoxicants shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $500, or shall be imprisoned for not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or both, and that the offender's right to operate a car shall be suspended for not less than six months nor more than one year. For a second offense a motorist shall be deprived of the right to drive for not less than one year nor more than five.

East Liverpool's ordinance for the punishment of intoxicated drivers is much less stringent.

As the Cleveland Automobile club points out, the state law can, of course, be invoked in any city, but to do so would divert fines thus assessed from the municipal treasury into the coffers of the state. For this reason uniformity of state and city enactments would give the fines of offenders to the community which suffers from their recklessness.

East Liverpool solons would make no mistake in emulating the example of the Forest City, while the enactment would provide the means of coping with the motor maniac who endangers sober and careful drivers as well as himself.

The Unfamiliar Bible

The other day, as everybody knows, the Prince of Wales made a speech at the dedication of the new international bridge across the Niagara river. The press report of his speech quoted him as saying that "to seek peace and insure it is the first and highest duty" of this and future generations.

The reporter misquoted the Prince. His Royal Highness was quoting the Bible. The reporter obviously was not on quoting terms with that book and consequently failed to understand the Prince's words.

Edward of England, as a man who both heard the speech and knows his Bible points out, was alluding to verse II from Chapter III of the second epistle of Peter, in which the words are "seek peace, and ensue it."

Says the same keen listener, speaking of the reporter and of Americans in general who didn't recognize the allusion:

"The young man of today knows less about the Bible than the young man of any generation for 300 years.

"And he is missing a lot by this ignorance. I speak now from the standpoint of literary knowledge, rather than religious knowledge. Literature is packed with Scriptural words, allusions and unmarked quotations; and the reader who does not recognize them is losing the flavor of the writing."

Not too many persons in this day even know that literature has a "flavor" which it is delightful to recognize and enjoy. Present generations haven't time for such tastes.

Gentlemen's Preference

Ever since Anita Loos pointed out so effectively that "gentlemen prefer blondes" the old war of rivalry between blondes and brunettes has been waged with renewed vigor. Friends of each type are forever coming forward with new claims for their own favorite. The blondes rather lose the argument in two recent instances.

The first case, described at length on the front page of a metropolitan daily newspaper is based, on an ad in the "Help Wanted" columns of the New York World. An advertising agency, wanting a stenographer of real worth, specified "brunette" in its published ad. The reporter who went to ask "Why?" learned much from the vice president of the concern.

"Past experience with blonde or red-haired employes," said that individual, "shows they possess the following negative qualities." He then enumerates. They are temperamental, too independent, irregular, tactless, bluffers, and inefficient.

That's terrible. Now listen to the testimony of a Liberty, Mo., parson who has married 4,500 couples.

"The red-haired girl always seems to have the attitude of 'here's my man, tie him to me'; the brunette is serious and seems to take the ceremony in earnest, but the dumbest bride, who often seems to wonder what it's all about, is the blonde."

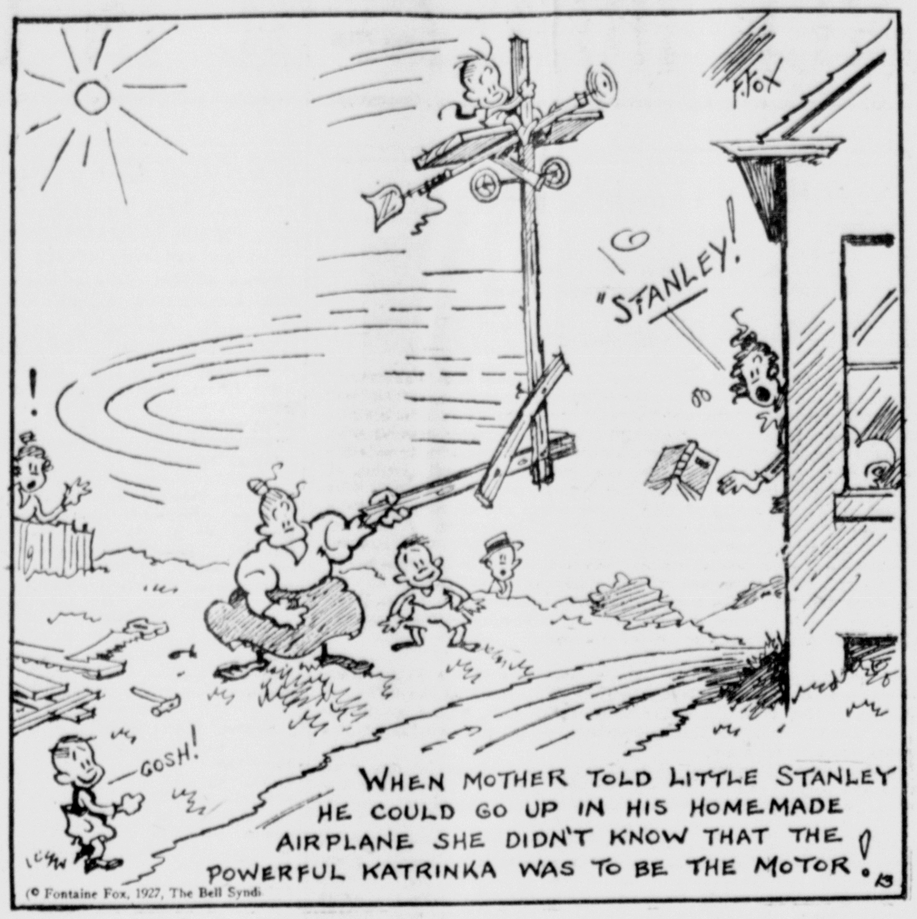
All of which may be true. We don't know. But granting all the faults of blondes, as set forth by the advertising agency and the parson, the main fact at issue—the social preferences of gentlemen—seems to remain unsettled and even undiscussed.

When Premier Baldwin and Vice President Dawes met the other day, they neglected a great opportunity to compare pipes.

When the internal revenue bureau rules that authors' royalties are "unearned income," a host of authors rise up and inform the I. R. B. that it doesn't know what it's talking about.

Sacco and Vanzetti may be executed for murder, but the same old debate as to whether they're guilty will go right on.

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang—— By Fontaine Fox



NEW YORK, Aug 13.—Manhattan's superiority in handling big crowds in emergency is one of the most striking things about the metropolis. No celebration has proved too big and there have been some whoppers in the last few years.

There are no hard riding Russian methods. The police have a coaxing manner that never seems to fail. I have often noted a flying wedge cutting a path through a jam. It suggests a keen blade going through a cake.

"Give way a little, please, ladies and gentlemen" a polite captain will suggest and the crowds respond to the polite gesture almost invariably. About the only time the crowds got out of bounds in recent years was at the Valentino bier and even then it resulted only in a few smashed windows.

All this, despite the fact it is the largest city and nowhere is curiosity so pronounced. The departure of a movie star on the first lap of the journey to Hollywood will often pack one of the large railroad terminals.

The police have been trained to know that the spirit of a crowd, touched by fear, is destructive. It is a spark that may incite a holocaust. So their attitude becomes jovial and coaxing. If someone becomes obstreperous he is shamed out of it. It is the sort of horse sense often called psychology.

It has been possible to fool a crowd by spiriting the celebrity through some secret passage. This is rarely done for a crowd thus fooled often becomes dangerous. It was tried once many years ago with a puglist champion and many were trampled.

A martial triangle of Greenwich Village has spawned a literary triangle. A novelist left his wife for one he considered a fairer charmer and then wrote a book about it. His deserted wife encompassed her reactions in a volume. And now the woman who caused it all has given her novelized version.

George Ade, Nellie Revell and Jay House have recently put my first name in quotes—thus "Odd." A silly name, but my own and I prefer it unquoted.

Two comedians in a musical show have a hilarious face smacking scene which starts off with gentle pats and grows into thunderous broadsides. A remarkable thing is that there has not yet appeared a press agent fable that they have quit speaking off stage.

Many believe the temporary breach that sprang up between Lew Fields and Joe Weber resulted from years of Fields choking and eye-gouging Weber, although it was attributed to other things. And that Buster Keaton had any affection at all for his father after being slammed around as he was most of his life is a big boost for filial devotion.

An uncle once gave me a swift, well placed and deserved kick. Ever after in passing him I would give a quick involuntary bend as though expecting another.

The stranger who leaves Manhattan's roar for Brooklyn is invariably impressed with the peaceful charm across the bridge. It might be a city hundreds of miles away. There are yards where children play and keeping is not entrusted so much to servants. There is a large section of Brooklyn clinging to the old-fashioned Monday washday and servants remain "hired girls" with Thursday afternoon off. Home life has not become mechanically standardized and one has a feeling that most husbands are at home at night. That is often a phenomenon in Manhattan.

HASKINS' LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Safeguarding Your Purse—II.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—Better Business bureaus have found that almost every merchant at times has inaccuracies or misleading statements in his advertisements. Hence they advise the public that mercantile advertising is neither wholly honest nor dishonest. But in financial advertising, they say, a man is either honest or he is a crook.

Time was, and not so many years ago, when much of the mercantile advertising in this country was replete with untruthfulness. Advertising was regarded then not so much a sales medium as a means of getting the customer into the store where the real selling would be done. There was little talk or thought about ethics in advertising. Merchants justified themselves in their misleading advertising by saying that the public understood that advertising was very much like the ballyhoo at a circus or street fair. Furthermore, they contended, the customer did not have to buy until he had satisfied himself that he was getting full value or more for his money.

Time came, however, when the public understood only too well what advertising was and when the customer who had been "stung" once too often began to let out a roar that was anything but good-natured or frolicsome. Then advertising lost much of its drawing power, with the result that advertisers became dissatisfied and advertising agents and agencies decided that something had to be done about it.

Out of this situation grew the movement that is crystalized now in the Better Business bureaus, local and national, and that has vastly improved conditions for everybody concerned. Its avowed purpose is to build public confidence in business by fostering truth and accuracy in advertising. Much of what has been accomplished is attributed to the cooperation of newspapers and other publications, and much to the inculcating in the minds of advertisers the truth of the maxim laid down several centuries ago by Cervantes—"Honesty is the best policy."

How the Bureaus Work.

When a case of inaccurate or misleading or untruthful mercantile advertising is brought to the attention of a bureau, the first step taken is to appeal to the advertiser to conform to established ethical standards. Very often this is all that is necessary, for frequently the merchant himself is not aware of the questionable nature of his advertising or has unwittingly made mistakes. Even in cases in which advertisers have deliberately edged over to the shady side of advertising, a warning from the Better Business bureau usually suffices to bring about a change of policy.

When an advertiser persists in questionable practices the next step is to appeal to the newspapers, or other mediums used by the advertiser, to refuse to accept the questionable advertisements.

In 99 cases out of 100 this brings about the desireed result, it is said, but when appeals to the advertiser and the newspaper fail then recourse is had to the law where there are laws against false advertising, and most states have them. The Better Business bureau goes to the district or prosecuting attorney and swears out a warrant for the arrest of the recalcitrant advertiser and the case is aired in court in due course of events, usually with confusion and disaster to the advertiser, for a bureau will not proceed to extreme measures unless it is certain of the justice of its action.

Illustration of what a local may do in dealing with mercantile advertising is found in the work of the Washington Better Business bureau which during the last fiscal year handled 3438 cases, of which 1629 were shopping reports and 627 were consumer complaints.

Much of the most effective work of the locals is done through conferences with advertisers. Groups within specific trades are brought together for round table discussions of problems and evils in their own particular advertising. Numerous trade terms and practices that have been misunderstood by the public are eliminated through agreements reached at these conferences, which invariably are characterized by frankness and apparent sincerity that are reflected in more ethical advertising. New standards are compiled for the guidance of advertisers who desire to demonstrate good faith to the public through their advertising.

Comparative Prices a Problem.

In practically all trade groups it is found that comparative price advertising is a serious problem. This is the advertising in which merchandise is offered at prices materially below stated original prices. It is not in itself an evil, but the Better Business Bureau contend that the exaggeration and lack of foundation for many advertised values constantly jeopardize that most valuable of assets—public confidence. Advertising of values three and four times the sale price may be entirely truthful, the bureaus state, and yet such advertisements are destructive because they do not inspire public confidence.

Spectacular sales constitute a very real evil that the bureaus are combating vigilantly and effectively. In many communities the establishment that was constantly advertising a "fire" sale is now a thing of the past. Similarly, "going out-of-business," "bankruptcy," and "auction" sales are less common than they once were. Sometimes these sales are bona fide, but where a Better Business bureau functions they must be or they will not be tolerated.

In its cooperation with advertisers the Washington local has issued a set of "Standards for Accurate Advertising." It includes a statement of just what may be done legitimately in the way of comparative price advertising and definitions of trade terms and names of materials that may be used. For example, "Fashioned or full fashioned applies only to hosiery knitted flat and thereafter seamed down the back, having stitches dropped at the course beginning where the contour of the leg narrows," and "Merchandise advertised as wool or linen shall mean all wool or all linen."

By way of general standards it sets forth that superlative and extravagant statements should not be used. Such phrases as "greatest values in the city" or "biggest purchase ever made" can not be proved and are misleading. The word "free" should be used in advertising with great caution, it is stated. The true meaning is "without obligation" and the customer should not be obliged to make a purchase or perform a service to obtain the "free" article. Illustrations should accurately portray the merchandise on sale. Store signs should be governed by the same standards as other advertisements. "Seconds," "irregular," or "imperfect" are the approved terms for advertising merchandise which is not perfect; "run of the mill," "sub-standard," and sillar terms should not be used.

That an advertisement should be believable as well as truthful is the thing of primary importance, it is stated, for public belief and reader confidence are one and the same.

"It is good business to 'lean over backward' to show the public that advertisers are endeavoring to prevent any misunderstanding."

NARROWING DOWN TO THE FACTS

There were two brothers; a truthful brother and a brother who was the most incorrigible and persistent liar in the county. As a result of the latter's chronic embellishments of facts the whole family was getting a bad reputation. The truthful brother took him in hand.

"Look here, Bill," he said, "you're disgracing the name. This thing has got to stop. The next time you start in to exaggerate just keep your eye on me. When you begin to go too far I'll give you a hard look and that'll be a signal to you to begin soft-pedaling."

The very next day the two brothers were in the company of a group of other fellow-citizens. The talk drifted to the subject of big city hotels. This was a cue for the liar.

"Speakin' of hotels," he said, "I know a hotel out in Californy that is twenty-two stories high, has a thousand rooms in it, eight dining rooms, fourteen bowling alleys, twenty-two swimming pools, thirty soda water fountains, forty-eight billiard halls and——" here he caught a hard look from the good brother——"and is three feet and a half wdie."

THE FALL OF MAN

A SERMONETTE.

By REV. FREDERIC A. DEAN
Pastor of Second Presbyterian Church.

So God created man in His own image, in the image of God, created He him; male and female created he them. Gen. 1:27.

I.

Being made in the image of God, means first of all that man was created with a mind, reason or intelligence; created an intelligent, free, spiritual and immortalbeing. Perfectly conformed to the Divine image, constituted his glorious excellences, only these were finite and not infinite. Being created with rational powers his understanding was wonderfully enriched with knowledge which was neither accquired by study, nor limited to a small portion of things; but his knowledge embraced the whole creation of God. Man was created with the faculty of speech, the direct gift of rational utterance, the capacity of attaching words to ideas. The portrait of the first man given in Genesis is totally different from the man pictured by modern scientific theories of his bestial origin. He had an insight into the newly created universe, the wisdom and infinite goodness of the Creator, no man has had since the fall. He had a resplendent knowledge of the Deity such as none has had since, for he was an immediate partaker of the Divine nature, a partaker of the Divine holiness.

II.

In the second place, the image of God, consisted in the happy state of man, which was the fruit of His holiness. He resembled the infinitely blessed Creator, being as yet innocent of those evils, which would destroy that felicity; enjoying those pleasures which were worthy of His pure nature and glorious state.

His body, formed immediately of God, had an exquisite perfection, in all its organs and parts, beautiful in form, without defect or blemish, or disease, or the weakening results of generations of sins and misuse.

III.

In the third place, God's image was resplendent in man's dominion and power over the new creation. It was a solemn investiture of glory when God summoned the creatures before him to receive their names; "and whatsoever Adam called every living creation, that was the name thereof." God made Adam the greatest zoologist the world has ever known.

IV.

In the fourth class, man of all creatures was created a moral being and subject to law and capable of law. Law is the declaration of the Creator's will, requiring obedience, and threatening penalty on the failure thereof. Reason and free will must be the quality of the nature capable of law. The very idea of God, of a Supreme Being, excludes all possibility of obligation to any other but Him. The law contains the principles of good and evil, pointing out man's duty to God, to himself, to his fellow creatures. Human reason attests the law as holy, just and good, and the obligation to it is eternal, being the unchangeable will of God; grounded on the natural and immutable relations between God and man, and between man and the creatures.

Accordingly, exercising His sovereign power in all things; and to make a test of man's obedience, God entered into a covenant with man; He forbids him to eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, "for in the day thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die." This absolutely compelled man to choose between duty and happiness, disobedience and misery; death upon disobedience, promise of life upon obedience. Man was created in a perfectly holy, happy state, and whether he retained or lost it depended wholly upon his free choice. He was invested with perfect grace, yet susceptible to sinful impressions. He was set upon by a most subtle and wicked spirit, was tempted and fell from his pure and holy estate; lost the Divine image out of his nature, both for himself and his posterity. The grand mission of the Second Adam to humanity is to persuade men "to put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness;" "the new man which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him."

2 Sam. 5. 1-3.

1 Then came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and spake, saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh.

2 In times past, when Saul was king over us, it was thou that leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and Jehovah said to thee, Thou shalt be shepherd of my people Israel, and thou shalt be prince over Israel.

3 So all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron; and king David made a covenant with them in Hebron before Jehovah: and they anointed David king over Israel.

2 Sam. 6. 12-15.

12 And it was told king David, saying, Jehovah hath blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that pertaineth unto him, because of the ark of God. And David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with joy.

13 And it was so, that, when they that bare the ark of Jehovah had gone six paces, he sacrificed an ox and a fatling.

14 And David danced before Jehovah with all his might; and David was girded with a linen ephod.

15 So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of Jehovah with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.

THE SECRET OF MOST EYE TROUBLES.

We are continually warning people against the dangers of eyestrain because eyestrain is the secret of nearly all eye troubles—and eyestrain let it be explained, is not a disease to be overcome by drugs but is a mechanical defect to be corrected by glasses.

The strain on the eyes, whether you are conscious of it or not cannot be borne by the eye alone. They are too sensitive to stand it, so nature, to prevent severe optical injury, transfers the result of such strain to other organs of the body—most frequently to the nervous system.

Thus it happens that the nerves generally become deranged and cause nervousness, bad headaches, neuralgic pains and other nervous afflictions.

In many cases people who suffer eye-strain are wholly unconscious of the fact—apparently they see as well as ever, especially in the case of children.

Investigation, in thousands of cases, has fully proven that eye-strain is directly responsible for the condition of a great number of children who are unwell, nervous and backward in their studies.

However, eye-strain can be cured. The sooner it is discovered the more easily and quickly can the cure be effected—and the only way by which this can be done is by wearing glasses that will enable the eyes to perform their function properly without straining the muscles of accommodation.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST — Healing of the Demoniac

The people of Capernaum were astonished at the manner in which Jesus preached, for He spoke to them not as the scribes who preached the words of the ancient prophets did, but as One who had authority. When He appeared in the synagogues, therefore, large crowds came to hear Him.

During one service a man with an unclean spirit continued to interrupt Jesus as He preached. Jesus said only, "Hold thy peace and come out of him," and immediately the unclean spirit came out of the man.

This miracle did more to increase His fame, so that crowds followed Him wherever He went. But accompanied by His disciples, Jesus went to the home of Simon and Peter.

There they found the mother of Simon's wife lay ill with the fever. Jesus took her by the hand and lifted her up and immediately the fever left her and she ministered unto them.

WELLSVILLE POLICE SEIZE STILL AND THREE CARS

Chief Fultz's Squad Confiscates Equipment Worth $3,000.

Raiders Visit Hays Place Six Miles South of Lisbon.

Arresting Frank Fusci and Patsy Cervella, of Wellsville and Peter Stell, said to be from East Liverpool, and confiscating a 200-gallon still and other equipment estimated by police to be worth more than $3,000, exclusive of two automobiles belonging to the men, Wellsville authorities last night made their biggest liquor haul since the Volstead law became effective when they raided a house on the Hays farm six miles south of Lisbon.

The raid was conducted by Chief of Police John Fultz and Officers Pugh, Cole, White, Hickman, Hanlon and Duncan. Fusci, Cervella and Stell will be given a hearing this afternoon before Mayor W. L. Fogo, probably on charges of possession and manufacturing, Chief Fultz said today, while a fourth man, know as Patsy Romano, and said to be a native of California, who was arrested as he delivered a load of gasoline to the house, will be questioned.

Fusci, Cervella and Stell, according to Chief Fultz, were arrested last night at 6:30 o'clock, police said, making their raid while the still was in operation. They were taken back to Wellsville and locked up, Chief Fultz delegating Officers Pugh, White and Hickman to conceal themselves a short distance from the house to await developments. Two hours later Romano, it is said, drove up to the house in a truck with four drums of gasoline. Romano was arrested and also taken to the city hall.

The first three taken in the raid, according to Fultz, have been under surveillance for some time.

Their rural still equipment, police say, combined to make one of the most complete distilling assemblies ever confiscated here.

Three pumps were included in the machinery used, one for pumping water from a spring below the house to a 12-foot square storage tank, an automatic pump to send water to the "still room," and a third, a hand pump, in the latter quarters for other uses.

Among the confiscated equipment and supplies were the following articles:

Forty-five 10-gallon kegs; crate of one gallon jugs (about 200); crate of empty quart bottles; funnels and testers; quantity of two-inch pipe; two-inch hose; three-quarters inch hose; yeast; 56 barrels of mash (about 2,800 gallons); 1,000 pounds of sugar; 64 five-gallon empty cans; 10 gallons of liquid said to be whisky; the still itself, gasoline burners and other accessory equipment; the truck used by Romano; Fusci's Flint touring car, and Stell's Dodge sedan.

MORE AIRPORTS URGED BY U. S.

List Ohio Cities as Possible Sites for 1927.

With 864 airports and intermediate landing fields already established in the United States, the assistant secretary of aeronautics, William P. McCracken, Jr., in a statement just issued, predicts that there will be 1,000 before the end of 1927, with the possible chance of including Wellsville and the other following Ohio cities: Colton, Alliance, Dayton, East Liverpool, Elyria, Hamilton, Hudson, Newark, Shelby and Toledo.

The department of commerce has just completed a survey of airway facilities.

"During the year," McCracken said, "more than 50 new airports have been established and twice that number of cities have set aside funds or have begun plans for modern airports. Chambers of commerce, business clubs and other civic organizations are co-operating in the effort to build up a complete airway and airport system. By the end of 1927, about 1,000 airports and intermediate fields will dot the United States from coast to coast and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico.

That's new and exciting now. THE Allies, milking all they can out of German industry, worry about "secret building of a great German army." That German cow must not grow a pair of sharp horns.

But if Russia, constantly growing stronger, with a powerful government, filled with hatred of "capitalistic Western Europe," should suddenly break loose, Western Europe would be very glad to use Germany as a bulwark and a buffer.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Gore, formerly Bishop of Oxford, says Adam and Eve are not historic, but simply represent "every man." He does not believe that Christ ever "descended into hell," but does believe in the ascension.

Many witnessed the ascension, there were no witnesses to the descent—so says the Bishop. He believes in miracles, because without such belief Christianity "would not hold its ground." He accepts evolution, and says it in no way contradicts Bible teachings.

FOR centuries men quarreled about the nature of the soul. Was it composed of solid matter or was it purely spiritual? Now science shows that there is no such thing as solid matter, every atom being only an aggregation of electrons and nuclei, tiny positive and negative charges of electricity. And we don't know what electricity IS.

PARCHMENT manuscripts, written with Latin characters in ancient Aramaic, spoken by Jews in the time of Christ, found in Pompeii, have been translated. They contain slighting references to early Christians. It is hard for prosperous Christians of 1927 to realize that ancient prosperity looked upon early Christians as we look upon the Russian Bolsheviki.

THE early Christians also talked of dividing property and giving to the poor. But, as with modern Christians, it was largely words without deeds.

BOYS' TOURNEY AT Y. M. C. A.

Another tournament for members of the boys' division of the Y. M. C. A. will be started Tuesday morning. The youngsters will be divided into teams who will compete with each other in baseball. A Bible class for each team will precede the games. Members fo the winning team will be awarded prizes at the conclusion of the tournament.

CZAR'S AVENGER IS CONDEMNED

SEMIAPALTINSK, Siberia, Aug 13—General Ivan Annenkov, once known as "the avenger of the Romanofs," has been captured and sentenced to death, it was announced today.

Annenkov, who was credited with ordering the slaughtering of more than 2,000 Communists and their sympathizers in Siberia, following the execution of Czar Nicholas and his family, fled to China in 1920. He and his chief of staff, Denizov, were captured a few months ago when they crossed the border into Sibera. Both were tried by a special military tribunal, and sentenced to death.

TRAIN KILLS WOMAN AT EATON

WESTERN DRAMA AT CERAMIC

Charming Marietta Millner Stars in "Drums Of Desert."

At the Ceramic theatre today is another of those Zane Grey stories of the desert and the red man that has made Grey the acknowledged peer of all writers on the subject of frontier America. Grey knows the desert country and he knows Indians.

In Paramount's screen version of Desert Bound" a new tempo in western drama has been created, refreshing in that among other things it brings to the screen new faces.

Warner Baxter, long a favorite, is once more seen astride a horse as John Curry. Opposite him, in her first American role, is charming Marietta Millner, who has just been brought over from European triumphs. There's a freshness and verve to the "Drums of the Desert," characterizations of these two principals that is particularly likable.

Ford Sterling, Paramount's inimitable comedian, his usual funny self as Painless Perkins, a desert faker, is ably abetted by Heinie Conklin. Wallace MacDonald has the principal heavy role.

The story, however, is that of the Indians and in this enactment the Navajo Indians themselves play an active part. Virtually the entire picture was made on their Arizona and Utah reservations.

John Waters, director of such successes as "Man of the Forest," "The Mysterious Rider" and "Arizona Bound" adds to his laurels with "Drums of the Desert."

'PERFECT SAP' COMEDY THRILLS

Ben Lyon Rings Bell In Picture at Strand.

There is no doubt that Ben Lyon is as handsome and romantic a hero as any in screenland. His work in "The Prince of Tempters" proved him a finished actor too.

Critics have always liked the presentable young actor best when he was playing "boob" roles. His impersonation of a moving picture star in "Bluebeard's Seven Wives" that delightful travesty on the film business remains in memory as one of the most enjoyable performances ever seen.

Ben has another "boob" role at the Strand today in "The Perfect Sap," an appealing mixture of burlesque and drama, which pokes a good bit of fun at the mystery plays of the stage.

As the tortoise-shell adorned son of a wealthy family, who wants to be a detective and "do things," Ben again placed himself in our private list of favorites, a very, very small list, by the way.

But "The Perfect Sap" isn't all comedy. There are as many thrills as the most melodramatic "Western" in it and all the sumptuous settings of a fashion show, as well.

"The Perfect Sap" is one of those rare combinations of comedy, mystery, drama and romance that the picture producers turn out once in a blue moon.

The story is taken from "Not Herbert," Howard Irving Young's stage success, and has lost nothing and gained not a little, in its transition from the stage to the screen.

Tilden-Lott Meet.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 13.—William T. Tilden will oppose George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, one of his numerous proteges, in the finals of the invitation tennis singles here today. Lott reached the finals by vanquishing Rene Lacoste, French ace, in straight sets in the biggest upset of recent tennis history.

Lott stormed Lacoste at the net and he outdrove him in baseline duels. The scores were 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

The doubles final today brings together Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer, and Tilden and Francis T. Hunter.

COUNTY BREAKS RECORD, SAYS SURVEYOR KIRK

Every Sub-division Will Be Connected in 1928.

SPEEDS ALL JOBS

Five Steam Shovels on Youngstown - East Liverpool Link.

A road construction program the equal of which has never before been attempted in eastern Ohio is now under way in Columbiana county. At the end of the road building season next fall more improved highways will have been completed than in any other year in the history of the county.

This is the claim of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk and the board of county commissioners. The three-year program for which a bond issue of $950,000 was voted in November, 1925, will be completed in 1928, when every city, town, village and hamlet will be connected with a network of improved highways.

Lewis & Copeland, Lima, are speeding up the pouring of concrete on the road from Apple's Corners to the Youngstown and Ohio River Railroad sub-station. The concrete mixer is now near the old Smith homestead and will reach Cannons Mills within the next two weeks.

Five steam shovels are now at work on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road. Williamson, Howard & Smith, Youngstown have completed the rough grading between Williamsport and Rogers. One steam shovel has been started at Rogers and another at Williamsport. These two shovels will meet at the Elkton-Clarkson road when the grading of that thoroughfare will be started. This company also holds the contract for the grading of this road from Elkton to Clarkson.

The Mellert-Weidener Construction company of Lima has finished the pouring of concrete on the last section of the Hanover-Salem road in Butler township. This link from Hanover to the Salem-Winona highway will be opened about September 1. The southern section in Hanover township is now open to travel.

The Holmes Construction company, Wooster is now constructing the berms on the Salineville-Summitville road, which was opened to traffic a few weeks ago. This job will be completed within the next week or ten days.

Berm work on the Columbiana-New Waterford road will be completed by Lewis & Copeland, Lima, within a few days. This firm will then move their equipment to New Waterford where they have been given two street contracts which are a part of the improved road into East Palestine. This company expects to complete the rough grading of that section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road in Fairfield township within a week. Contracts for the surfacing will be awarded by the state highway department at Columbus early in the fall.

John Hill, Ada, has completed the pouring of the concrete arch ribs on the new span over the west ford of Beaver creek near Williamsport and the floor construction will be started next week. Hill is also at work on the cantilever bridge over the middle fork of Beaver creek which is a part of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

Many of the concrete culverts and drainage structures on the Salineville-Lisbon road have been completed by J. C. McCann, Columbus. One steam shovel is on this job, and day and night forces are at work. This road will tap the Wellsville-Salineville road, a short distance east of Salineville.

The state highway department will open bids for the improvement of the Rogers-Negley road on September 9.

Bids for the three new bridges, one to replace the present iron span over Beaver creek, south of Lisbon on the Lincoln highway, another in Salineville on the East Liverpool-New Philadelphia road and the other spanning Yellow Creek in Wellsville, will probably be received at the same time. Bids for the surfacing of about a Kensington will be opened by the state mile of the Lincoln highway west of highway department at Columbus next Friday. Estimated cost of this work with paving block is $44,344.64; with concrete, $32,177.98.

AUTO "FISHED" OUT OF RIVER

A Ford touring car, belonging to Chester Trost, of Champaign, Ill. plunged into about 18 feet of water and buried itself in the mud under the wharf boat at the foot of Broadway at 5:30 o'clock last evening.

Trost, who is visiting relatives here, was washing his car along the river bank when the brakes were released and the automobile went into the water. An employee at Dam No. 8 donned a diver's uniform and went to the bottom of the river where he attached a hook to the front axel of the car. It was ravy wrecker.

HAIL STORM HITS TOBACCO CROP

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 13.—Sweeping up the Connecticut river valley in the heart of the tobacco belt, a terrific hail and wind storm today did damage estimated at $100,000 to the tobacco crop.

The damages was suffered chiefly in Thompsonville, Ellington, Hazardville, Windsor Locks and Warehouse Point, all Connecticut towns just across the state line from here.

The strong wind and heavy fall of hail flattened the tobacco plants over an area of fully 1200 acres. The tobacco was about ready for harvest.

BLACKMORE BOY DIES IN CHESTER

James Robert Blackmore, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blackmore, died last night in the home, Indiana avenue, Chester.

He is survived by his parents, one brother and four sisters: Thomas, Alda, Fay, Joan and Betty.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon, in charge of Rev. Paul Hazlett, pastor of the Hookstown Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery.

MAN DECAPITATED BY STREET CAR

HAMILTON, O., Aug. 13.—Efforts were being made here today to establish identity of a white man, about 65 years old, whose decapitated body was found on a traction line right of way near here. The man evidently had gone to sleep on the tracks, after making a bed of grass and a car had passed over his body. A gold watch was the only article found in his clothing.

TORNADO SWEEPS KANSAS TOWN

GREAT BEND, Kansas, Aug. 13.—Several persons are reported missing and a number injured at Hoisington, near here, in a tornado which swept that city today, according to reports here in railroad circles. Wire communication is impaired.

JUNK DEALER'S TOE IS SMASHED

Paul Berman, 25, West Ninth street junk dealer, suffered a smashed toe this morning when a piece of metal fell upon it. He was taken to the City hospital where the injury was dressed by Dr. R. J. Marshall.

Sacco-Vanzetti Meet.

cola. Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti today expressed grave concern over the physical condition of the former and the mental condition of the latter.

Sacco waved away breakfast as he began the twenty-eighth day of his hunger strike at state's prison. Instruments for forcible feeding by the nasal method were ready and will be used when the prisoner's strength completely fails. Sacco, however, has promised his wife, who has begged him to eat, that he will do so if forcible feeding is started.

Sacco went 31 days without food during a former hunger strike. He was examined by alienists and sent to the state insane hospital at Bridgewater, being released from that institution some weeks later as cured.

Vanzetti Eats "Hot Dog."

Vanzetti began to take solid food terday. After drinking a cup of beef tea, a cup of coffee and a glass of milk, he ate with relish a slice of bread and a "hot dog." Prison officials denied emphatically that Vanzetti was "going mad," as reported by his friends. These friends declared that Vanzetti has been showing hallucinations at times, on one occasion shouting that he was ready to "lead the march to eternity" and that on the night of the scheduled electrocution he tore some of the clothes from his body. Some of his friends were talking of asking for an examination by alienists.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Although the pricking of the speculative bubble this week was due largely to technical stock market conditions rather than industrial and business development, the financial district displayed considerable uneasiness as the market opened today, and the movement of prices was somewhat confused.

The professionals were reported active buyers of the better grade of industrial shares on short covering, General Motors being picked up in volume at 220 against Friday's close at 218-¾, and United States steel up a point in the first period. But the so-called pool specialties were not so sure of their ground and there stocks declined two or three points in moderate trading, there was very little "distress selling" of impaired marginal accounts, and thus the market had a breathing spell while the bullish forces surveyed the situation.

The week-end business and industrial reports were promising if not indicative of actual improvement in important lines. Demand for steel products has shown a moderate increase, while the automobile sales have increased. Cotton broke nearly two dollars a bale in the early trading, due to southern and hedge selling precipitated by the weakness of the Liverpool market and improved weather conditions in the cotton belt.

are competent to undertake the air voyage.

Lieut. Bennett H. Griffin of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, and Major Livingston Irving of Berkeley were "okayed" yesterday. The same assurance had been given Jack Frost, pilot of the San Francisco Examiner's plane, "The Golden Eagle," and Lieut. Norman Goddard of the San Diego naval air station Thursday. Others will attempt to qualify today.

Weather conditions for the flight will not be as good Tuesday as they would have been yesterday, according to the government weather bureau. While the aviators would have enjoyed a full moon had the start been made as scheduled, they will have but a half moon to guide them Tuesday.

county jail pending a preliminary hearing, when bond will be fixed.

Non-Union Men Imported.

According to Col. Conelly, about 25 non-union workers were sent to each of three mines near here, the Webb and the Florences mines, and the Provident mine. There was no disturbance at either of the other two mines, according to the national guard officer who reported that the operators sent out their non-union workers without notifying the sheriff so that proper protection could be given them.

Of the five affidavits charging that Sheriff Hardesty was incapable of performing his duty because of intoxication, one was signed by Prosecuting Attorney Paul V. Waddell, and another by Assistant Prosecutor A. Edmund Iddings.

Following the alleged attack on Nichols, the taxi driver, at the Provident mine, Col. Conelly arranged to visit the mine with Waddell and Iddings. According to reports they were to leave about three hours after the reported attack, when Sheriff Hardesty arrived at the county seat, and threatened to "lock Iddings in the county jail if he attempted to accompany Col. Conelly and Prosecutor Waddell.

Attack at Provident Mine.

Before the alleged attack at the Provident mine, it is said, Hardesty had placed under arrest a mine guard, George Shrader, Pittsburgh, charging he was a paid agitator. Shrader was soon released, and not locked in the county jail, it is said.

Waddell, early today, said he would report Sheriff Hardesty's alleged intoxication to Gov. Donahey with the intent to begin proceedings to have him removed from office, although Col. Conelly in his report made no reference to the alleged intoxication of the sheriff.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 13.—Col. L. S. Conelly, today made the following report of the Belmont county disturbance to the office of Gov. Donahey.

"An auto load of non-union miners sent to each three mines in Belmont county Friday afternoon at Webb and Florence mines, cars were sent back without violence. At the Provident mine, the driver in returning from the mines was struck on the left cheek with a rock and himself and car badly egged. The sheriff had not been notified of the operators' intent to bring men to their mines, therefore sufficient protection was not available. Six arrests were made at the Provident mine, including the president and secretary and treasurer of the local union, and two women. More arrests are to follow."

DUBLIN CHIEF FACES BITTER FIGHT IN DAIL

Fate of Cosgaive's Government Hangs in Balance.

DE VALERA MOVE

Lack of Confidence Vote To Be Moved Tuesday.

DUBLIN, Aug. 13.—While the fate of President William T. Cosgrave's Irish Free state government hangs in the balance, there was intense political activity behind the scenes today.

The latest move in the kaleidoscopic Irish political situation was the notice given by Thomas Johnson, leader of the Irish labor party that on Tuesday he will move a vote of lack of confidence in the present Free state administration, which has been in power since December, 1922.

A coalition has been formed in Dail Eireann (the Irish parliament) by the 43 Fianna Fail (Republican) deputies headed by Eamonn De Valera, and the Laborites.

It is felt in some quarters that President Cosgrave may yet be saved, all depending upon whether the opposition coalition can hold together until Tuesday.

Reports of a split in the opposition ranks were denied by John Redmond, though it is pointed out that, if the Redmondites abstain from voting President Cosgrave has a chance to get between 67 and 70 votes against 65 and 68 of those proposing a lack of confidence in the present government.

It is suggested in some quarters that, even should President Cosgrave and his colleagues survive the fight against them in the dail on Tuesday, the cabinet may decide to resign, leaving the way open for the formation of a labor government.

WARREN-SALEM BUS LINE HIT

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—The public utilities commission today revoked the certificate of the Warren-Salem Coach Lines company, operating between these cities, and an extension between Deerfield and Alliance. The revocation was made upon the protest of the Youngstown Suburban Transit company which charged the Warren-Salem company was not a corporation as represented when it filed its petition for its certificate.

Jest Over Levine's Delay.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—A fresh controversy between Charles A. Levine, American trans-Atlantic flyer, and his French pilot, Maurice Drouhin, made it uncertain today when the monoplane "Columbia" would hop at Le Bourget for the United States.

Some of the French newspapers have begun to make jests over the continued delays of Levine's plane due to disputes with Drouhin.

Many French airmen believe that Dieudonna Coste, the French army flyer, stands the best chance of making the first non-stop flight from France to New York. His plane is undergoing final overhauling at Villacoublay and will be ready to start in a day or two, weather permitting. It is not certain whether Coste will hop off from Villacoublay or Le Bourget.

Leon Givon, who wanted to start for New York yesterday in his Farman "Blue Bird," found a leak in his gasoline tank and had to put off the flight until repairs can be made. If fair weather prevails off the coast and over the Atlantic Givon may get away tomorrow.

RUFUS CLINE CASE DISMISSED

Rufus Cline, Mulberry street potter, charged with assault in connection with an attack alleged to have been made upon Elsie Southall, 14, a neighbor, was dismissed by Judge Hanley today.

Cline was given a hearing two weeks ago but Judge Hanley reserved his decision in the case until today. Attorney S. W. Crawford, who represented the defendant, declared Cline to have been the victim of a "vicious frame-up."

Everett Bailey, Second street potter, arrested upon a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated, upon information filed by William Kane, Mulberry street pool room operator, following an automobile wreck on Pennsylvania avenue about three week ago, was fined $50 and costs today. Kane had previously been fined upon a charge of reckless driving.

VETS PICNIC HOSTS SUNDAY

Public Invited to Attend Outing at Health Farm.

The Columbiana county health farm, three miles west of Lisbon on the Lincoln highway, was in readiness today for the northeastern Ohio Veterans of Foreign Wars' picnic, which will be held tomorrow. Delegations from Canton, Akron, Youngstown, Warren, New Philadelphia, East Liverpool, Salem and other places will attend the affair.

A program of races, baseball and dancing will be featured. Ice cream, lemonade and coffee will be distributed free at noon and in the evening. A number of state officers from Ohio and Pennsylvania will be special guests.

The general committee in charge of the picnic today extended an invitation to the public to attend.

EIGHT BOYS PASS SWIMMING TEST

Eight boys passed the Red Cross swimming test conducted in the Y. M. C. A. pool Friday. They were: Damon Pierson, James Richardson, Robert Farrall, Robert Queen, William Fletcher, Willis Cunning, Robert Owen and Donald Hall.

To pass the test the lads were required to swim 100 yards on their chest, 50 feet on their back without use of arms, recovering objects in six feet of water, make a front dive neatly and to witness a demonstration in artificial resuscitation.

The tests were given by Richard Larkins, Red Cross examiner, and T. F. Scheffer, Y. M. C. A. examiner.

DR. F. G. FOWLER RETURNS HOME

Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, who with Mrs. Fowler returned Thursday evening from a two weeks' stay at Lakeside, will occupy the pulpit of his church at 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

Dr. H. S. Powell, district superintendent, Steubenville, will have charge of the morning services.

NANKING ALARMED

Chinkiang Reported to Have Fallen, Says Message.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Following a violent battle in which the Nationalists (Cantonese) suffered 30,000 casualties and the Northerners 6,000 casualties, the former were driven from Kuchen-Suyi, according to a Japanese news agency dispatch from Nanking today.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Driving southward along the border of Kiangsu and Anhwei provinces in a new offensive, northern troops under Gen. Sun Chuan Fang have captured Pukon and Yangchow, said a Central News dispatch from Shanghai today. The dispatch added that an attack against Nanking seems imminent.

A Nanking message reports heavy troops concentrations around that city and along the northern battle front. Gen. Chen Tiaowan is reported to have gone over to the Northern army under Gen. Sun Chuan Fang.

Another telegram from Shanghai said that the northerners were reported to have taken Chinkiang. It stated that dissatisfaction is apparent among the Kwangsi and Chekiang followers of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek.

46 Labor Leaders Executed.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Execution of 46 Chinese labor leaders affiliated with the Communist faction of the Kuomingtang (Cantonese party) at Kiukiang and the suppression of labor unions at that place on the charge they were Red organizations, was reported in Chinese messages from Kiukiang today.

The Way of the World

LEARNING.

Travelers from far countries tell us the women of Tibet boss their husbands. It is apparent that civilization is penetrating into the far corners of the earth.

THE STRUGGLE.

People who call themselves Christians, but who are animated by unchristian motives, do as much harm in China as honest missionaries do good. It's a race to keep even.

ON A BIG SCALE.

Brooklyn plans an airport that will cost $18,000,000, and that will be the largest in the world. Not many cities can make such magnificent gestures. But it's inspiring to see American cities do things in a big way. No progressive city, thinking about an airport and the inevitable development of commercial aviation, must think in small figures.

It takes vision to look into the skies and see the wonders that are to come.

TOO SOFT.

A "gyro ship stabilizer," made for a millionaire's yacht, will carry the ship smoothly through a gale. That's nothing to be glad about. Some of the devices of extreme civilization are making us softer and softer. What we most need is more men and women who can stand hardship, rather than more mechanical devices to abolish hardship.

REALLY SEEING.

A Cleveland teacher who is blind returned the other day from a year's tour of Europe. Landing in New York she said: "Not seeing with your eyes is not a tragedy because, after all, you really see only what you comprehend—you see only with your mind."

While she was away this woman—Miss Almeda Adams—traveled from Paris to London by airplane. She climbed the second highest mountain in Switzerland. She "saw" Raphael's great painting of the Madonna.

"I felt it," she said. "It creates an atmosphere. It was very vivid to me."

Here is the most glorious of all mixtures — the mixture of courage with intelligence. And Miss Adams is right. We see only what we understand.

There are so many of us who, having eyes, see not.

Failure of the electric lights compelled Rev. Morgan Williams to preach his sermon at the Cathdral church, Bury St. Edmunds, England, in darkness recently.

London tobacco lealers have just taken up the custom of giving matches with each purchase.

Christmas crackers manufacturers have started to make crackers for the next Christmas rush, nearly twelve-month production being sold in a few days just before the holidays.

LABOR REGRETS COOLIDGE MOVE

Secretary Davis Surveys Effect of "Do Not Choose to Run."

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 13.—Following President Coolidge's unexpected announcement that he did not choose to run for reelection, the department of labor made an extensive survey to determine the effect it had among labor leaders throughout the country, Secretary of Labor Davis revealed here yesterday.

for a visit with the executive.

The consensus of opinion showed a general regret that Mr. Coolidge was determined to retire after March 4, 1929, Davis declared.

"The leaders of organized labor," he said, "reported that, while they had received no favors from the president, they had always gotten a square deal from him. Most of them were sorry that he had decided not to run again."

STEWART SAYS:

"War" Beteween Standard Oil Companies Looked Upon in Capital as not A Deadly One.

By Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON, Aug 13—Is Standard Oil at war within itself?

When the government broke up the big parent company, did it manage to do it so effectually that the offspring actually have fallen to fighting one another?

Has the Standard of New York really "put one over" on the Standard of New Jersey?—in connection with that Russion oil dicker we hear so much about. And is the Standard of New Jersey genuinely as mad at the Standard of New York as it appears to be?

The various Standard Oil companies do unquestionably have their separate interests and affiliations.

It happens that the Standard of New Jersey is hooked up with the Royal Dutch Shell group, a concern partly British in its makeup, and partly Dutch, as its name implies.

What the Royal Dutch Shell gets out of its alliance with the Standard of New Jersey its its own affair, but what the Standard of New Jersey hopes to get out of its relationship with the Royal Dutch Shell isn't hard to guess. The Standard wants certain important oil concessions in the Dutch East Indies, where the Royal Dutch Shell is mighty influential.

Nationalized Deposits

Now in Russia there are immensely valuable oil deposits, formerly privately owned but nationalized, expropriated, confiscated or stolen—choose your own term—by the Soviet government, when the latter came into power.

The Soviet folk had the oil but lacked machinery to market it advantageously.

"How about a bargain with us?" suggested the Standard of New Jersey and the Royal Dutch Shell, which were well provided in this respect. The Soviet Naphtha Trust, very anxious for money, was agreeable and negotiations began.

They had not progressed far before it became evident that the Soviet government's and the Royal Dutch Shell's ideas of a satisfactory arrangement differed widely.

The Soviet was willing to furnish the oil on favorable terms, to be sold, but that was all. Sir Henri Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch Shell, insisted on a concession— a vested right in the deposits—in fact a monopoly.

The upshot was a speedy termination of the discussion—with considerable heat on the part of Sir Henri, who said he wouldn't have anything to do with a government which didn't recognize private property and had grabbed that oil besides.

The Standard of New Jersey seemingly wasn't as unyielding as Sir Henri, since it continued chatting with the Soviet Naptha Trust for some time after he had stopped, still trying to come to terms.

However, it was clear enough that the New Jersey company couldn't finally offer any more favorable conditions to the Soviet than Sir Henri had offered without offending its own ally, the Royal Dutch Shell. Sir Henri's scheme, according to the Russians, was to "put the screws" on them—to prevent them from disposing of their oil at all except as he dictated.

For the Standard of New Jersey to have cut the ground from under the Royal Dutch Shell's feet would have been a most unfriendly act—and the New Jersey company had the Dutch East Indies to think of.

What's Heard in Washington

It can't be proved, of course, but is it conceivable—it certainly is conceivable to some eminent oil authorities here—that the Standard of New Jersey, in this situation, said very, very confidentially to the Standard of New York?—

"You can see how we're tied up on this Russian oil situation. We're all Standard Oil companies together. Why don't you see what YOU can do?"

At all events, the next thing we know about it, the Standard Oil of New York and its affiliated Vacuum Oil Company have framed up just such a deal with the Soviet Naphtha Trust as Sir Henri Deterding had refused to have anything to do with Sir Henri's boycott—if there was one had exploded.

The Standard of New Jersey has made a decent show of indignation over the Standard of New York's "underhand" conduct.

That's the utmost it can do.

No protest to the state department, no governmental action of any kind can possibly be availing.

An American concern is at perfect liberty to enter into whatever trade relations it likes in Russia. If it gets into trouble there, it can't look to the Washington administration for help or support but its commercial ventures in Russia are none of this government's business.

The Standard of New York probably isn't afraid of anything of the sort. The Soviet government has been far from respectful of old leftover czarist bargains, but it has an enviable reputation for keeping its own to the letter.

A mysterious disease is threatening to destrop all the beautiful oaks planted in England in the seventeenth century.

MAY DECLARE MAN LEGALLY DEAD

Unless Archie Haught presents himself in probate court at 10 o'clock Sept. 6 he will be declared legally dead, and an administrator will then be appointed for the estate. This has been determined by a petition filed with the court by Attorney Frank H. Hoover of East Liverpool.

The petition has been filed at the instance of Gertrude Justice who asks that an administrator be appointed for the estate of Haught.

Haught, the petition relates, has been absent from his last known place of residence for seven years, and that no will or testament has been found.

$10,000 DAMAGE ACTION FILED

An action seeking $10,000 damages has been filed in court by Galen Groves, aged 17, through his father, E. E. Groves, Salem, against Mrs. Zora Trotter, 118 High street, Salem.

The petition alleges that the plaintiff was riding a bicycle along Main street on June 27 last when the defendant alighting from an automobile, then parked against the curb, opened a door, struck the plaintiff as he was riding past and threw him in front of a machine passing in the opposite direction. The petition of the plaintiff charges negligence on the part of the defendant.

Partition Action Filed.

Irene S. Gorby seeks the partition of a farm of 80 acres in section 26 in Middleton township in a petition filed in common pleas court by her counsel, W. H. Spence, against Howard Huston and Martha V. Grippe of New Mine, Pa., Ina Huston and Frank Huston of Beaver Falls, Pa. Because the defendants are non-residents of the state, an affidavit for constructive service has been filed with the petition.

Property Transfers.

Real estate transfers have been recorded as follows:

William Wilson to Richard C. Wilson, lot 13 in Nicholson's addition, Wellsville, $1.

H. M. Oliver to Ralph Egerman and others, lots 3, 4 and 5 in George Well's first addition, Wellsville, $50.

David F. Gregory and wife to Perpetual Building & Loan company, lot 80 in Henry Aten Jr.'s addition, Wellsville, $1.

John R. Tipton and wife to Minnie M. Russell, lot 7 and part of lot 8 in Forbes addition, Wellsville, $7,000.

Earl E. Bower to Effie M. Bower, 80 acres in section 33, Unity township, $3,000.

John J. Lamp and wife to George W. Runyon, 1 acre in second 35, Liverpool township.

William Fultz and others to same, lot in 18th street, Wellsville.

Lucinda A. Gardner and others to state of Ohio for state park purposes, 23.72 acres in section 2, Hanover township, $1,542.45.

John Lee and wife to Jessie Y. Humphrey, 77 acres in St. Clair township, $5.

William H. Stewart and others to Viola M. Stewart, lots 68 and 69 in the village of Homeworth, $1.

Lottie M. Hoover and others to George Buzzard, 2 acres in section 4, Fairfield township, $2,000.

James Scibert and others to Windland Bros. Lumber company, lot 1375 in Gibb's addition, East Liverpool, $1.

ABSOLUTELY!

No Ill Effects On The Motor Or Its Parts

When you fill your gas tank with LITO GASOLINE there is no need for worry because Lito Gas is pure gas and contains nothing that will harm your motor or its parts. Fill your gas tank with this clean firing gasoline today. You'll notice a big difference in your motor's performance—you'll feel the engine runnin gmore smoothly, and you'll get greater response than ever before when you step on the gas.

MOTORISTS NOW ENJOY THE BENEFITS OF HIGH COMPRESSION THROUGH LITCO-ETHYL IN TWO WAYS.

1 Through high compression automobiles. The advent of Litco Ethyl Gasoline has at last given car manufacturers the opportunity mechanically to raise the compression of their engines. For cars now in use they can offer special high compression cylinder heads which greatly increase performance.

2 Through carbon formation. By letting carbon form in the cylinders of a car of ordinary compression, you automatically increase compression. Since Litco Ethyl Gasoline is a high compression fuel, those deposits which heretofore have decreased power become a source of extra power.

EASTON IS VICTOR IN 3-1 CLASH

Southpaws Wellsville to Victory Over K. T. K.

WELLSVILLE Nash Motors defeated the K. T. K. team in a well played City Industrial league contest on Nicholson field last evening, 3 to 1.

Easton southpawed for the victors and W. O'Brosky served right handed shoots for the losers. Both allowed eight hits, the former permitting six singles and two doubles and the latter five one-baggers, two two-base drives and one triple. Boin also fanned seven and each gave but one pass.

Wellsville scored two runs in the last of the first inning. Simcox fumbled Adamson's drive. The latter scored on Byer's triple to deep center after Cook and G. Meyers had fanned. Kibble singled to right, scoring Byers. C. Wagner flew to C Coleman

In the fifth K. T. K. sent A. O'Brosky around the paths. He singled to left and went to second on Easton's wild heave to first and counted on McShane's double, following strikeouts by Hunselman and W. O'Brosky. Then C. Coleman made the third to fan in the same inning.

The final run of the contest was made by Wellsville in the sixth. Kibble singled down the third base line and stole second and third. He scored on Litner's double over the right field fence after Hancock, batting for C. Wagner, had fanned and H. Meyers had soared to Kinsey. Then Easton missed the third strike.

K. T. K. used three pinch hitters in a vain attempt to overcome the two-run lead against them in the seventh. Merchant, batting for A. O'Brosky, fanned, C. Howell, swinging for Hunselman, sent a high fly to Byers, while S. Coleman, bludgeoning for W. O'Brosky, was called out on strikes.

McShane, walking once and annexing a single and a double, led all batters for the day with a perfect mark for his three batting essays.

Eyers and Kibble, with two safeties each, in three chances, swatted .667 each.

So evenly matched were the contesting clubs for the occasion that each had five men left on bases during the game.

Both teams also had but one miscue each, a fumble by Simcox at third at the outset of the game which proved costly and Easton's wild heave to first on A. O'Brosky in the fifth which also contributed a run.

Twenty-three men were utilized in the game, 12 by K. T. K. and 11 by Wellsville.

FIRPO PLANNING WINTER SCRAPS

WIN WITH HOMER IN ELEVENTH

Jim Bottomley Crashes Out Hit That Stops Pirates.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Thanks to Sunny Jim Bottomley, the St. Louis Cardinals are tied with the Pirates for second place today five games behind the league-leading Cubs. For the second time in two days, Bottomley beat the Bucs with a home run. The blow came in the eleventh and enabled Jess Haines to win 2 to to 1 duel with Carmen Hill. Haines yielded only four hits and Hill six.

While Sunny Jim was pulling a Frank Merriwell in St. Louis his old side-kick, Rogers Hornsby, was duplicating the feat in New York against the Brooklyn Robins. The Rajah's eighteenth homer of the season with the bases full, helped the Giants overcome a six run lead and he scored the winning run in the tenth.

Gink Hendrick, outfielder and first baseman, replased Partridge at second base for Brooklyn and committed a costly error. The Giants are three games behind St. Louis and Pittsburgh, but have been playing the best ball in the league.

Manager Dave Bancroft of the Braves benched himself in favor of Doc Cautreau, the champion midget of the majors, and the Doc helped himself to four hits as Boston swamped the Phillies, 12 to 6.

Ty Cobb and Zach Wheat, the fading veterans of the Athletics, could get only four hits apiece but fortunately the other Mackmen got a few bingies and the A's managed to beat the Red Sox, 7 to 1.

The Tigers made it three in a row from the Browns, scoring four runs in the eighth and winning, 7 to 3.

Babe Ruth got a homer but it was made in an exhibition game with Baltimore which the Yankees lost, 8 to 7. Babe pitched the last inning and was hammered to a fare-thee-well.

Hoover, Crawford Horseshoe Champs

Although usually confining their public operations to the court columns, East Liverpool lawyers today demand sport page space as a result of the championship horseshoe tournament staged yesterday at the Buckeye club in connection with a field meet held by the Southern Columbiana County Bar association.

City Solicitor "Skelly" Hoover and Attorney Sam Crawford today boast the championship laurels as a result of a spectacular exhibition with the lucky pieces, alleging they trimmed Municipal Judge Jess Hanley and Attorney Blaine Cochran in seven straight games.

"We're ready to defend our title at any time," declares Attorney Crawford, "against any member of the southern county association or the whole county."

M. CEBULA IS SENT TO WESTERN

Former Chester Hurler Traded to Wichita Club.

Mike Cebula, former hurler for Frank Riley's Chester Industrial league club, today is a member of the Wichita (Kansas) club of the Western league.

Manager Brown of the Highpoint club of the Piedmont league which Mike joined early in the season Wednesday completed the deal which sends Cebula to the western circuit and Class A ball. The husky right hander was ordered to report at once.

The trade was made with the understanding that if Brown permitted Cebula to join Wichita immediately and not take a player at the present time from the Kansas club, Brown would be allowed his pick in the spring.

Manager Frank Riley, pilot of the Superior Cords of the Industrial club, who presented Cebula with his first real opportunity to display his mound ability, performed with the Wichita club in 1915.

DRUGS WIN IN OPENER OF SERIES

Down Workingman's Store at West End 9 to 2.

Collecting a total of 14 safe bingles off Pitcher Devon the Bulger Drugs defeated the Workingman's store, 9 to 2, last night at Patterson Field, in the first game of a three-game series and the pill rollers feel so certain of annexing the entire series that they announced today they would accept the challenge of the National Furniture. However, Manager Grollman, of the Workies, declares his club will have something to say about that later on.

The game brought out about 300 fans. Southpaw Earl Reese, of the Drugs, allowed five safe drives. The Drugs had one big inning in the ninth when they scored five runs.

Pusey led the batters with four hits in five times up. Paul White collected a double and a single in five trials. First Baseman Harris, of the losers, registered twice in four trips to the plate.

PLAY O. & P. CLUB NEXT WEDNESDAY

Superior Cords Face Stiff Opposition in Tilt With Pennant Winners; Riley to Use New Pitcher.

Baseball fans of the East Liverpool district will have the opportunity of looking over two of the strongest professional clubs out of the big minor leagues on successive Wednesdays at Smith Field, Chester, when the Superior Cords, at present leading the City Industrial league, hook up with the Beaver Falls Elks and Cum Posey's Homestead Grays.

The Beaver Falls club, which won the first half pennant in the O. & P. circuit, is scheduled to perform at Chester on next Wednesday evening and the Grays are slated for their second appearance in the district on the following Wednesday.

Neither club demands much of an introduction to baseball followers here.

The Beaver Falls outfit boasts one of the smartest pitchers in professional ball of this particular caliber in Hilty. Whether the Cords will have a chance to see him work is questionable. Hilty has turned down a number of higher professional offers.

Sam Herman, native of Dayton, former Bethany collegian, who also had a month's workout with the Detroit Americans this spring, will be Riley's hurling choice against the Elks. Herman signed up with the Cords a week or so ago and if he comes up to expectations the chances are he will be used in Industrial League engagements later on. Herman refused a chance with the Rochester International league club and has been playing some this season in the Eastern Ohio.

He is not exactly a stranger to the Cords, having played basketball against Ray Wilde, Chester infielder.

Moscow Club Here Sunday

The East Liverpool Cardinals will play the Moscow Cubs tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Sherwood diamond.

The Cubs are a fast organization of ball players, picked largely from New Cumberland and adjacent territory. They were here a couple of weeks ago and played one inning with the Cards when rain interrupted proceedings.

Cleaners and Potters Tie, 4-4

Skid's Cleaners and the Potters Supply battled to a seven-inning four run tie last evening at Columbian park, the Potters getting six hits off Powell and the Cleaners five off O'Hanlon and McGeehan.

Frankie Davis, at third for the Cleaners and Leftfielder Stewart of the Potters, had two hits apiece in three times up.

Public Acceptance Proclaims It:

Greatest All-Time ESSEX Achievement

Greater Power and Performance—Roomier, Finer Bodies

Popular enthusiasm has risen to new heights in proclaiming the surpassing brilliancy of this Greater Essex Super-Six. Spurred by knowledge that the most eagerly demanded Essex in history was retired to make way for it, public interest has crowded show rooms, not only here but throughout the country, to inspect, ride, and place a prior order for this phenomenal car.

That interest is intensified by the conviction that the preceding Essex was the greatest car of its size ever produced.

So, expect a great car when you come to see and try the New Essex Super-Six. Expect a car measured in terms of the best you know, unqualified by size or price. Of course, you will look for speed, sparkling performance, unexcelled reliability and riding ease; for these already belong to Essex reputation. Yet, we freely say, that here, too, you must expect extra margins of ability, brilliancy and quality.

No previous car—no previous value—gives anything by which to judge it. It is the greatest achievement in Essex history. See it and ride in it with greater expectation of fine things than you ever held for any but the costliest cars. You will not be disappointed.

And, although Essex production is the largest in our history, in view of the long condition of shortage, you should place your order at once if you would insure early delivery.

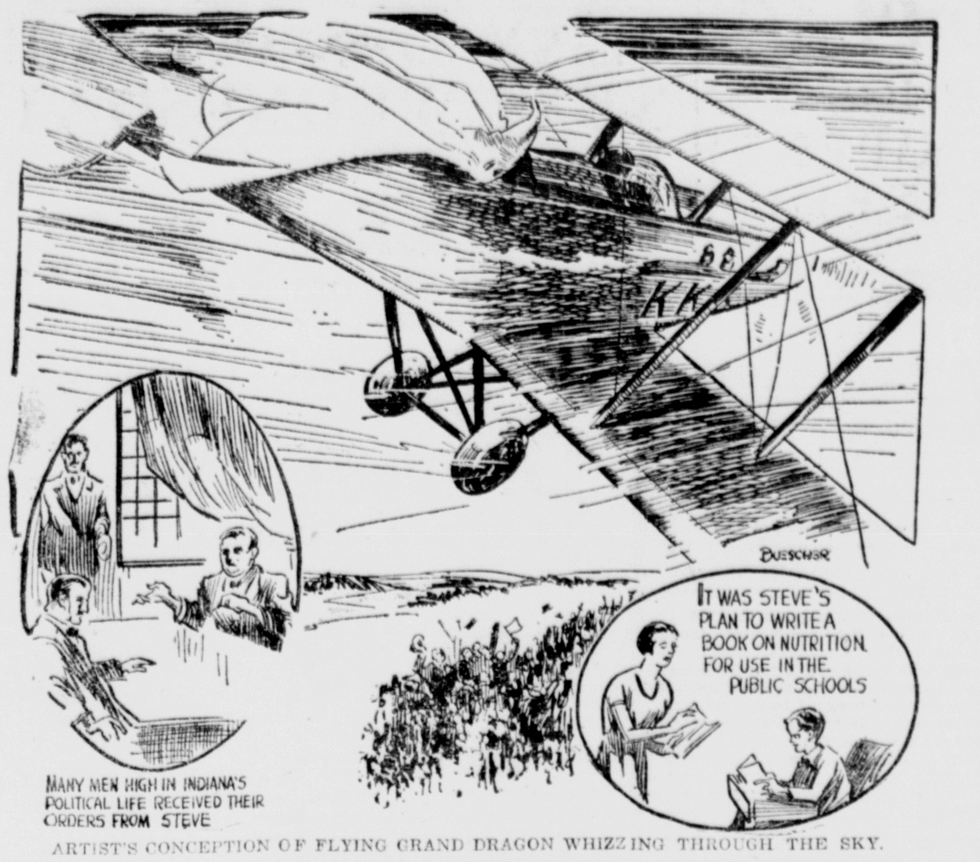
D. C. STEPHENSON, PURPLE-ROBED DRAGON, ALTHOUGH IN PRISON, STILL LIVES IN MINDS OF AWE-INSPIRED FOLKS



ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF FLYING GRAND DRAGON WHIZZING THROUGH THE SKY.

V.

(The story of Indiana's political drama, now unfolding, and its chief character, D. C. Stephenson, reads like a novel. This is the fifth instalment.)

By BONITA WITT
Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

To many folk in Indiana, D. C. Stephenson, although a life prisoner convicted of murder, remains a bit supernatural. His charges against persons of high and low degree are attracting some of his old group again. He still dazzles. No wonder! He was not supernatural, but a super-dramatist of a political personality—and that personality always was himself.

MISS BONITA WITT

Numerous persons predict he'll again appear "out of the sky from nowhere" as once he did.

The Stephenson plane, according to Court Asher, his pilot, was a gaily decorated affair with a silvered forepart and three great flaming "K's" painted beneath. In this the grand dragon rode the clouds, as it were.

Thundering over a Klan assemblage, he would land, clad in flowing purple robes, a fantastic mask over his face.

Startled crowds would stare in awe. Majestically, the grand dragon would step from the plane to the salutes of lesser dignitaries and supernumeraries. Bombs would burst high in the air.

Women would faint. Men would shout themselves hoarse.

Excited Mass of People.

The assemblages were enormous.

As the grand dragon strode toward the mass of people, it is related, women tore their way to the shouded figure, kissed the purple garments, and snatched rings and jewels from their own persons and gave them to the grand dragon.

It was no wonder a man with such a following should begin to dominate politically.

Stories are told of legislators reporting at Stevenson's office before going to the assembly, to receive "do and don't" orders. They were informed which bills the "Old Man" desired passed and which he wanted killed in committee or defeated on the floor, it is said.

Tells of Seeing Politicians Come.

An Ohio man, who at one time was friendly with Stephenson, tells of visiting the latter in his Indianapolis office and seeing many men high in Indiana's political life come there to receive their "orders" from the stout little gentleman, who, while still in his early thirties, was enjoying the power of a monarch.

It wasn't exactly safe to describe "Steve" as stout in the old days when he was king, as one former Indianapolis newspaper man can testify. He and the former grand dragon exchanged several blows as the result of an article in which the writer described "Steve" as "a short stout man with rapidly thinning hair."

Perhaps the most notorious bill traced to Stephenson was one requiring the state superintendent of public instruction to prescribe a text book on nutrition for use in the public schools. On its face it appeared to be a fine bill and Stephenson's influence was not even suspected.

What Investigation Disclosed.

Shortly after the passage of the bill the "nigger in the woodpile" came to light and it was none other than D. C. Stephenson! Having taken a small course in nutrition from a New York concern it was his plan to write the book and reap thousands in royalties, from the pockets of the parents forced to buy the book.

This bill was passed just a few days before Stephenson was arrested for murder and he never realized his ambition. At the last session of the legislature, Attorney General Arthur Gilliom, recalling that the law still existed, obtained its repeal.

Admits Stepenson's Power.

Indiana politicians today, although reluctant to admit that Stephenson possessed the amount of power which he says he did, confide that he controlled not only state officials but municipal officials and postmasters as well.

Ohio also felt his enthusiasm. Thousands of dollars were spent in Ohio campaigns, but Stephenson never actually gained power there, because he could not give enough time to Ohio to insure complete domination. He had a finger, however, in a goodly number of campaigns and Ohio was not alone in receiving his personal attention. In most of the 21 states in which he was a Klan organizer, Stephenson had a part in things political. But he was to reach his zenith in Hoosierland.

Trail Italian Netters.

LEGHORN, Italy, Aug. 13.—The United States university tennis players trailed their Italian opponents by a score of two to three today as a result of the defeat of W. M. Reed of Yale and H. T. Hill of Harvard in the singles, and Charles Watson of Yale and Hill in the doubles by the Italian university champions in yesterday's matches here.

T. B. McGlinn of Yale and L. H. Gordon of Harvard won their singles matches against the Italians.

Boy Walley won by a technical knockout over Young Pancho Villa in the first round of a scheduled six round bout.

ROSS WILL TRY FOR BIG PURSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Clarence Ross, America's champion amateur long distance swimmer, has turned professional by entering the 21-mile marathon to be held at Toronto, on Aug. 31. Prizes for the event total $50,000.

Ross held the national A. A. U. long distance championship for three consecutive years. He said he contemplated retiring from the sport soon in any event, and felt that before doing so he "might as well try for the Toronto purse."

London Wants Big Fight.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Tex Rickard, America's foremost sports promoter, may stage a world's heavyweight championship prize fight in London next year, it was learned today. It is reported that an English syndicate already has made an offer to Rickard to match the winner of the Dempsey-Tunney fight against the most promising contender to the title in the English metropolis. It was suggested that the great Wembley stadium might furnish the arena for the battle.

AT LONG BRANCH, N. J. — Ray Mitchell, Philadelphia welterweight, won a newspaper decision over Jackie Ryan, of Baltimore, in 10 rounds.

MALONEY WINS COMEBACK BOUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The status of fistiana of Jimmy Maloney, Irish heavyweight from Boston, was not improved today despite his knockout of the Jamaica Kid here last night. In the fourth round the veteran negro boxer decided he had absorbed enough punishment for one evening and took a count of ten on one knee.

How THE Other Half Behaves

GET MY GOAT, BUT GIVE ME DOG

CHICAGO. — Titus Haffa, a politician, appeared before Judge John Sbarbo explaining that somebody had gotten his goat.

"Your honor," said he, "I'll be doggoned if somebody didn't steal my dog," as he asked the court to issue a warrant for Sammy Rizzon, who, he claimed, had the dog.

"Your dog!" said the judge. "I thought somebody had gotten your goat."

"Yes, that's right," Haffa explained. "They got my goat when they stole my dog."

"Then you want a warrant issued for stealing a dog because somebody got you goat?" inquired the judge.

"No, no, your honor, not because he got my goat, but because he stole my dog."

"Oh!" said the judge.

DIGNIFIED DUCK COMMANDS RESPECT

BOURNE, England. — A traffic policeman on a busy main road near Bourne, didn't think anything of holding up traffic for 10 minutes to give a duck a chance to lay an egg. When he noticed a duck waddling across the road, he halted automobiles to give the bird a chance. But half way over the road she sat down. Having laid the egg, she leisurely resumed her journey. After the egg was salvaged by the policeman the halted cars were permitted to proceed.

FAMOUS CHURCH OF THE WORLD

The Basilica of St. Peter of the Vatican, at Rome.

The present basilica of St. Peter, the largest church in the world, was begun under Pope Nicholas V in 1450, after a plan by Rosselini, on the site of the oratory which was constructed by Pope Anacletus and later replaced by the basilica erected in the fourth century by Constantine.

Under Julius II a new plan was submitted by Bramante, and was followed mainly in the erection of the present structure. Some of the great masters were employed in the formation and decoration of this magnificent basilica. Leo X employed Raphael, Giamberti, and Giocondo de Verona, while the great dome owes its beauty to Michael Angelo, who designed and nearly completed it. The building was consecrated by Urban VIII in 1626, and the final touches were added under Pope Pius VI in 1754.

Although this is the largest church in the world, its splendid proportions conceal its great bulk. The total cost was more than sixty millions dollars it is built entirely of travertine from Tivoli, and it is because of the sunny hue of this stone that it still looks as fresh as though it had just been completed.

Anti-Knock SUPER-FLASH GASOLINE

Several years ago one or two far-sighted automobile manufacturers offered to the motoring public four-wheel brakes. There were people then who had always driven carefully—who had never had an accident, and who could see no need for four-wheel brakes. Today those same people are driving cars equipped with four - wheel brakes and they wouldn't be without them.

Likewise, the average motorist is satisfied with ordinary gasoline until he first uses a motor fuel refined so pure as to eliminate the objectionable and destructive "knock" without the addition of "dope" or dye. He immediately discovers that he is getting more power and more mileage and that he has found "the last word in motor fuels."

We enjoy the distinction of being the first in this community to supply such a gasoline at the same price as ordinary gasoline.

A trial will convince you that this gasoline has opened a new era in automobile performance.
